Miss Marlowe Miller and Gail Jones Announce Betrothal

The betrothal of Miss Marlowe Esther Miller and Mr. Gail Jones was announced last night when she entertained members of the T. H. D. club and a few additional guests at her home on Ferry street.

A dainty four course luncheon was served and the affair was in the nature of a birthday party, since it was the birthday of Miss Bertha Miller, sister of the bride-elect. The guests were unaware that they were not celebrating this event until the third course, when "tiny" messages concealed in small cakes revealed the secret.

Messenger place cards carried the names of the following, Melba Robinson, Mita Chambers, Gladys Rafferty, Reta Claggett, Elsie Voekel, Pauline Patterson, Bertha Orford, Gladys McKee, Gwendolyn Jennings, Ruth Ullman, Bertha Miller and the honor guest, Miss Marlowe Miller.

Miss Florence Miller and Miss Clara Miller assisted in the serving.

Orange marigolds and blue tapers centered the luncheon table. Miss Miller is a daughter of E. C. Miller and has been employed at the Marion County Child Health Demonstration Bureau since shortly after its organization in Salem. Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones of Silverton. Both young people have a wide circle of friends.

Their marriage will be an event of early fall.

VALUES

A sparrow in a thorn-bush;
A lily in the swale;
A little chipmunk frisking
Along a lichened rail.

Oh, little things, and simple,
They move me to the quick;
A little bird, a little beast,
A flower I chance to pick.

Though these are only trifles,
Fragments and minute,
Tis in terms of trifling things
That men their lives compute.
