Spooner of Portland for her work of writing sets of objective tests in history to be published in the Oregon Educational Journal during the coming year. A third resolution was passed with regard to the appointment of county representatives to promote objective testing through the state and open a campaign for membership in the association.

SALEM BID POPULAR

KIWANIS DELEGATES FAVORABLE TO 1929 MEET HERE

Following a barrage of publicity pamphlets and invitations printed on cloth made from flax grown and manufactured by the Oregon Linen Mills, sentiment at the Kiwanis convention in Spokane was markedly favorable toward accepting Salem's invitation to act as host in 1929, according to reports of delegates given at the Kiwanis luncheon yesterday noon.

Victoria, B. C., was the only other city to enter a bid for the convention. This city had the sessions six years ago, so Salem's invitation with the proper backing should be accepted, it was said. If that event, about 1,000 Kiwanians would gather here.

Much surprise was expressed by delegates at the convention at the fact that linen was manufactured in Salem. One dealer in aeroplane wing cloth stated he would send a representative to this city to investigate the possibility of securing that product from the local mill. At present, it is imported from Europe.

Great growth of the Kiwanis club in the northwest district was shown in the reports. Sixteen new clubs have been organized since 1925, and the membership now totals 4,485.

Dr. Henry Morris, Sam Chambers, Frank Doerfler, Rev. Norman K. Tully, and Nate Elliott were representatives of the local club at the convention. All gave brief reports.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
The combination of artistry of the first order with the human touch, so eloquent in its appeal as to grip the spectator with a brand of steel, is the thing that brings a motion picture up to the heights that approach sublimity. The subtle touches that present a poignant moment of intense emotion, yet do not fall to create the effect of a beautiful picture—that is the true art of the silent drama.

To this end the best efforts of directors, players, cameramen and actors must be directed with that idea inevitably and invariably in their minds.

One of the finest examples of this is to be found in George Fitzmaurice's production for First National Pictures called "The Tender Hour," which began what promises to be a most successful engagement at the Elsinore Theater last night.

Oregon Theater
"Chang," the marvelous motion picture which has been playing the past week at the Oregon theater, finishes with tonight's performance. Those who have not seen this production should take this last opportunity today while you have the chance at popular prices.

The most famous comedy team in the history of motion picture has been reunited. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, the pair of laugh-makers which set the world in an uproar of joy in "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now" appear together once more in "Firemen, Save My Child" which reaches the Oregon tomorrow.

DISINTERESTED LABOR OF LOVE

Richfield Oil People Aid in Attempt to Conserve Forest Resources

The Richfield Oil company of California has an attractive advertisement in this morning's Statesman in which they say nothing about their products. They plead for the protection of forests.

For the past five years the Richfield people have been active each season in devoting a portion of their advertising to urge the prevention of forest fires.

As a work of art, and for its forceful wording, the advertisement in this issue is worth looking up and reading, and studying and thinking about—and of following in its suggestive conclusions.

Oregon, above any other state in the Union, is interested in forest fire prevention, and in the conservation of its great timber resources that they may be used wisely and handed on to coming generations.

Hardware Store Bought by Salem Man, Reported

STAYTON, ORE., AUG. 30.—(Special)—Charles Parrish, who bought out the Adams Hardware company last spring, yesterday closed a deal with a Salem man who takes over the entire stock and fixtures and will conduct the business. Mr. Parrish plans to retire.

The Misses Laura and Cora Turnidge arrived here Friday and are the guests at the Cary C. Nott home. The young ladies are teachers in the Oregon schools and are en route home to Eugene after an extended auto trip which took them as far as Alberta, Canada.

THEFT CASE WAITS

RICHMAN HELD UNDER BOND, VAN FLEET RELEASED

The case of Roy Rickman and Eugene Van Fleet, charged with larceny of an automobile Sunday night, came up before Justice of the Peace Bratler Small yesterday afternoon, and was continued as to both men. Van Fleet was released on his own recognizance without bail, but Rickman, who is accused of having been the driver of the car, was committed to the county jail upon his failure to furnish $3000 bail.

No charges have been pressed against either of the men in connection with a party which police indicated was staged with two women who were taken out in the auto. The car was gone until after 9 o'clock Monday morning, when it was recovered, and the arrest made upon the appearance of the party at the home of the two women.

When he appeared before Judge Small yesterday afternoon Van Fleet insisted that he had nothing to do with the actual theft of the car, but was only a passenger.

WANT NEW HIGHWAY UP FROM PORTLAND

Road to Salem Via Butteville Would Shorten Distance 8 Miles

Portland, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Engineers were ordered today by the state highway commission to proceed with preparations for construction of 27 miles of the central Oregon highway, the Bend-to-Burns road. The work will start this year, it was said, as quickly as the engineering force can prepare. Bids will be called for the September meeting for a section of the same highway in Harney county—a section from Buchanan to Vandever, via Nigger Flat, a common point.

The survey of the department on the Bend to Burns road reduces the distance greatly. The cost of grading the entire route is estimated at $287,000. The 27 mile stretch to be started on is between Millican and Hampton.

This is a trans-state highway on which comparatively little work has been done thus far.

As financial arrangements have been made with Lane county, the commission announced today that bids will be opened at the September meeting for four miles of the Willamette highway, starting from Lowell Bridge, and that this project will be followed immediately by advertising a second four mile stretch. The commission directed, too, that bids be called for a new bridge at Blue River, Lane county.

Many large delegations appeared before the commission to-
