$50,000 Case Removed—

The case, amounting to slightly under $50,000 claimed damages, which was recently brought in circuit court here against the American Car and Foundry Motors company, was yesterday removed to federal court on the ground of di-iversity of citizenship of parties plaintiff and defendant. The defendant corporation is not an Oregon corporation. It was being sued in four different actions by R. S. Foster, Naomi Foster, A. E. King and Helen B. King, each action growing out of an accident on the Pacific highway north of Salem, in which a collision occurred between a car in which the four plaintiffs were riding and a bus owned by the defendant corporation. C. R. Hosler is named as defendant along with the company.

BOYS AND GIRLS CLUBS

HAVE LARGE EXHIBITS

son, Yamhill, Marion, Columbia, Coos, Curry and Union. Especial attention was called to the booths of Coos and Curry counties, Marion county and Polk county.

The large booth occupied by the Coos and Curry boys' and girls' club exhibit was artistically decorated. Sewing and art work graced the walls. In a tempting array on the shelves canned fruit attracted the attention. Fruits of the season, potatoes, corn and vegetables added to the splendid exhibit.

The Marion county booth, located in one corner of the room, presented a very pleasing appearance. The walls were in white with large four leaf clovers as the decorations. Sewing and art work occupied a prominent place and these exhibits were augmented with splendid samples of corn, potatoes, fruits and flowers.

Polk county may well be called the "land of honey" judging from the exhibit in the booth. "One of the very best" was the label given the Polk boys' and girls' club showing. Autumn leaves gave the touch of fall, fair time.

Sewing exhibits, fancy work and art covered the walls, while potatoes, corn and vegetables were artistically arranged around the counter. Then last but by no means least attention was called to the display of honey. Honey in combs and honey in cans graced the center of the booth space. It was delicious in appearance and so added to Polk's fame.

During the day various demonstrations were being staged by teams from 23 counties in the state. Each county is privileged to send one or more teams consisting of two of the team. These demonstrations will cover practically every phase of club work and will continue during the week.

According to J. E. Calavan, supervisor of the club work some 1200 boys and girls will have exhibits at the fair, and over 500 are expected to be guests this year. This means that 23 counties will be ably represented by their boys and girls in various lines of endeavor. As an added attraction prizes for various exhibits have been offered to the amount of $7,500.

The boys' and girls' club work started in 1912 as home work. By 1914 the work had progressed to the extent that the federal government was giving some assistance; but as yet there was no organization. In 1916 the work was organized and now it is being conducted through the cooperation of the federal government, Oregon Agricultural College and the state department of education.

Clubs are to be found in practically every section of the state and the project work includes work along the following lines: crops, animals, domestic science, art, dairy herd records, poultry, rabbits, home beautification and farm accounting.

JIMMY JAMS

BOBBY ASKED ME TO PLAY IN HIS HOUSE BUT I'D RATHER PLAY IN CHUBBY'S HOUSE 'CAUSE HIS MA'S GOT THE BEST PRESERVES—

on the opening day, had a great deal to do with attracting attendance yesterday. Fair officials have always been hard put for some big event on the opening day. Interest in the exhibits was high yesterday. The quantity and quality of blooded stock has never been better, and the 13 large barns are completely filled, as are three tents rushed from Seattle to house the overflow. The arrival of two trainloads of stock from the western Washington fair at Puyallup didn't help matters any.

All Space Filled

Hog entries are particularly great. They occupy one of the big tents. Cattle and sheep are also being exhibited in great numbers, and the work of judging the animals will require a great deal of intensive effort on the part of the officials.

Exhibitors were at work all morning lining up their displays and many of them were not completely ready until noon. Twenty-six Oregon counties are represented with exhibits in the agricultural pavilion and 19 counties are represented with booths in the boys' and girls' club building. A particularly attractive arrangement was that of Josephine county, with the name of the county spelled out in grapes of three different varieties and colors.

Marion county's display consists of a choice collection of fruits, grain and vegetables. Onions and tomatoes make up the center piece. Sheathes of grain are predominant. The display is in charge of W. Edwards.

Judging in all livestock divisions of the fair began at 9:30 a. m. and continued throughout the day. So numerous are the entries, that finals in the judging will not take place until late in the week.

Boys' and girls' club exhibitors lined up at the club building in the morning for a photograph, and in the afternoon canning demonstrations between teams proved of interest. Many people took advantage of the opportunity to view the young folk's work.

The horse show in the stadium was the big event last night on the fair program, but the great white way of carnival attractions interested many. The side shows and
