OREGON NOT GIVEN CREDIT FOR CROP

Boxes of prunes are piled high in Montana stores and they all bear the Washington label, declared George Gutekunst, of Roth Grocery company, who returned this week from a three weeks' trip through that section. What, more, he says, prices are steady, running around $1.39 for a big ten pound box, and intensive advertising is carried on in the daily papers to stimulate buying.

Not a single Oregon label was noticed on any box of fruit displayed, California being emblazoned on those which did not bear Washington. The same condition holds true in Missouri, Mr. Gutekunst declared.

Gravenstein apples are displayed with the sale price 15 cents per pound or $5 per box. Retailers in Chicago were making heavy sales at that price. The apple crop in that section is almost a complete failure because of the frost last winter.

The fresh Italian prune is advertised there as an ideal canning fruit, because of its free space and the saving in sugar which results from the heavy content of fruit sugar. Housewives are buying heavily for canning purposes.

Dried prunes are being sold at 17 cents per pound, or five pounds for 85 cents.

Washington Fighter Goes To Draw With Californian

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., fighting tonight for the first time as a light heavyweight, was held to a draw in his ten round bout with Ernie Owens of Los Angeles.

The sports writers at the ring-side differed with Referee Freddy Gilmore's decision. Some gave Lomski five of the rounds while others six with the remainder Owens' or even.

Owens had but one good round, the tenth, when he landed a right to Lomski's chin. Lomski was staggering about the ring, but Owens failed to follow up, falling instead into a clinch.

Otherwise Lomski gave Owens a steady beating. He walloped the Los Angeles fighter about the head and body, dropping left hooks to Owens' head and right and lefts to the body.

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Capitol Theater

One of Lon Chaney's strangest disguises adorns him in "Mockery," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle now playing at the Capitol theater. Chaney plays a strange, half-animal Russian peasant in the new picture, a graphic romance of the Russian revolution directed by Benjamin Christensen the noted Danish director of "The Devil's Circus," in which Norma Shearer was starred.

Ricardo Cortez has a featured role in the new Chaney picture, and heads a cast that includes Barbara Bedford, Charles Puffy, Mack Swain, Emily Fitzroy and Kai Schmidt. These players have been directed by Christensen with such uncanny skill that they seem to be living their roles rather than acting them. The film abounds in tense situations and has been produced on an elaborate scale, with the result that the picture is infinitely well worth seeing. Lon Chaney fans in particular will find entertainment vastly to their liking in "Mockery." Chaney having found in this picture one of the most vivid and dramatic roles in his career.

Elsinore Theater

Salem has a chance to show its appreciation of the best of the motion picture industry has yet contributed, "Metropolis" the UFA production which Paramount presented at the Elsinore theater last night deserves the support of every movie-goer in town. It can safely be said, without any fear of contradiction, that the picture goes just a bit further than any other film has ever done.

"Metropolis" is the imaginative tale of what our old earth will be like in the year 2027. If we're to believe this remarkable picture, airplanes will be as common as taxis. Buildings will shoot right up to the sky. The rich will live in beautiful homes on the surface, machine rooms will be down below and the workmen's homes will be located thousands of feet beneath. Huge elevators will be used in taking the men to work. Instead of names, each will have a number.

We are introduced to Eric Masterman, son of the master mind of Metropolis. Tired of his own empty life, he goes down to see how his father's men exist. There he falls in love with Mary, the magnetic daughter of a workman.

The joyous, care-free spirit of youth is to be found in the open of his aunts, and before the first reel is over that white love has turned to purpled passion. Then, in rapid-fire succession come despair, abandonment, buoyant humor and utter indulgence, life, death spiritual rebirth following vile degradation, imprisonment, exile, bitterness and yearning, sacrifice and "Resurrection" itself. The gamut of emotions through which Blanche Walsh on the stage and Mary Garden in opera have swept in the part of Katusha, Maslova is now the course of Dolores del Rio in "Resurrection," while Rod La Rocque loves and leaves and loves again in the dramatic role of Dmitri, the part which Sir Herbert Beerbohm-Tree created in London in 1903.

Edwin Carewe's reason for filming "Resurrection" was given last week by the director himself, who played the role of Prince Dmitri on the American stage in 1905. "The emotional scale is traversed by both Dmitri and Katusha," said Carewe, "and it is the one great story wherein man and woman alike suffer and triumph in sacrifice. I have always thought Tolstoy's story the most dramatic work in existence."

"Personality is the biggest asset in business," declared Edward Westfield, member of the San Francisco firm of Beckman Hollister and company, business engineers, in an address before the Kiwanis club at yesterday's luncheon.

Investigations by his firm have shown, declared Mr. Westfield, that 90 per cent of business failures are due to individuals in the business. Dun and Bradstreet, he said, show 82.4 per cent of all failures as "individual failures."

"Too much stress has been placed upon the technical side of business which includes location, quality of merchandise, advertising, price of the merchandise, and technical knowledge. A business to operate successfully must have the human element in proper proportion."

A general tendency toward better ethics in business is being evidenced throughout the country, Mr. Westfield reported. Mrs. Marguerite D. McDonald sang two numbers at the luncheon, accompanied by Professor T. S. Roberts.
