Will Turn Up Safe and Sound—I Just Know It" Says Mrs. Scott

"My boy will turn up safe and sound—I just know it," said Mrs. Scott as she fought against tears. Just a year ago this month, this same mother waited in suspense. For it was in August of last year that her son, then navigator of the forty foot yacht Jubilo in the Honolulu yacht race was lost at sea for seven days. "Gordon turned up then," said Mrs. Scott smiling, "and he will do it again. "Gordon is a navigator. We cannot understand what has happened to delay them. It may be some schooner without radio apparatus has picked them up."

VACATION ENJOYED

LOCAL LOCKSMITH TAKES TRIP INTO MOUNTAINS

After having been in business for a number of years in Salem without a vacation, Alvin B. Stewart, locksmith, of 347 Court street, recently took two weeks' off and made up for considerable lost time, according to the story of his trip which he is telling to friends.

Accompanied by W. C. Gehman, local oculist, and Arthur Welch, of the postoffice force, Stewart left Salem on July 30 packing in to Indian lake, where they spent three days of fishing. The catch was plentiful, Stewart reports, but the fish were unfit to eat because of the spawning season.

Welch brought the packhorse back on the trail, while the other two hiked down Thomas creek, a distance of about 14 miles, returning home on Wednesday.

Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left on an auto trip going to the coast by way of Corvallis. Northward from Newport they proceeded, stopping in Cutler City and De Lake to visit friends, and meeting a party in Astoria which included some old school mates of Stewart's, whom he had not seen for a number of years.

Sunday morning they returned to Salem, only to leave again Monday for Central Oregon by way of The Dalles. Going down to Redmond and west to Sisters, the party visited Suttle lake and Fish lake, and camped for a time on the Metolius river, where the fishing was found to be particularly good, with the limit of Dolly Vardens and rainbow trout easily secured every day. Stewart tells some particularly good fish stories about that part of his trip.

The return was made over the McKenzie pass, the Stewarts arriving here Friday night after over a week of touring the best part of the state.

Stewart says that all the roads encountered on the trip were in good shape, but that Clatsop county, just south of Seaside, has the best road he traveled over on the whole trip. The trip up the coast over the new Roosevelt highway, he declares, is bound to be one of the most popular drives in the west.

J. WILLOS ACCORDED REPRIEVE FOR WEEK

history of the case of the State of Oregon against James Willos and Ellsworth Kelley, the gallows has been cheated, and for the second time the sentence of death pronounced against the men has proven at least temporarily futile. Never before, however, have the men approached legal death so closely, only to avert it by some narrow margin.

Ellsworth Kelley, under death sentence for his part in the fatal shooting of John Sweeney and Milton Molman, and the wounding of Lute Savage, penitentiary guards who sought to prevent an escape from the institution on the evening of August 12, 1925, is of habeas corpus granted Wednesday less than 48 hours before he was to have dropped through the death trap.

James Willos, who was also sentenced to death this morning at 8:30 for the same crime, was unable to secure a writ of habeas corpus or mandamus but was snatched from the gallows when a seven day reprieve granted by the governor and telegraphed from Grants Pass, arrived at the penitentiary at 5:25 p. m. yesterday evening.

Eleventh hour efforts had been exerted to the limit to save the two men in what is said to be the hardest fought criminal case in the history of the state.

A petition for a stay of execution for Willos pending determination of his sanity was filed in Circuit Judge L. H. McMahan's court yesterday, and hearing set for 7 o'clock in the evening, but hearing was postponed until today, upon arrival of the reprieve from the governor.

Stay of execution for Kelley became automatically effective, when Judge McMahan allowed Kelley's attorney's until 2 p. m.

today to make reply to a return of writ of habeas corpus filed by Willis S. Moore, assistant attorney general, which had been granted Wednesday.

Three affidavits of Willos' insanity were filed in court yesterday, bearing the signatures of Elma Miller, a sister, Bradley A. Ewers, attorney for Willos in his appeal from the state supreme court to the supreme court of the United States, and Robert Miller, a brother of the condemned man. Willos, in his cell at the penitentiary, the affidavits declare, speaks in undertones, talks incoherently, interrupts conversation by mumbles, quotes
