

CHECKING UP ON SANTIAM MINES

Engineer Elmendorf Is Now In Little North Fork Mining District

W. J. Elmendorf, the well known mining engineer of Seattle, is in the mining district on the Little North Fork of the Santiam. He came primarily to make an examination of the mining property of the people of the Salem area who own the Crown property. The Crown mine is on the south side of the Little North Fork, about three miles below the camp of the New West Copper company, with headquarters in Salem. It is understood that the development work of the Crown people has shown indications of good values.

At Northwest Mine, too, Elmendorf is the one in charge. For the Northwest Copper company people, will also check up the work here, during his present visit. He has been their engineer ever since the present company took hold of operations, succeeding the Lott-Larson people.

The Northwest Copper company has recently added a new air compressor and other machinery and the work is proceeding satisfactorily. The main work is in the sinking of a shaft on the north side of the Little North Fork, near the junction of that stream with Gold creek.

WESTERN FARM RELIEF SOUGHT BY SENATORS

While terms of the new bill have not been completed, it is the view of Senator Norris that it will be stronger in many respects than the vetoed measure but without some of the serious objections to that proposal.

It is estimated that an original appropriation of $300,000,000 or perhaps $500,000,000 would be required by the measure with which to set up an agency authorized to buy and dispose of surplus crops. To meet all contingencies of the bill, if it should be taxed to the limit by surpluses in every crop a total of almost $2,000,000,000 would be required, it is estimated.

How far the McNary-Haugen senators will go in an effort to reconcile their views with Senator Borah and some other western senators remains to be worked out. The Idaho senator, who voted against the McNary-Haugen bill, has based his principal objection on the provision which would place a tax on certain crops when purchase of surpluses was required.

The group of five western senators will go in an effort to swell its membership some also tomorrow. Senators Norris and Francis of North Dakota, Norris of Nebraska; Borah of Idaho, and Brookhart, now composed the bloc which has given endorsement to Norris as the republican presidential candidate. Senator McMaster, of South Dakota, has been invited to attend tomorrow.

Indications of Large Profits From Writing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Evidence of the financial reward that goes with successful authorship was given in federal court today when an income tax bill was filed by the internal revenue collector against Peter B. Kyne, the novelist, asking payment of $29,845 due on his 1926 income tax. Another item asked an additional $1,323 on the author's 1926 income.

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations that are not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Capitol Theater. Bligh's Capitol will offer Association show today. Good dancing, a dash of song, plenty of music and sparkling comedy—all are included in the next Association Vaudeville bill. The five vaudeville acts constitute an exceptional entertainment program.

The bill is headlined by Creole Land, a fast singing and dancing flash offering with a company of five. The quintette present character dances, old and new, interspersed with red hot specialties. Dotson and Yvette are the featured performers, and they are assisted by three exceptional dance artists.

Peppy songs, rendered by two energetic youths, known in vaudeville as the Jada Boys will add a zest and touch of lively interest to the bill. The two young men, Jimmy Chester and Jay Van, have been in partnership ever since they were discharged from the navy, where they were a feature of the Great Lakes training camp's entertainments. Both restricted and popular numbers will constitute their program. Gilroy, Cole and Haynes have a novel idea in presenting a nautical farce. It is called "Swells at Sea," and the clever trio lose no time in starting the ball of fun rolling and succeed in keeping it moving with their excellent routine of comedy, chatter and tuneful melodies.

Songs, dances, roller skating and music will compose the offering of Joyce and Allen, billed as "May and December." The male member of the team specializes in extracting tunes from a carpenter's saw, while the girl does her bit with songs and dances. She also plays a twelve string tippie.

"King's Lip" aptly describes the act presented by McLann and Company. McLann constructs a pyramid of chairs, on the top of which he does several balancing feats. He is assisted by a pretty young lady. On the screen "That Model from Paris" starring Bert Lytell. Topics of the day and Acrop's Fablia will complete the screen features. Viola Vereker Holman's Capitol orchestra will present a brand new number.

HAVE SYMPATHY OF SALEM FRIENDS

Claud P. Slade of Eureka, Cal., has many friends in Salem, where he is for a long time a resident. He is secretary and treasurer of the Eureka Woolen Mills, in which C. P. Bishop of Salem and his sons are largely interested. He is a brother of E. F. Slade of the First National bank of Salem, and of Mrs. John J. Roberts of this city. He is a frequent visitor here, where he has many friends. These friends would all wish to be included in expressions of sympathy for Mr. Slade and his wife over the loss of their 7 year old daughter, Claudine, from infantile paralysis. The little one passed away at 11 o'clock on Monday morning last, at Eureka, after an illness of only three days. She was the only daughter of the family.

NEWCOMER MEET PROGRAM COMPLETE

Large Crowd Expected at Event in Armory; Arch- erd to Preside

(Contributed) Arrangements for the big get acquainted meeting of the New Comers club are about complete and an excellent program is already assured. In fact, the entire program is complete and definitely settled with the exception of one number.

That Salem intends to make this a gathering where every new comer in Salem will feel that he is more than welcome is demonstrated by the fact that not only the churches, lodges and other organizations, but the prominent men of the city are assisting in making the meeting a success. The committee in charge plan to have spaces arranged around the outer edge of the Armory for the delegations from the different organizations where the new comers are affiliated with the organization can make contact.

Charles R. Archerd has consented to preside at the meeting. T. A. Livesley the mayor of the city will give a brief address of welcome. The president of the club will be briefly outlined by C. F. Gillies, president of the club. There will be brief addresses by Daniel J. Fry, president of the First National Bank and T. S. Page, president of the Salem Chamber of Commerce. Fancy dancing by students of Mrs. White's Dancing academy; Cook Patton the local magician will entertain for a few minutes with some of his clever tricks. The Lions club, Kiwanis club and Rotary club will contribute to the program. There are two other big numbers of which the club is practically assured.

At the New Comers meeting held in February there were 1500 in attendance. Prominent men of the city who were present at the February meeting and who are in touch with the present meeting program that there will be more than double this crowd. Every one is invited, no matter how long they have lived in Salem. The main object of the meeting is to permit the new comer not only to meet other new comers but to meet the older residents of the city.

The New Comers club has been in existence but a short time, news of its activities have reached California and the central states, and most new people coming to Salem come at once to the club headquarters at 311 First National Bank Bldg. The club keeps a register in which all new comers are registered, and are furnished any information and assistance which is in the power of the club to give.

Several of the state clubs have canceled their regular monthly meeting for October and plan on meeting with the New Comers club in a body. During the evening there will be a get acquainted half hour. Every person attending the meeting will be furnished a card on which will be written their name and the place from which they came, this will serve as an introduction and during this half hour every one will be expected to shake hands with as many as they can.

FALL PRESENTS CASE TO JUDGE OF COURT

(Continued from Page One) tinned, "that there are lawyers and then again there are judges, lawyers, and the gentleman who is on the stand has qualified himself as an expert here in every possible way in the discharge of his duty. He knows what all this controversy is about, and is fully conversant with the entire situation."

"Therefore, if given an opportunity, he would clear this matter up in two minutes. I know that if I might be allowed to ask Judge Finney a question there are some technical matters, that Judge Finney does not understand from the questions propounded—or counsel do not understand him, and which could be easily cleared up. Otherwise, I think the court might be led into a ruling that the court would very much regret a little later."

Opponents Contradicted. "Counsel for the government state that Judge Finney cannot interpret this matter or say that he cannot testify as to his interpretation of his letter of his instructions from the secretary of the navy and that he cannot testify as to his interpretations of the rules and regulations of the interior department."

"Why, sir, the law puts this gentleman who is now on the stand in that position for that very purpose, as first assistant secretary of the interior, and in the absence of the secretary of the interior, he is acting secretary of the interior and the law makes it his duty to interpret the laws which he must administer. Who else is in fact to do it?"

"If he interprets the law incorrectly or without his jurisdiction, the supreme court of the United States may reverse him, but so long as he remains within his jurisdiction, his interpretation stands as the law of the land."

Held Expert Witness. "Now, if your honor please, that is the situation. That applies, of course, to the secretary of the interior. Judge Finney knows that and he knows his business. So that, I submit if your honor please, if the ruling that I have understood the court to make as to Judge Finney's interpretation of what he understood the law to be, or about this document or that document I will say that Judge Finney is particularly and peculiarly in a position to understand these matters and I am sure if given an opportunity, would clear them up.

"If the objection by the government is on the ground that this is not proper to be asked on cross examination, that is one thing; but if the objection is based upon the ground that the witness cannot testify as to what his interpretation was, that, sir, I may say, is absolutely vital to the defense in this case. And I think if the court understands just what Judge Finney's position in the department is you will see the situation in a different light."

"I beg the court's pardon for interposing a statement at this point and I have hesitated a long while as the court will understand before addressing myself to the court. I thank your honor."

This was the first statement Fall had made at any of the oil hearings or trials since he appeared before the senate investigating committee early in 1924 and declined to submit himself to further question on the ground that his testimony might tend to incriminate him.

the public service commission last night. The legislature, at its last session, approved a bill providing for the construction of this road but it later was vetoed by Governor Paterson. The governor, in his veto message, held that the proposed road was not necessary, and its construction by a private concern would establish a dangerous precedent in this state.

Following the close of the legislature the Smith River Toll Road company filed with the public service commission an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity. This application is still pending. The proposed Smith River Toll road would provide a short cut from Portland to the Tillamook beaches. The cost of the project was estimated at approximately $3,500,000.
