H. L. Berry of Bellingham,

SHE PREFERS TO BE OBSERVED

Watch her. She expects it. This is the ancient and honorable rite of dressing a salad. And she is a past master.

Lightly conversing with her partner she pours and mixes and peppers and stirs.

Two Venetian glass cruets, a silver bowl, pepper pots and shakers. These are her magic tools.

And this is the incantation she is whispering to herself:

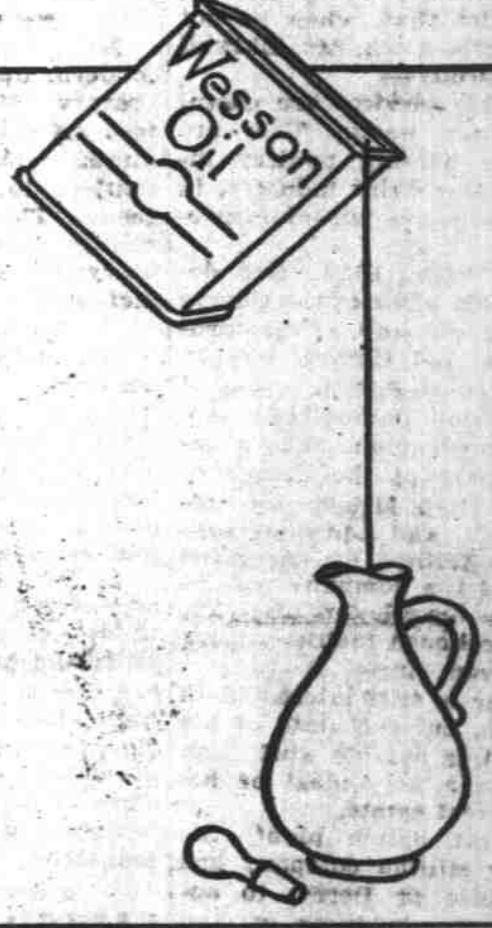

"Three parts Wesson Oil—one part vinegar." But sometimes when she wants a tart dressing she puts in two parts of vinegar or lemon juice, instead. If your vinegar or lemons are especially sour, why then use less. Salt it and pepper it and add a touch of paprika.

It is a charming custom to mix French Dressing at the table. It gives your dinner a nice note of individuality. And it means a freshly blended dressing. That is always important.

You can make this pleasant ceremony pleasanter by adding various condiments to this simple Wesson Oil French Dressing. A bit of Chili sauce for a vegetable salad; a few slivers of pickles, or a little Worcestershire Sauce for simple salads of greens.

Wesson Oil is very delicate in flavor. It is very wholesome and good to eat in itself and it blends in French Dressing just as you want it to.

Dressing Correctly for All Fall's Activities

WITH the glories of Autumn bursting forth in flagrant foliage what fascinating vistas of newness and smartness are opened to the woman whose joy is in being discriminatingly dressed!

And what satisfaction to know that she will have selected at Wilson's just the costumes to give the right zest to these Fall activities.

NEW CONSTITUTION VOTED AT NORMAL

OREGON NOT AS STRICT AS EAST, SAYS LIBRARIAN

Censorship of books in Oregon is not as strict as in Boston, Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, told the Rotary club yesterday noon.

Many of the books which are taboo in Massachusetts find their way into Oregon homes through the state library. As long as nothing indecent is circulated, Oregon citizens are entitled to have the books they want, declared Miss Marvin. Some of the modern fiction books have a waiting list of considerable proportions.

Books of a frivolous and an unbecomingly nature by mediocre authors, however, are not purchased, even though there are numerous requests for them.

Miss Marvin narrated the growth of book circulation in Oregon from the time the state library was established 22 years ago to the present day. The state library grew from a single book with one librarian to its present influence. One-third of the people in Oregon now receive direct service, and others are occasional users.

At present there are 25,000 mailing order patrons, 30,000 registered readers, and numerous other people served by the 610 branch libraries. Five demonstration libraries are maintained while 122,519 volumes were sent out in 36,000 shipments last year.

A new feature which is expected to be of inestimable value to people who live in isolated districts is the establishment of so-called "little libraries." Seven hundred ten of the 1613 one room rural schools in Oregon are supplied with libraries of about 25 volumes each. The books sent are those such as would be of most interest to the young pupils.

For the $1800 which Marion county contributes each year to support of the library, 6,500 books are loaned to residents here. Direct service to local patrons had to be discontinued because of interference with the mail order business, the chief purpose of the library, Miss Marvin said.

Woodland Smoking Prohibited BATES' Ore.—Persons may not smoke while in motion—that is, while walking, driving or riding—in the national forests, under a code for smokers drawn up at a meeting of forest officials here.

She Objects "Mommer," said Marion, "I wish people wouldn't speak of me as a bride elect. It sounds as if I had won Charles in a competition." "But if he picked you in preference to the others isn't that complimentary?" "Yes, but some of the girls may claim I was elected by a small majority."

New for Fall

All Student Activities Placed In Own Hands; Grad Manager Provided

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, Aug. 31.—(Special).—By an overwhelming majority of votes the new constitution was accepted by the student body of the Oregon Normal School here Monday. The work of drafting a more up-to-date constitution for the normal school has been in the hands of a committee of four students and the results of their labor is considered one of the most outstanding achievements of the summer session. The new constitution has been patterned after those being used at the Universities of Oregon and Washington.

The committee having charge of this work is composed of Wayne Harding of Sherwood, chairman; Earl Stewart of Monmouth; Vada Rutherford of Ontario and Florence Steele of Portland.

One of the salient features of the new constitution is the placing of all student body activities directly in the hands of the students. The new ruling will go into effect at the beginning of the fall term, September 26, 1927.

Another new feature is the adoption of the graduate student manager system. The student council, committees and other student departments have been greatly changed and reorganized. Provisions have been made for the opening of a cooperative book store, which will begin to function two years hence. It will be strictly controlled by the student body.

Before coming up to vote in the student body the new constitution received the full approval of
