

Shakeup Due in Bearcat Ranks Before College of Idaho Game Friday

TWO SETS OF BACKS LINED UP BY KEENE

With the tie game against College of Puget Sound now a matter of history, Coach Roy "Spec" Keene is revamping his Bearcat line-up on the basis of what he learned at Tacoma. Harold McKenzie, who has been holding down the fullback position, will play henceforth as guard, with "Red" Lang taking his place in the plunging berth. If Lang fails to satisfy the coaching staff in this berth, he will be displaced by Zeller.

In a practice session last night, Coach Keene tried out two backfield aggregations. He will use them both in the game against the Coyotes Friday. One of them finds Cranon at quarterback, French and DePoe at half, and Zeller at full.

Zeller is quarterback in the other group, with Hank and Eaton at half and Zeller at full. Weight and plunging ability predominate in the first aggregation, and fast, deceptive play can be expected from the other. Whichever seems to be most effective against the Coyotes will be used the most.

The Coyotes will bring to Salem one of the heaviest lines faced by the Bearcats this year. Supplementing the heavy line is a backfield of fast, tricky men, built around Dille, a 165 pound halfback, which will furnish plenty of trouble for the local players. Assistant Coach Joe Kasberger scouted the Pacific-Idaho game in Portland two weeks ago and was able to size up the weak points in the Coyote attack. The Bearcats will be drilled this week in a defense calculated to slow down the Coyote passing tactics.

The Bearcats played great football at Tacoma Saturday according to all who witnessed the game in which Willamette staved off a Logger victory for the first time in six years. Coach Keene sent his men in to play a defensive game and take advantage of all breaks. One came suddenly in the opening minutes of play when Eaton fell on the ball behind the Logger goal, after the Willamette kick-off.

Twice after that, the Bearcats threatened, once when McKenzie intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards to place the ball on the eight yard line, and again late in the game when an offensive look the oval to the thirty yard line.

On the first threat, three line plunges failed to buck the ball over, and a place kick on fourth down went wild. The ball was in Logger territory most of the game and the Logger's passing attempts were signal failures.

Puget Sound's touchdown came after a successful 30 yard line from where it was bucked over. Yering blocked the attempt to kick goal.

Reggie DePoe, Indian end, who suffered a rib injury will probably be out of the play for two weeks. Rogers may get back into the center position for the game Friday.

The game is scheduled to start at three o'clock. Mike Moran of O. A. C. will referee; Lieutenant Daniels, West Point, will umpire; and Ralph Coleman, O. A. C. will serve as head linesman.

One of the biggest events of the current football season is to be staged October 22, when the University of Michigan, which owes its football all to "Hurry Up" Yost, dedicates its new stadium with Ohio State University as guest—and foe.

Not alone because of the fact that it marks a milestone in the development of athletics or because of the fan flare and color of the event does it loom big. The outcome of the game itself may have a direct bearing on the Big Ten championship, for one thing.

If the Big Ten race turns out to be a nip and tuck battle with Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, Northwestern and Purdue all demanding a place in the sun, the team defeated in the coming fray at Ann Arbor may well be definitely eliminated by such a defeat.

The Michigan-Ohio State game is one of the blessed football affairs built on tradition to mean something more than a mere case of victory or defeat each year.

The two universities have been meeting on the gridiron every year, with few exceptions, since 1897. But it wasn't until 1919 that the Ohio aggregation succeeded in defeating Yost's team. Once riding the crest, State made the most of its strength and repeated the triumph in 1920, and again in 1921.

Five years ago State opened its stadium, a giant concrete affair seating something like 92,000 persons. Michigan was invited to help dedicate the field—and accepted the invitation. The States had high hopes of continuing their supremacy, too, but were forced to take a 19 to 0 beating. In the next three years they scored but once against Michigan. The Wolverine team won in 1923 by a score of 23 to 0, the following year 16 to 6, and the next fall 10 to 0.

Last year State, fighting desperately in her own halfback, had victory within her grasp, only to lose it when a well-meaning halfback pulled a mental bone.

The teams have met a total of 23 times since the first game in 1897. Fourteen of these games were played prior to 1913, at which time Michigan left the conference and Ohio State entered it. Of these 14 games, Michigan won 12 and State was able to tie two. Since Michigan's return to the conference in 1918 the teams have met nine times. Michigan has won six of the games and State three.

"Hurry Up" Yost, of course, has coached the Michigan eleven ever since the annual games were inaugurated. Jack Wilce has been responsible for the grid teams at State for something like half that time, so the game, among other things, is a perpetual battle between these two mentors.

PROFESSIONAL SWIM GROUP LAUDS HOAX

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP).—The International Professional Swimmer's association regards the channel swim hoax of Dr. Dorothy Cochran Logan, English woman, as a "pioneer effort to bring about authentication of records made by professional swimmers." Its president, Bruce Grant, said today.

"As it now stands," Mr. Grant said, "professional swimming records are something of a joke. It is common knowledge that three fourths of the so-called records in and around Manhattan and up and down the Hudson are brazen fakes. Of all sports there is more opportunity of cheating in long distance swimming than in any other. It is only where competitive events are held that there is any semblance of officialdom.

"When swimmers set out to break other swimmers' records, there is never the proper supervision and the newspapers themselves often have received and printed news in good faith, when it was false. This association, which primarily was formed for the protection of the professional swimmer, to authenticate professional records and save swimming from becoming a farce, will accept a record only when the swim has been supervised by one of its representatives.

Grant cabled congratulations to Dr. Logan for having done "just what this organization is striving for—authentication of records."

Philadelphia Wins Over Mike Ballerine of N. J.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, recognized by the Pennsylvania athletic commission as the world's featherweight champion, stepped out of his class tonight and defeated Mike Ballerine, Bayonne, N. J., in a slashing 10 round bout at the arena. Bass weighed 127; Ballerine 124.

At Salem—Willamette vs College of Idaho.
At McMinnville—Linfield vs Oregon Normal.

A six to six tie battle between Willamette university and College of Puget Sound last Saturday saved one of the two closely matched schools from elimination in the northwest conference title race. As it is, four conference teams are still undefeated in the third week of conference play—Whitman, Willamette, Puget Sound, and College of Idaho.

The Coyotes of College of Idaho, bearcat opponents next Friday, passed their way to an impressive victory over Linfield college, 32 to 6, at Caldwell. The Wildcats tried a little passing on their own account, advancing the ball a number of times and threatening the Coyote goal only to fall in the pinches.

The Whitman Missionaries were trampled by their coast conference neighbor, University of Idaho, 40 to 0, making scant yardage against the Idahoans. Pacific took an easy game from Albany college, 50 to 0.

The game between Pacific and Whitman at Walla Walla this week-end is hoped to be a thriller. Coach Frank declared yesterday that his team will be in first class condition. No injuries were sustained by any of his men in the scrimmaging against Albany, and his line-up will be intact. Coach Borleske at Whitman appears not to have much steam in his team this year, and it would not surprise conference followers to see the Badgers go over in this tilt.

Should Willamette defeat the fast Coyotes here Friday, and Whitman be downed by Pacific, the chances for a conference title for the Bearcats will be bright.

Puget Sound will be idle this week-end and Linfield will work out against Oregon Normal at McMinnville.

BOXING ASSOCIATION BACKS STATE BODY

TOLEDO, OHIO, Oct. 17.—(AP).—The national boxing association, after endorsing the Illinois state athletic commission and its referee, Dave Barry, in the handling of the world's heavyweight championship battle between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey in Soldier field, September 22, today incorporated a new rule in its code quite opposite to that of the Illinois commission.

The all day session of the boxing representatives from twenty four states and five foreign countries brought out only one thing of importance—the new rule regulating the count over a fallen boxer.

According to the new rule, approved by the association, the time keeper shall raise when a boxer is felled and immediately begin to toll off the seconds. The referee is ordered to conduct the boxer scoring the knockdown to the farthest neutral corner, then return to the fallen boxer and pick up the count with the time keeper.

In the Tunney-Dempsey battle, the time keeper started counting when Tunney hit the floor while the referee was shooting Jack to a neutral corner. When referee Barry returned to the fallen titleholder, he took up the count as "one," although the time keeper's toll had reached four.

DAVID STITT WINS 15 MILE WALK RACE

MILL CITY, Ore., Oct. 16.—(Special).—A rangy bespectacled shingle mill worker, David Stitt by name, outdistanced a field of 18 entrants in the Mills City—Lyons round trip walking race here today, negotiating the 15 and two tenths miles route in two hours forty-one minutes.

Stitt went into a free, easy-swinging stride at the start of the gruelling march and maintained it to the end, speeding up a trifle on the last two mile stretch despite the fact that already he had left competitors far in his wake.

Only seven of the 16 entrants finished the race, the others dropping out along the route. Four women who entered walked only to Lyons, a distance of seven and one half miles. Bessie Wells, a pretty Mill City high school senior, finished first, leading Ann Moraveg, her chum by a few feet. Miss Moraveg fainted as she walked over the finish line, and was taken in an automobile to Mill City, where she recovered quickly.

Only John Swift, a middle-aged millwright, threatened Stitt, and at Lyons was behind less than 300 feet. On the home stretch, Swift tired, and was a half mile behind the winner when they crossed the finish line.

Smith, A. Gates, Oregon miner, winner of the Oregon Journal hike from Salem to Portland, paced the walkers. He started 15 minutes later than the others but caught and passed them all before Lyons reached. He was ineligible to compete for the prizes, however, as the walk was open only to Mill City citizens.

Others finished in the order and time given: Joe Dawes, Mill City confectionery proprietor, 2:52; John Blazek, a mill worker, 2:53; Bud Bruder, a crane operator, 3:00; Fred Olin, son of F. R. Olin, general manager of the Hammond Lumber company, 3:02; and H. Goar, a mill worker, 3:05.

St. Flock, well known Mill City boxer, walked with his manager, Joe Dawes, for about the last four miles. Often, it was necessary for him to break into a trot to keep up with his arm swinging mentor.

About 50 automobiles paraded along the line of the race, cheering for various competitors. Water orange and lemon juice, and other refreshments were given the marchers from time to time. An ambulance followed in the rear, and a state traffic officer rode ahead to clear the highway.

Cash prizes totalling $50 and a quantity of merchandise donated by Mill City merchants were divided between the first six to cross the finish line. H. L. Bogges originated and supervised the event.

Victor D. Carlson, sports editor of the Oregon Statesman, Aubrey G. Fletcher, athletic coach at Park Junior high school, and Malcolm S. Badger, of the Associated Press, acted as judges for the contest.

Condemnation Arouses Ire of Fashion Writers in England

IPSWICH, England, Oct. 17.—(AP).—The bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich has condemned the pink silk stockings worn by the women and so has aroused the sarcasm of the fashion writers, who say the light pink stockings are on the wane, and that the bishop is much behind the times. This winter, they insist, instead of light pink, the women will wear stockings of rose-nude, rose-beige and rosewood.

Ban Johnson Finally Quits As American League Head

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP).—Byron Bancroft Johnson, for many years storm center of major league baseball, quietly retired today from the presidency of the American league, delivering his resignation verbally to the board of directors.

Frank J. Navin, vice president of the league and head of the Detroit club, assumed the executive authority until a meeting of club owners can be called to choose Johnson's successor. Navin said he did not know how soon that would be and declined to comment on the persistent reports that Ed S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club, had already been elected.

Johnson, the founder and only president of the league, explained the records and bank account of the league to three of the directors in an hour's talk, gathered his collection of pictures from the walls and walked out. Tonight he left for Excelsior Spring, Mo., for the beginning of a long rest. His plans beyond that trip were indefinite, he said.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT PAIR SIGNED HERE

Fulfilling his promise to Salem fans of bringing some new high-class boxing stars into his next week, Matchmaker Plant announced yesterday that he had secured Battling Slim, a Bellingham light-heavyweight, to meet Jack Dillon, 165 pound Salem fighter, in the 10 round main event here at the armory October 26th.

Few in the boxing fraternity know what Battling Slim's last name is. He never uses it in the first business. They do know, however, that he is a real fighter. He has bowled over such boys as Frankie Burns, Bill Ellingsworth, Bobby Vernon, and Jimmy McDermott. Slim is a student at Washington state college, and spends his money earned at boxing to secure an education.

Jack Dillon, formerly of Portland, arrived in Salem a few weeks ago and will remain here all winter if he can defeat Slim here next week. A victory over Slim will place him in the limelight for some good future winter cards in and around Salem. Dillon is a game fighter. He is willing to take on anyone who wants to try him out. "I'm not the matchmaker. I do the fighting," he said yesterday.

Dillon is 24 years old and took up fighting seven years ago. His first fight was against a big tall chap named Kid Kalamazoo in Portland. Among his recent opponents are Ellingsworth, Campbell, and Joe Swann.

Battling Slim, the crowd pleaser, will arrive in Portland today and go into training for his fight here. November 2, he is scheduled to box Georgie Dixon in Bellingham.

Matchmaker Plant will go to Portland this morning to line up some fast boys for the preliminary bouts. He has indicated that St. Flock and Bobby McIntyre will have a place on the card.
