File Amended Complaint—
An amended complaint in the divorce case of May Laszinka vs. Henry Laszinka was filed in circuit court yesterday. The two were married on the 18th of June of this year. The defendant's answer to the amended complaint was also filed yesterday. The local attorney represents the plaintiff in the case served as notary public when verification of the answer was made. The amended complaint recites that the defendant, Henry Laszinka, has been guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment toward the plaintiff, and of personal indignities rendering life burdensome, and that among other things he falsely accused her of improper relations with other men.

Many Take Advocates—
A total of 245,000 church Advocates are circulated in the United States every week, according to a report by Dr. O. G. Markham, general agent for the Methodist book concern, to the Oregon conference yesterday. 13.9 per cent of Portland Methodists subscribe to the Pacific Christian Advocate. The Portland office of the Methodist Book concern did a business of $145,000 in 1926. As far as is known, it is the only business concern which sends out bills yearly instead of monthly.

Plan Book Depository—
A depository of the Methodist book concern probably will be established in Portland at an early date, it was said, at the conference yesterday. The Portland sales office reported a big business during the past year. A check for $1965 representing the dividend due the Oregon conference out of the profits of the publishing company was handed to Bishop Shepard yesterday. Dr. O. G. Markham, general agent of the house in Chicago, made a report to the conference.

Juniors nominated Gerald Simpson, Maxine Myers, Wesley Heise, and George Beecher, all of whom were automatically elected. The sophomores chose Winfred Giese and Phyllis Day as their two representatives.

Bits For Breakfast
Going by itself—
That is the meaning of the word automotive—

Something like alis volat propriis (she flies with her own wings), the motto of Oregon. And the automotive industries of Salem are true to their name; going stronger each year, too.

But not strong enough yet. We must make 'em; and make tires and tubes and tops and trailers for them, and all the other things and thingumbobs.

The Methodist churches of Oregon report increased attendance and benevolences. Live wires. Connected up with the dynamos of progress and piety.

It should have been started long ago, the movement for a Jason Lee monument, a missionary memorial, and a Methodist mission pageant—

But since it has not been started yet, this diamond jubilee year of the Methodist conference is an appropriate time to start it.

Crowded paper again this morning, and perhaps a 24 page paper tomorrow. The new press will be ready to go in a week or two weeks more, and relieve the mechanical pressure. Salem is ready for a larger and better and more resilient Statesman, which the new press will give.

700 Men Employed to Sell Sandwiches and Soft Drinks

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Five tons of hams, aside from those selected by Mr. Rickard to perform in the preliminary bouts, will be cut into 200,000 or more buns for consumption in the stadium. There also will be 300,000 bottles of mineral water, 150,000 bottles of pop, etc., sold by a force of more than 700 men.

Although fair, cool weather is forecast for tomorrow night, merchants did a land office business today in selling slickers and raincoats and top coats.

IDENTITY MISTAKEN

REALTOR'S CAR NOT STOLEN, JUST DRIVES AWAY

The next time R. E. Anderson, local realtor, parks his Buick car on the streets of Salem, he is going to have a little sign tacked up on the front door—"Warning to Buick Owners—Look Before You Leap Into this Car."

All the police officers from Portland to Eugene were suspiciously eyeing all Buicks that drove into town for a while yesterday, having been advised that the car was stolen. All the while Anderson's car was serenely resting in the local Buick garage here in Salem.

It all happened thus: About 2:30 in the afternoon Mr. Anderson parked his car at the corner of High and Ferry streets and went on about his business. About 4 he had a trip to make to Jefferson. Walking out to the corner where he left his car, he held his breath when he discovered the car was gone. At the same time he noticed another fine Buick standing in the street parked parallel with the position he had left his. Becoming convinced that the car had been stolen, he reported the matter to local police officers who immediately broadcasted a description of it to all surrounding cities.

About two hours later Mr. Anderson noticed that the other Buick was still standing out in the street, apparently deserted. Getting the license number and other data, it was not long before he discovered that a mechanic from the local Buick garage had driven the car to this point to get some supplies, and coming out of the store, inadvertently got into Mr. Anderson's car, drove it back to the garage and went on about his work.

An amusing incident, relates Mr. Anderson, is that last evening he and Mrs. Anderson drove to Corvallis to visit their son. Arriving there, and driving into the curb in front of a restaurant where they intended to get supper, they noticed a policeman surveying their car with apparent interest. They went on in the restaurant, got their supper, and came out, expecting to be placed under arrest. The policeman was still there, but made no attempt to intercept them as they got back in their car and started for home.

A Russian peasant claims to have lived 132 years. Maybe so, and yet, having lived in Russia it may just seem that long.
