

SENATORS SHUT OUT MID-STATE CHAMPS

The brand of ball in the central part of Oregon is fast enough, the team from The Dalles demonstrated here Sunday; but with Wayne Barham, pitching shutout ball and retiring the batsmen in one-two-three order with only two exceptions, the visitors had little chance. The Senators won 6 to 0.

The Mid-Columbia league champions got only one safe hit, a single by Helms in the seventh inning, but credit doesn't all belong to Barham. Never did the Senators look more like a major-league outfit than they did Sunday, with every man fielding hard chances perfectly and throwing with deadly precision. Barham was credited with only six strikeouts, the visitors hitting the ball hard and often; but with the team playing as it was, out of the park would have been the only safe place to hit, and nobody quite managed to do that.

The Senator's followed accustomed habit of scoring from the start. Billy Sullivan drew a walk and brother Joe did the brotherly thing by sacrificing him along. Billy scored on a wild heave to first by Mann on Steer's grounder, and Steers scored from first on Jacobberger's two bagger.

Drips, who had apparently as much "stuff" as any pitcher that has appeared here, improved steadily. He allowed two hits in the second inning, but cut the locals off without a score, and by dint of two strikeouts kept them from denting the rubber in spite of three hits in the third. The next two innings he held them hitless.

But in the sixth Barham himself started the fireworks with a single, and Drips walked Joe Sullivan and Goleman. Steer's sacrifice fly scored Barham, and Jacobberger doubled again, scoring Sullivan and Goleman.

"Ducky" Drake, veteran spitball artist, relieved Drips the next inning, and held the Senators hitless for the remainder of the game. He appeared to have as much on the ball as Drips, and better control, so that fans were wondering why the former Portlander wasn't used from the start.

The visitors pulled two spectacular fielding plays, and there was much discussion of one of them. Cook, youthful first baseman, ran back and caught Goleman's foul fly falling as he did so. It looked to many of the fans as though he dropped the ball and picked it up again, but the umpire said Goleman was out. The other outstanding play occurred when Swick, center fielder, ran back and speared Edwards' long fly with one hand by jumping high in the air. This play robbed the Senators of two runs in the fifth.

LEAGUE CHAMPS GIVEN BANQUET

The championship Valley Motor and Post Office teams were banqueted last night at the Spa by members of the two city baseball leagues. "Spec" Koene, president of the two organizations was toastmaster.

Miniature gold baseball watch fobs were presented to members of the Valley Motor team. The trophies for the Post Office players have not yet reached Salem.

A report by Secretary Dodge showed the two leagues in good financial condition, with all bills paid. An average paid admission of $2.85 in the industrial league, and $2.55 in the commercial league was indicated.

W. L. Phillips and Chet Laird were honor guests at the banquet.

The German selected to come to the United States to represent her country in the international beauty contest has long hair. She won't have a chance if there are any barbers on the jury.

HELEN HAS HER OWN WORLD WAR

By BILL RITT
The little World War of tennis is on. And Helen Willis, queen of the racketeers, is on the defensive on all fronts.

Girls of four nations, eyes on the laurels that bedeck the brow of the Berkeley Beauty, this summer are making a concentrated effort to overthrow the fair Helen.

In the European sector, the young foes of Miss Willis are increasing in number and formidable ability. Even at home, in her own bailiwick of California, there is the rising menace of the comely Miss Jacobs, who aspires to the tennis throne as Queen Helen II. The sturdy, 18-year-old, Miss Jacobs has already had one brush with Miss Willis this summer and suffered defeat at the hands of the queen. But Miss Jacobs has not been definitely disposed of. Not by a long shot. Twice national girls' champion she is rapidly rounding into a star of the first water.

Two youngsters have crossed the pond, now known as Lindbergh's lake, to attack the queen-dom of Helen.

First is Betty Nuthall, chubby baby champion of Great Britain, who, despite her few 15 years, is a member of the British Wightman cup team and about the best bet the isles have had for a long time in women's tennis circles.

Close on the heels of Betty came Juffrouw Kea Bouman, first tennis star of Holland to invade these shores. Juffrouw (or Miss Bouman) immediately on her arrival here entered in the Seabright

N. J. invitational tourney boasting many American stars, including Miss Jacobs.

And over in golden Spain is a young senorita with soft eyes but steel muscles, smarting still under the defeat handed her at Wimbledon this summer by Miss Willis. European tennis followers picked Senorita Lili d'Alvarez to defeat the Berkeley Blaze at Wimbledon, and when she didn't they expressed surprise. Be sure the senorita awaits revenge with true Spanish determination.

And so there you are—with the merriest sort of little world war of sport in progress, involving four nations—America, England, Holland and Spain, the feminine Entente—all at war with our Helen, whose sole allies are her racket and her good right arm.

No doubt efforts will be made by swimming devotees in the U. S. to coax Miss Edith Jensen, Danish swimmer, to exhibit her prowess in this country within the next year.

Painted Line Divides Russia And Poland

WARSAW (AP)—All that divides the Polish frontier from the Russian, in a remote eastern corner, is a painted line.

At one point a wide road is crossed by two bars, one red and white indicating the end of Poland, then a few meters on an entirely red, marking the beginning of the Soviet territory.

Between the two bars is a neutral zone, a sort of nobody's land, where Poles and Soviets meet to settle minor border incidents such as the crossing of the frontier by a cow or hen.

Chicago's Best

At the end of the last run, Harry Scott, local Harley dealer who supplied the machines for the run, somewhat incredulous at the remarkable record, disconnected the gas line from the auxiliary tank which had been sealed before the start, and, in the presence of the observers, Newell Williams and Ray C. Abst, state traffic officer, found it to be perfectly dry, proving that no more than the original quart had been used.

Starting early in the morning under most ideal weather conditions, a course was run from the Harley Davidson shop on South Commercial, north to Hubbard and return to the fairgrounds, and thence east to a point about nine miles from Salem on the Silverton road.

Using ordinary Richfield gasoline, in the test tank, and with the motorcycle in exactly the same condition in which it had been received the night before in exchange for a new 1928 Harley, except for carburetor adjustments, releasing the spring tension on the clutch, and removing the speedometer, the trip was made at an average speed of 23 miles an hour.

Only once, at a point about five miles east of Salem on the Silverton road, was it found necessary to shift into second gear. This occurred near the end of the run, when there was but little gas left in the tank, to avoid "killing" the engine on the grade. The throttle was set at one point throughout the trip, and the gas supply into the cylinder could not be varied to meet hill conditions.

While returns of the international competition, in which there were nearly 500 entrants this year, probably will not be received here for the next two or three weeks, it is believed that Canfield will take the silver trophy and $100 offered by the Harley Davidson Motor company for first place.

Miss Clara Smith laughs of her easy win, after winning the annual Chicago river swim for girls.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

The presence in the United States of the members of the British Wightman cup squad draws the limelight to the feminine contingent of the tennis world. Joan Fry, Bettie Nuthall, et al, are occupying the center of the sport stage right now.

Juffrouw Kea Bouman of Holland, Senorita de Alvarez, of Spain and one or two other fairmaids of the continent who must be ranked among the real stars of the game are not with us, however.

Among the others is Esther Heine of South Africa. Not only is she demanding a place in the tennis sun for herself these days, but she recalls the fact that the "union" has given the game several outstanding stars.

Probably the best known of these, to America, is Brian Norton. P. D. B. Spence is another. Two women, Miss Tapscott and Mrs. Peacock, have demanded rank with the best of the continental players.

Miss Heine, however, bids fair to soar higher than her sisters. She is but 17 now and despite her youth shows a dashing type of play of the Helen Willis type. Her back-court game has been called little short of perfect already. She is developing a sureness which fits her for this long driving game, too.

She has already demonstrated her skill on British courts.

The New York state boxing commission threatens to do dire things to Tex Rickard in reprisal for the shifting of the second Dempsey-Tunney battle to Chicago.

Which places the commission in a ridiculous position—that of attempting to punish Rickard for his own shortcomings.

Failure of the commission to come to an agreement with Rickard over the admission price not only cost the New York fans a chance to see the title mill, but, with the same fell swoop, deprived the jolly state treasury of something like $20,000 it would have derived as the commission's share of the proceeds. This would have helped defray the expenses of the commission for some time at least.

Rickard's answer to any threat in the future will be to take his fight to some other city. Which won't please the residents of New York who like to attend prize fights or profit from the crowds drawn.

Miss Jensen has drawn the limelight on the European continent in recent months with her endurance feats in the water. Last spring she set what is called a world's record for continuous swimming by remaining in the water 23 1/2 hours. Early in the summer she performed the spectacular feat of swimming around Heligoland in the remarkable time of three hours and 47 minutes.

More recently she swam the sound between Sweden and Denmark. The distance is estimated at 25 kilometers. Her trip took her from Barsbaeck, Sweden, to Klampenborg, a point north of Copenhagen.

JACK WOULD TRAIN FOR FIGHT QUIETLY

CHICAGO, AUG. 8. (AP)—Jack Dempsey wishes to train in private, with the public barred and his training performance open only to newspaper correspondents.

The former world's heavyweight champion advised Tex Rickard of his desire today, adding he will arrive in Chicago Aug. 18 to open the campaign for the title bout with Gene Tunney in Soldiers field Sept. 22.

Dempsey told Rickard in a communication from Los Angeles that Leo P. Flynn, his manager, would arrive in Chicago by the end of the week to select a training site. Several resorts and country clubs and the Lincoln Fields race course, have wired Dempsey to consider their facilities.

The Dempsey camp will be located close to Chicago, Rickard said, as both Dempsey and Flynn want to spot within an hour's ride of the city.

Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, also is expected before the end of the week to select a training camp. Tunney likewise has expressed a desire to have his camp located near Chicago so newspaper correspondents may visit without being forced to ride great distances to make the two camps.

Rickard returned to New York today for the Delaney-Paulino fight Thursday night. With that match out of the way, Rickard will dash back to Chicago with his entire staff of assistants to remain until after the Dempsey-Tunney affair.

Rickard explained the ticket prices would be scaled at $40, $30, $20, $15, $10, and $5, war tax included.
