October 1, 1927 Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you. Matthew 5:11 and 12.

SALEM AND EUGENE

"The Salem Statesman proclaims optimistically that Salem is to become one of the nation's greatest paper industry centers. In support of this ambitious prophecy it offers two reasons. The first is that Salem has the necessary raw materials and the water power and the second is that 'there is in Salem a paper mill cult which is constantly growing and that will hasten this development."

"Of the two reasons the second is the more important, we should say, and if Salem outdistances Eugene in the demake a special effort to win the special camera prize today for the velopment of the paper industry it will be because of this prize might be awarded on a very second reason. lew subscriptions.

"But-so far, at least-it is lacking in the requirement of faith. If someone arises in his place and asserts that it ought to be possible to found here a great paper manufacturing industry, about all he hears in reply are reasons why it can't possibly be done.

"From the standpoint of physical resources, Salem and Eugene are about equal in attractiveness as sites for paper mills, with the advantage, if any, in Eugene's favor because of more easily available water power. But in the 'paper mill cult' which The Statesman mentions Salem has a tremendous advantage. Faith in yourself is always a tremendous ad vantage.

The above is from the Eugene Register. Neither admitting nor disputing the statement of the advantage in Eugene's favor in the way of easily available timber and water power, the other conclusion of the Register is sound, as well as complimentary to Salem.

A friend at the writer's elbow hands in the following cheerful note: "The farmers rejoiced doubly at the heavy rains this week, as the weather made it impossible to work; and gave them a good excuse to attend the fair. It also made the ground in fine condition for fall plowing, and cast the walnuts down without having to shake the trees, pastures have been improved, and thousands of dollars worth of good was done to late potatoes still green and growing.

The fact that Salem has developed a paper mill cult will make certain the extension of the industry here-

-Especially since we have a great deal of pulp wood available within trucking distance; and we have the government forest reserve in the Cascades as a perpetual source of immense supply-

And every foot of timber available to Eugene is also available to Salem, with a slight additional cost. A train load of on high right now? You now have canning, division 3. She is a spruce logs passes Salem every little while, from the Coos bay country, bound to the Oregon City paper mills. This supply is more cheaply available to Salem than to Oregon City-

And woods ond other vegetable growths not yet in general use, or even little thought of in that connection, will ere long be available for paper making. There was one way to make paper 100 years ago. There are seven or more ways now. There will be other ways; other materials.

Salem only begins to realize the value of her various cults -her flax and linen cult, and her cults on canning and growing strawberries and filberts and walnuts, mint, celery, world record cows, bulbs, raspbernies-

And a long list of things in which we excel.

We should teach more agriculture and industries in our schools. We should increase our cults. They will carry our city and the potentially marvelous surrounding country very far in the development of great industries on the land and in our cities and towns. They will give us the faith in ourselves and our wonderful future which we need above all other things.

IN THE OLD DAYS

"Although long a resident of Oregon and familiar with the Pacific coast, Alfred Holman had never seen Crater Lake, So, a few days are, he motored over the Redwood highway to Grants Pass and then discovered that Crater lake was closed for the season, and Mr. Holman drove on to the city of roses. Alfred Holman has been identified with the press of the west coast for many years. At one time he was connected with The Oregonian; he was editor of the San Francisco Bulletin and was editor of the Argonaut. For a period he was the Pacific coast representative of the New York Times. He is now a member of the board of directors of the Carnegie institute and recently returned from Honolulu, where he attended in international conference. Mr. Holman is at the Arlington ub."-Oregonian.

The above news item from the Portland Oregonian will ring up many memories to Oregon old timers. It seems only ttle while ago when Alfred Holman was the outstanding staff newspaper reporter in the state. He was dean of the reporters of the Oregon legislature. He mixed with the big al battles of the old days. He is a member of the famaBride family of Oregon-a nephew of Judge Thomas A. McBride of the supreme court and a cousin of Dr. W. B. Morse of Salem-the old Yamhill county family that has probig men ranging all over the coast states.
