INFINITY

Then let me rest beneath some singing pine
Upon a solitary hill.
Where there are blossoming orchards
Filled with eager spring.
And valleys green with growing grain,
Meadows where happy cattle lie,
A river where the sails drift to the sea,
Fields where the wind blows the rippling grass,
Into soft murmurs of content.
There I shall rest in peace,
And my freed spirit will be,
A bluebird in the apple trees,
A singing voice in every wayside brook,
A droning of a honey laden bee,
The touch of the caressing wind,
The eternal spirit of all things sweet and good.

Annual Horse Show is Center of Interest This Week

Horse owners and horse lovers of the Pacific Northwest are much interested in the annual horse show which will be held in the stadium at the state fair grounds, beginning tomorrow evening and continuing the five remaining evenings of the week. This show, which is the center of interest this week, is one of the outstanding features of the Oregon State Fair. Much evidence is evidenced in the splendid new hackney pair, Stella Vane and Buckley Velle, imported recently from England by Aaron M. Frank of Portland. This pair easily outclassed all American showing at the annual horse show held late in the summer in Stockton, California. Mr. Frank will also enter other prize horses; among them Patty Miller, Loukspring, California, and Aloma.

Fred A. Martin of Garden Home will be ringmaster this year, and Mat Cohen of Los Angeles, director of the Ambassador horse show, will act as judge.

Mrs. C. Edward Grelle, owner of Shikara, the beautiful horse that won seven blue ribbons as well as the five-gaited championship at last year's fair, will be among the Portland exhibitors.

James Nicol of Hillsdale, Miss Mary Patricia McGowan of Ilwaco, Washington; Mrs. J. R. Held, Oswald West, and Mr. W. F. Turner of Portland; Dr. A. E. Graham of Montague, California; and Edward Munford of Stockton will be other competitors.

J. D. Farrell of Seattle will bring his prize winning string from the north and George L. A. Bauer also of Seattle, will be an exhibitor this year.

The string from the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis will give colorful feature numbers each evening, and the riders from the Portland Hunt Club, Portland Riding Academy, Olympic Driving and Riding Club, and the Seattle

Riding Club, will compete again this year.

The annual driving competition between the heavy six in hand draft horses will be features of each evening's program.

Governor Patterson, Mr. Frank, and Mr. Turner have offered prizes in the various classifications.

Salem Branch of Sigma Kappa Sorority Formed
A Salem branch of the national sorority Sigma Kappa, was formed Friday evening.

The group will meet each second Wednesday evening. The first meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Imah.

Interesting Salem Guest Has Compiled Real Southern Recipes

What visions of culinary art float before your eyes when you hear the expression, "southern cookery!" Perhaps you think of beaten biscuits, fried chicken, sweet potatoes southern style, or cornbread. These recipes as well as those of countless other mouth-watering delicacies have been compiled by Miss Katherine Bell, a young girl of Memphis, Tennessee, under the title, "Mama's Cook-Book."

This slim red book, which may be obtained from any of the leading bookstores of Salem, contains the choicest recipes of her own darky mammy, Sallie Mills, and each one bears the stamp of fastidious southern approval.

Thinking that readers of The Statesman might be interested in "trying out" a southern dish or two, Miss Bell has permitted the publication of several of her favorite recipes. They are as follows:

Fried Chicken, Southern Style:
Get a young chicken, about 1 1/2 pounds, not over 2 pounds. Cut off wings and legs, separating first and second joints. Split chicken down the middle between the breast and back. Brake back in center, cut from chicken and flatten out. Cut breast down center, making two pieces.

Wash it thoroughly and let stand about an hour in bowl of ice. Then wipe on towel, salt and pepper both sides of each piece and roll well in flour that has a good pinch of soda mixed in it. Have each piece well covered. Have ready an iron frying pan of boiling hot lard.

Put chicken in and cover with frying over a very slow fire. Turn chicken while frying several times. It should be golden brown in half an hour, when it should be removed to a piece of heavy brown paper until crisp and dry. Place in hot dish in warmer and garnish with parsley.

Corn Bread.
2 cups white cornmeal
2 rounded teaspoons shortening
1 heaping tablespoon flour
2 eggs
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 heaping teaspoon baking powder

Thin with milk (about 1-2 cup). Mix into half the cornmeal the salt, sugar and shortening, and scald it with a little boiling water.

The real South American chinchilla; in no way connected with the so-called chinchilla rabbit. There are only two captive herds of the Real Chinchilla in existence.

Facts:

There are less than 125 Real Chinchillas in captivity in the world. One of the only two herds is in Oregon. Their fur is the most sought after the most expensive and by far the most beautiful in the world. Pelts bring from $100 to $250 each. Wraps of Real Chinchilla retail for $30,000 to $80,000.

This animal is the easiest of all animals to raise. They are vegetarians. Three Chinchillas consume no more food than one chicken. Can be raised in small space. No disease or parasite is known to them and they live to be 30 to 35 years of age. They breed three times a year, producing one to four pups to a litter. The young breed when three or four months old.

A money making opportunity

Remarkable success has been achieved during the last eight years in the breeding of Chinchillas. Today there is no fur bearing animal in captivity that can rival the Real Chinchilla as a money maker. Use the coupon below to get our plan.

Three people own all the Real Chinchillas in existence in captivity. It can be easily seen that the world supply must come from us. When you figure the low cost of feed and care, the rapid increase in herds, and the high market price of pelts, you can readily understand why fortunes will be made in this new industry.

A real opportunity is open to you, if you will only investigate the past and future of this rare animal. Write today for the complete information. Sign and mail the coupon below:
