

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
Lee Moran, famous member of the former team of Lyons and Moran, plays a taddy, an eccentric comedy character role, in "Spring Fever," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's romance of golf, starring William Haines, and which comes to the Elsinore theater today. It is a romance with a background of comedy in a country club, with Joan Crawford as the heroine, and George K. Arthur, Edward Earle, Eileen Percy, Bert Woodruff, George Fawcett, and other notables in the cast.

Atwater's football team had lost for 25 years—the president of the college was to lose his job—then the president's pretty daughter took the bull by the horns—recruited a football team by her own personal charm—had them all fighting like tigers for the school—all in love with her—then a jealous co-ed—and—pandemonium—team refuses to play—turns against her—and... See Dolores Costello in "The College Widow."

Fanchon and Marco vaudeville will also be an attraction at the Elsinore theater on Sunday and Monday.

Capitol Theater
Aesthetic character dances will be offered by Karmino's Modern Ballet, the headline act. Included in the company are six terrific-spirited artists of exceptional grace, each a dance adept. Although just a "plain fellow" Bill Utah is a versatile entertainer. He sings, dances, plays music and cuts up a general, you will find him a great performer. Harry Ward and Manda Wats have a laugh-producing sketch entitled "Steppin' in Society." While each is possessed of an excellent singing voice they devote their talents to snoring laughs rather than giving an exhibition of their vocal attainments.

A musical act with song trimmings will be offered by Josephine Barlowe and Adele Durre, two charming young ladies. They form an accordion duo that is outstanding.

Something new in balancing acts will be presented by Rakoma and Loretta. After being rolled in on a wheel chair, Rakoma displays remarkable agility in some thrilling acrobatic stunts.

It is doubtful if any instrument, not even the violin, possesses such widespread appeal as the saxophone. A mere freak a few years ago, frowned upon by musicians as an illegitimate, the saxophone today outranks all other instruments in popularity. The saxophone has taught the world to dance, and in a large measure to forget its troubles. It symbolizes the spirit of jazz. The headline act of the Association Vaudeville bill at Bilgh's Capitol theater is a saxophone quintette, Markwith Brothers and Eddie Eddy. It is a fast moving, melodious organization, reeling off rag, jazz, sentimental and classical music punctuated with comedy bits and fancy dance steps. They'll blow away the blues.

Kennedy with the assistance of Cecil Simpson stages a comedy of prohibition, written by Willard Mack, entitled "Slipping." It is a splendid comedy tid bit well played. "Slipping" contains all the elements of sparkling comedy, made more pleasing because of Kennedy's genial laugh and capital acting.

The Aerial Allens, a man and woman have a thrilling gymnastic number that is out of the ordinary; inasmuch as Miss Allen performs the difficult work on the flying trapeze that is usually done by males.

Thomas, will entertain with excerpts of comedy gleaned from his experiences at the front. His characterization of a brainless, blundering rookie is extremely laughable.

Songs, chatter and comic drawings constitute the offering of Conrad and Mildred Clayton, the former a cartoonist and comedian, the latter a singer and pianist.

Everything moves along with a bang and audiences are certain to get a real bit of enjoyment from the various acts.

Viola Varcler Holman and her Capitol orchestra, will offer a new number.

Oregon Theater
Aviation, now the greatest popular fancy, has its comedy possibilities exploited for the first time in a motion picture by Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Now We're in the Air," the Paramount film which comes to the Oregon theater today for six days.

Against their will, Beery and Hatton have been soldiers, sailors and firemen, and now they are aviators, through no doing of their own. They land in the air service when their employer enlists and they wander into a propeller testing room and have their Scotch highlander costumes blown off.

Some one tosses them a pair of flying uniforms and before they know it they have been mistaken for aviators and are in the air. Mistaken identity dominates the plot. Louise Brooks plays a dual role. She is both of twin sisters, one of whom is of French fealty and the other, German. Beery falls in love with the German twin and Hatton with the French, but they are unable to tell the girls apart, so all sorts of scrambled complications ensue.

Then Beery and Hatton are mistaken for German heroes, and are acclaimed of the same status by the French. This is too good to last however, and they are about to be finished off by a firing squad when the war ends, and each wins the twin of his choice.

The picture is replete in thrilling aviation situations, but most of the comedy takes place on the ground. Clever gags punctuate the entire production and the picture may be safely said to be the funniest and best Hatton and Beery have done yet.

Nut Growers Group Asks Help Against Rail Rates

PORTLAND, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Portland chamber of commerce today considered a request of the North Pacific Nut Growers co-operative to join in a protest to the interstate commerce commission against the proposed new import freight rate of $1.25 per hundred pounds for railway transportation of walnuts in the shell from north Pacific coast points to Mississippi valley points.

The domestic rate on nuts from the coast to the middle states is $1.75 per hundred pounds. The proposed new tariff will become effective November 1.

GLOTZBACH PLEADS GUILTY; PAROLED

Former Husband of Grand Opera Singer Springs Sudden Surprise

PORTLAND, Oct. 27.—(AP)—With the startling suddenness that has before marked several of his adventures and lifted them above the ordinary in life, Floyd Glotzbach, former husband of Madam Matzenauer, grand opera singer; later chauffeur-gardener in the household of Mrs. R. D. Inman, wealthy Portland widow, and more recently automobile washer in a Portland garage, today pleaded guilty to a charge of having issued a forged check for $5,000.

He was immediately sentenced to serve five years in Oregon state prison. But with equally startling suddenness, he was paroled to his attorney.

The forgery charge grew out of his arrest in San Francisco where he was accused of having signed the name of Mrs. R. D. Inman to a spurious check. He was brought here, indicted, pleaded not guilty to the indictment, was tried and the jury disagreed.

Today he appeared before Presiding Judge Tazewell and entered his plea of guilty. The parole extended, the court said, in view of the fact that the surety company had been satisfied for the amount it was compelled to recover for the bank victimized by Glotzbach. The surety company had pressed the suit, Mrs. Inman refusing to appear as a private prosecutor.

Since his trial Glotzbach has remarried and has obtained employment here.

AT CAPITOL TODAY

Pep, personality and punch in the Association Vaudeville bill.

arr Mrs. Louis Dodge of Ashland, who has served as first vice president, received 85.

Considerable comment arose in the morning session when accusations were brought by many women that the nominating committee had been unfair in naming only Mrs. Gabriel for the presidency when requests had come from many to name Mrs. Dodge also. Mrs. W. T. Brice, chairman of the committee, explained that this was done by a vote of three to two and that it was at the discretion of the committee to nominate "one or more" candidates for each office.

Mrs. Dodge was nominated from the floor, Miss Grace Bridges of Portland, former president of the Portland teachers' association, in her nominating speech, setting forth the candidates qualification, her experience and her interest in health activities.

PLANE THE DAWN GETS TEST FLIGHT

Machine Put Through Paces; No Start Anticipated Before Saturday

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Pilot Wilmer Stultz today for two hours put Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane, The Dawn, through its paces in tests for another flight attempt to Europe.

The amphibian, rejuvenated with a new Wright motor to replace the one broken in the flight last Sunday, soared in and around the shore, mostly at low altitudes; to the delight of several hundred persons who shivered on the beach.

Stultz showed his mastery of the ship in the air by swooping like a hawk over the five mile stretch of sand banking up sharply into the wind and climbing steadily to higher altitudes.

Those in the plane besides Stultz were Mrs. Grayson and T. Harold Kinkade, the motor expert. Navigator Brice Goldsborough did not fly today.

The fliers said tonight that only one more hour in the air was needed to satisfy them that the ship was ready to continue its journey to Copenhagen.

It appeared improbable tonight that any attempt to start would be made before Saturday.
