COURT GRANTS NEW HEARING BUILDING CASE

Possibility Develops That Structure for Offices May
Yet Be Built

DECISION GIVEN TUESDAY

Backers of $600,000 Establishment
Take Heart After Earlier
Ruling Holding Law Unconstitutional

Possibility that the new office building on the state capitol grounds may yet become an accomplished fact under a bill enacted by the 1927 state legislature was seen yesterday when the state supreme court allowed rehearing in the two suits brought to enjoin the state board of control from supplying the money.

The bill as passed by the legislature and signed by the governor provided that $600,000 for the new building be borrowed from the funds of the state industrial accident commission.

Two Suits Attack
Shortly after the bill went into effect, and before the board of control had time to take any definite steps in the matter, two suits were brought simultaneously in circuit court here to prevent the project being carried out.

Although the two suits were entirely separate, the complaints were worded very similarly and came from the same Portland law office, giving rise to the belief that the same parties were behind both suits. One was instituted by the Eastern and Western Lumber company, as employers, and the other by Peder Pederson as a beneficiary of the industrial accident fund and a contributor to the fund.

Claim Loan Illegal
The law under which the new building was to be constructed was attacked on several grounds, strongest of which was believed to be the contention that the state constitution prohibits the state borrowing over $50,000 unless authorized by the voters.

By a four to three decision the supreme court ruled that the law was unconstitutional when the matter came before that body on appeal from lower court. At that time popular feeling was strong for the state finances were considerably disorganized by the ruling, and that the fact the decision was far from unanimous indicated definitely that there was much law on the other side.

Other orders and opinions handed down by the supreme court here yesterday follow:

W. L. Houk, administrator, substituted for Anna Older, deceased, vs M. B. Gilmore, appellant; appeal from Lane county; action for compensation for services. Opinion by Justice Coshov. Judge G. F. Skipworth affirmed.

De Haven and Son Hardware company, plaintiff and appellant, vs Fred Schmitz; appeal from Yamhill county; suit to confirm sale of real estate. Opinion of Justice Belt. Judge W. H. Ram-

MISSING WOMAN BELIEVED HERE

WIFE OF MICHAEL GOLDBERG
LEAVES SAN FRANCISCO

$6,000 Worth of Jewelry Discovered Taken From Safety
Deposit Box

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Belief that his wife had left for Salem, Ore., to visit relatives, taking with her $6,000 worth of jewelry and their 2 year old son, was expressed tonight by Michael Goldberg, who yesterday asked police to hunt for the bodies of his wife and son at the foot of the cliffs bordering the Golden Gate.

Goldberg first feared that his wife had driven their new automobile over the cliffs after losing her way in a fog. Discovery that she had taken the jewelry from a safe deposit box caused him to change his mind.

Goldberg refused to swear out a warrant for his wife, whom he married 12 years ago. She left home saying she intended to drive through the Presidio.

WARNING ISSUED INFANT SICKNESS

72 CASES PARALYSIS IN OREGON,
STRICKER REPORTS

Disease Seldom Fatal But Requires Careful Attention and Treatment

PORTLAND, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Warning that children should be kept from persons who are ill and that a strict quarantine on visiting at all times was issued today by Dr. Frederick D. Stricker, secretary of the state board of health because of the infantile paralysis epidemic current in the state. Seventy-two cases have been reported in Oregon, and 82 in California. The disease seems to be epidemic throughout the United States, Dr. Stricker said.

While the disease is not often fatal, it requires the most thorough care, Dr. Stricker pointed out, explaining that 65 per cent of the cases are under five years of age, 30 per cent between the ages of five and ten years, and the remaining five per cent under 20 years.

The cases, he said, should be handled in the same way other contagious diseases are handled. Sick and near-sick persons should be isolated until their ailments are known and children should be kept from them. He urged, in bulletins sent throughout the state, that "every available precaution should be taken." Sprinkling and oiling of streets should be thorough to lay all dust, he said.

In calling for strict quarantine of all sick, Dr. Stricker said that quiet is the first essential in caring for the cases. Spinal punctures may be used and sometimes a serum has value. He pointed out that only by isolating those who have had contact with the paralysis cases and by keeping children away from the sick can the epidemic be stamped out.

BANKING BOARD RETURNS

Department Comes Back to This City After Two Years

OREGONIAN.—The state banking department which has been located in Portland for more than two years will be moved back to Salem, according to announcement made by A. A. Schramm, state superintendent of banks, at a meeting of the state banking board held here yesterday.

Because of the crowded condition of the state capitol buildings the banking department will be located in a downtown office structure. The transfer of the department will be made within the next two weeks, Mr. Schramm said.

The board discussed at length the liquidation of a number of banks which have been closed during the past two years by order of the state superintendent of banks, Toozie and Vinton, McMinnville attorneys, were employed to represent the state in the liquidation of the Sheridan State bank which closed its doors recently.

Progress was reported by Mr. Schramm in connection with the liquidation of some of the other banks.

32 POLICEMEN AT FAIR

No Chances Being Taken With Law Breakers this Season

With 32 officers employed at various parts of the fair grounds, fair officials are taking no chances with the wrong-doers this year. The crowds so far have been unusually orderly, and not a single arrest has been made. Five young boys were caught sneaking over the fence yesterday afternoon, but they were released after they had been marched up to the administration building and made to purchase tickets.

A mounted policeman was assigned to duty along the south fence yesterday, in addition to a number of walking patrolmen. In spite of their vigilance, however, a number of boys have been stealing in.

Aside from a few adjustments of differences, the sole work of the police court yesterday was to await the parents of two lost children, and treat a boil on the neck of a little boy, who couldn't enjoy the fair otherwise.

REYNOLDS, RICH HEIR, LOCATED

NEW YORKER DIDN'T KNOW
HE WAS MISSED

Private Detective Agency Finds
Head of Airways Firm
in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Richard J. Reynolds, 21-year-old president of the Reynolds Airway, Inc., of New York, who was missing for 11 days was found tonight in a chop suey restaurant on North Grand boulevard by operatives of the Hargraves Detective agency which had been retained by Reynolds' stepfather and the trustee of the Reynolds' tobacco fortune.

The young heir was with a girl and another man. He at first denied he was Reynolds but later admitted it. He said he knew nothing about the rumors created by his disappearance until this morning when he read an account of the search for him in a St. Louis morning newspaper.

Just on Vacation
He said he was merely on a vacation and used a name not his own because he "did not wish to be bothered."

He had been to Chicago he said and had seen the Tunney-Dempsey fight and had then come to St. Louis.

Reynolds was found by operatives of the Hargraves Detective agency at the Grand Inn, on North Grand avenue, in the company of a young woman whose name was not learned. The agency was tipped off to the whereabouts of the missing heir by a man whose name was withheld who had offered to produce him for $3,000.

The detectives were told to go to the Grand Inn where they would find Reynolds "in the fifth booth at the left." He was found there with his woman companion.

DROWNING NEAR ASTORIA

Portlander Disappears off Ferry
Boat Into Columbia River

ASTORIA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—H. W. Kleeb of Portland is thought to have drowned in the Columbia river today when he disappeared off a ferryboat running from Astoria to the north shore of the river.

According to Captain F. Elfving, of the ferryboat, Kleeb bought a ticket and drove his car aboard the ferry at Astoria. He was never seen after that.

MAN PERMITTED TO KISS SPOUSE

JURY HANDS DOWN VERDICT
IN CLEVELAND CASE

Damages Awarded Against Officer
Who Arrested Couple Spoon-
ing In Car

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—If a man and wife want to take an automobile spin and then park for a time on Cleveland streets for a little spooning they have a legal right to do it without any interference from police.

This view was taken by a jury of six men and six women in common pleas court today when they awarded Mrs. Joseph Mack, 33, $15,000 damages against Police Sergeant Frank Rolfs for false arrest. Mrs. Mack had asked for $15,000 damages.

The police officer asserted they were guilty of disorderly conduct when he caught them "petting" in the rear seat of their automobile. He held them six hours in jail. When their case came before the court it was dismissed.

Testimony at the trial showed a full moon was shining and the air was balmy. Mr. and Mrs. Mack were returning home from a picnic together, with three other friends. Mack testified that they could "not resist the romantic appeal of the moon."

That night, "the petting" was no more than under way when a police car drove up, one of the officers demanding of Mack: "Who's dis dame?" Mack replied: "My wife." But the police refused to believe him and away the couple went to the police station in a police patrol.

"I was hugging and kissing my wife when arrested. Is there anything disorderly in that?" Mack testified. "Surely a man has a right to make love to his wife on a night like that was."

Mrs. Mack declared she saw in the jury's verdict vindication for married people who still are in love with each other.

Mrs. Mack said she did not know what she would do with the money. The Macks have been

RULING EXPECTED TODAY

Motion on Directed Verdict to Be Decided by Judge

PORTLAND, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The fate of Floyd Glotzbach, on trial here charged with forging the name of Mrs. R. D. Inman, wealthy Portland widow, to a $5,000 check in San Francisco, tonight rested in a decision on a motion, to be delivered tomorrow by Circuit Judge Tucker.

The motion, a move by defense counsel for a direction verdict of not guilty, was debated yesterday and today.

DISPLAYS SEEN BY FAIR CROWD HELD BEST YET

Fourteen Counties Have Exhibits Showing Varied
Kinds of Produce

BOOTHS WELL ARRANGED

Marion County Slogans Depict
This Vicinity as Producing Community Producing Many Farm Products

Fourteen counties of Oregon established booths at the fair this year and placed in them the best of agricultural and industrial exhibits from their respective communities. For months previous to the fair men worked gathering the articles to be exhibited and with the opening day all were hard at work arranging these choice articles in the most artistic manner in the new pavilion. As a result of this labor some of the most attractive booths ever seen at the fair are now open for inspection.

These booths are so decorated and arranged as to emphasize the leading agricultural and industrial activities of each county. The designers broke away from the old custom of building for competition and have arranged exhibits in a manner which creates greater interest.

Yamhill Attracts
Upon entering the pavilion where the county exhibits are placed one is immediately attracted to the booth of Yamhill county. Artistic in arrangement it pleases the most critical. Grains and forage crop samples adorn the rear walls of the booth, while on the incline a wonderful array of walnuts, filberts, dried prunes and apples has been placed. A slogan in gold letters proclaims the fact that "Yamhill county produces 50 per cent of the walnuts grown in Oregon." In the center and front of the booth there is a large bin filled with nuts. Over 1000 pounds of walnuts were used in making up the display. S. T. White, county agent for Yamhill county, designed the general arrangement.

TICKET SLICKER NABBED

T. L. Wilson Gets 10 Days for Promotion Scheme Here

T. L. Wilson, who gave his address as Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake and "all points west," had all the earmarks of a real clever "slicker" when he was arrested on State street yesterday by Officer James Wilson in the act of trying to sell fake state fair tickets to the bystanders.

"This ticket will admit you to each and every show on the grounds, even the grandstand," said Wilson in his barrague to the people listening to him. Just then Policeman James stepped up. "How many of those have you sold?" asked the officer. "Seven hundred," replied Wilson.

At the police station Wilson's pockets failed to reveal even a thin dime. Apparently his sales promotion hadn't netted him a cent. When taken before Police Judge Poulsen, Wilson was still in a care-free attitude and told the Judge he didn't care what they did with him.

"Then take ten days," said the judge.

LEGIONNAIRES IN ITALY

King Victor Emmanuel Receives
Delegation From America

PISA, ITALY, Sept. 27.—(AP)—King Victor Emmanuel received a delegation of the American Legion headed by former Commander Howard P. Savage, at the royal palace here today. They conversed cordially for a while with the king who spoke English easily, and was applauded by the Legionnaires.

After taking leave of the king they left the palace for an automobile tour of the city and then went to a municipal luncheon in their honor.

Having heard that Donna Rachele Mussolini had given birth to a son, they sent the premier their warm congratulations.

MANY PRESENT AT HORSE SHOW

LARGER ATTENDANCE INDI-CATES GROWING INTEREST

Portland Damascus Company
Wins Four-in-Hand Draft
Team Contest

A crowd decidedly larger and more enthusiastic than that of the night preceding witnessed the events of the second evening of the annual horse show. Though not spectacular, the program did not lack in interest.

The opening attraction of the evening was the four-in-hand draft team competition. Portland Damascus company won the first prize and McCroskey and White of Garfield, Washington, winner on Monday evening, received the second award.

An event attracting much admiration and comment was the single in harness, entering Aloma and Paloma, the two small black beauties owned by Mr. Aaron M. Frank of Portland. Aloma received the blue ribbon.

Mrs. Claude D. Starr's entry, Kula Kula, won first award again last evening in the ladies' harness competition.

Much delight was shown when it was announced that Buckley Vodie, one of the pair of fifty thousand dollar horses imported recently from England by Mr. Frank, would be shown for the first time Tuesday evening. This splendid horse won the blue ribbon in the ladies' singles event.

Perhaps the most deliberation in selection of the winner among the several magnificent entries was displayed in the gentlemen's five-gaited saddle horse competition. The final decision was awarded Robin Hood, a new entry in the show this year, and one which proved again last evening to be the best saddle horse in the ring.

Many were again surprised to note that Shikara, blue ribbon winner for several years, was reduced to fourth place for the second time this year.

Matt Cohen of Los Angeles, proved himself entirely worthy as a judge of horses and horsemanship. His decisions accorded with those of the public in every case.

STATE FAIR SIDELIGHTS

Concessionaires opposite the main entrance of the new exhibit building were inclined to close up shop or go into the bridge building business when a lake of water, accumulated from rain draining off the buildings, formed in front of their establishments yesterday. Many bridged the water with planks.

About fifty patients of the Oregon state hospital and Sheridan American Legion bandmen were almost lone occupants of the grand stand yesterday afternoon. The legionnaires declared "we've been engaged to play and might as well play here as anywhere," and the patients didn't know the races were called off. The race tracks were muddy—very muddy.

A fire, which originated from a short circuit, in a wire to an O. C. fair grounds motion picture booth, burned out several yards of wire yesterday afternoon before it was extinguished by fire department chemicals. The damage was slight, but caused a bit of excitement.

Seven year old Dorothy Hagnaw caused her parents two hours of anxiety yesterday afternoon while she wandered about the fair grounds, alone—and lost. A kindly old lady brought her to the police station where she sat and sobbed. She was emphatic in her belief that "her daddy would come for her," which he did a half hour later.

More beautiful than ever is the floral display this year in the new exhibit building. Four floral companies have each decorated a section of the floral rectangle, and many different kinds of blooms are shown, as well as ferns and hot house plants.

Two local florists, Breithaupt's and Olson's, and two Portland florists, Nickles and Son, and Smith Flower shop, participated in making up the main display, which required a great deal of work, and was not completed until noon. Judging of the individual displays began in the afternoon.

C. F. Breithaupt received blue ribbons for the best individual collections of cut flowers and greenhouse roses. A blue ribbon for the best all round floral basket went to "Frosty" Olson, who has opened a new shop in Salem.

Other firms who entered individual displays were G.H. Brothers, Portland, gladiolas; Clark-Kamas Green house, Clackamas, ferns; Adams Floral company, Salem, roses; Wiedeman Brothers, Wilsonville, carnations; Wilson-Cronk Gohr company, Portland, ferns; Clarke Brothers, Portland, greenhouse plants; F. M. Young, greenhouse plants.

GHOSTS REHABILITATED

International Congress for Psychic Research Meets Paris

PARIS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Ghosts do not need the shades of night to cloak their movements. They can operate in broad day light, their thumb prints can be taken by properly trained mediums, they can write on a typewriter from a great distance. These startling assertions were made before the International Congress for Psychic Research today.

The spirit mediums who were ruthlessly thrown overboard yesterday by Sir Oliver Lodge, British scientist, were rescued by James Malcolm Bird of New York.
