Radio has taken on a fascination and a seriousness never before conceived. In fact, plans are now being made for international broadcasting—according to an expert from the Department of Commerce. Today broadcasting is regarded with the same importance abroad as in this country, both from the individual and official governmental viewpoints.

Although there are millions of sets in use, it is estimated that there will be millions more sold in this country this year owing to the remarkable improvement made in broadcasting and in receiving-sets.

For those not possessing a set, the National Home Demonstration Week, planned this week by local radiola dealers, presents an unusual opportunity to get acquainted with the wonderful things that are in the air and daily and almost hourly.
