October 29, 1927

Therefore whosoever hears these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. Matthew 7:24 and 25.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN SALEM

South Dakota dedicated her first sugar factory on the 15th. It is in the Black Hills country. It was built and is owned and operated by the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, the company that had experimental plantings in the Salem district in 1924 and 1925.

The company that wanted 1000 to 2000 acres of sugar beets grown here the present year for its Bellingham factory.

The company that is ready to build a factory here, whenever its managers can be absolutely assured of sufficient sugar beet acreage—7,000 to 10,000 acres—to supply a factory with its raw product.

So this event might have been celebrated at Salem, had our people been up on their toes in sufficient numbers. Such an event must be celebrated here before long; will be, and it will be the celebration of the greatest event that ever happened to this valley, in its far reaching significance. But read below the report of the celebration made by its special representative on the ground at Bellefourche, S. D., Oct. 15, to Facts About Sugar, New York, the leading journal of the sugar industry:

"The greatest celebration in the Black Hills country since President Coolidge's visit last summer attended the formal opening here today of the new $1,500,000 factory of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company. Members of South Dakota's congressional delegation, state officials, and delegates from commercial clubs all over the state joined with officials of the sugar company in the dedicatory ceremonies, which were carried out in the presence of several thousand visitors. Among the speakers on the program were United States Senators Norbeck and McMaster and Congressman William Williamson, who represents the third South Dakota district at Washington. Vice-President W. H. Watis headed a delegation of Utah-Idaho company officials from Salt Lake City.

"A feature of the celebration was the auctioning off of the first 100-pound bag of sugar turned out by the factory, which commenced operations October 4. It was bought for $1,000 by the Sioux City Livestock Exchange, which announced that it would be presented to President Coolidge.

"The plant at Bellefourche covers eight acres of ground and the factory has a slicing capacity of 1,500 tons of sugar beets every 24 hours. It will handle beets from 9,000 acres planted this year by farmers of the Bellefourche irrigation block. It is expected that the quantity of beets sliced will be in excess of 100,000 short tons, which will mean a production of around 25,000,000 pounds of sugar.

"Farmers of the district will receive $700,000 for their beet crop and at least $700,000 more, it is figured, will be paid out in wages to factory employees and for materials used in the manufacturing process.

"As Mr. Watis pointed out in his remarks, the establishment of an industry of this size may be expected to have far-reaching economic effects in the district where it is located, not only by providing the farmers with a cash crop which they can sell close by, but also by giving employment to labor, both agricultural and mechanic, enhancing land values, increasing railroad freight traffic, and generally promoting prosperity. Among other results, the springing up of a cattle feeding industry in the neighboring district is anticipated, as beet pulp makes one of the best feeds for fattening stock. More than 5,000 head of cattle will be fattened this fall on this by-product of the plant."

NOT SO IN OREGON

The recent visit of Judge Ben Lindsey and some statistics from the state house at Salem make a basis for some interesting observations. The judge says divorce is increasing at an appalling rate. State Treasurer Kay has figures showing that there have been fewer divorces in Oregon in the last year than during the previous twelve months. Secretary of State Kozar shows by actual figures that Oregon's population has passed a million. More people and fewer divorces. Looks as if Lindsey is wrong in Oregon.—Portland Telegram.

Says an exchange: "Even dog and cat skins are now called for to fill the demand for furs in the big markets. Goat skins are sheared and stenciled into imitation leopard. Gray rat skins make so-called 'baby seal.' Rabbit skins are worked over into 28 different varieties of fur with high sounding names. The lowly animal with a skin that can be adapted into any resemblance of furs of few days and full of trouble. He is born into the world to get his growth and then take his allotted place on milady's shoulders."

There is to be an effort to line up the West Stayton irrigated section with the Lake Labish district, in this way: The Lake Labish district grows celery and head lettuce and asparagus of high quality; better than the best of other districts. The orders are usually for car lots; but in some cases for broken lots. The idea is for the West Stayton section to furnish cauliflower, cabbage, peas and some other vegetables, so that straight cars may be shipped, getting car lot rates. Helping both districts. Good idea. It cannot be carried too far.

The ideas for the 1924 centenary celebration in Salem, and a Jason Lee memorial, and an annual pageant of the pioneers, are being worked out in a preliminary way. Great things are ahead of us.

SHOULDN'T STRESS PRISON FLAX WORK

Some Purchasers, Especially In Foreign Countries, Object, Stated

Soft peddling the connection of the state penitentiary with the flax industry in publicity will be necessary before the industry can attain its maximum proportions, Colonel W. B. Bartram told members of the Lions club yesterday at the weekly luncheon.

A dislike for products manufactured by convict labor is manifested in many states and foreign countries, and some difficulties have been experienced as a result of it.

Colonel Bartram praised the efficiency of the convicts and stated that with proper supervision they would turn out a large amount of meritorious work.

The general belief that the growing of flax weakens the soil is false, said the Colonel. Experience of farmers in this section has been that the microscopic fibrous roots permeating ground in flax fields builds it up.

He cited Fred Schwab of Mount Angel as one who planted corn, put in a former flax field and part in soil not used for flax. Corn stalks in the former flax field were 12 to 18 inches higher.

Flax yields a greater return per acre than any other crop, he stated, the average last year being $63.35 per acre, as against a $30 return on wheat. All requests for acreage cannot be signed up, he said, so anxious are farmers to grow the flax.

A total of $115,000 worth of fiber alone has been sold already this year, he said; mostly abroad, and $51,000 in orders for fiber have been refused in the past few weeks, for the reason that they could not be filled. The sales mentioned do not include returns for flax seed in its various forms, or upholstering tow, paper stock, or stock feed.

Col. Bartram expressed the belief that the flax industry here, only in its bare beginnings, is on the eve of big developments, looking to vast proportions, almost beyond the dreams of present day observers, in the course of the years.

He said that, in the state flax industry and our linen mills, we already have invested here in Salem a good deal more than a million dollars in the industry.

brokerage houses. This was on April 13, 1922, six days after Fall and Sinclair attached their respective signatures to the lease by which Teapot Dome passed from control of the government to that of Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company. Oiler himself visited the Dominion bank agency and carried the bonds away.

in the water, while other survivors who did not see sharks were skeptical. One of the most vivid and gruesome word pictures of the sea beasts after their prey was painted by John Lyra Chavez, a passenger aboard the Mosella.

Ghastly medallions picked out of the darkness by the searchlights of rescue ships, he said, revealed shrieking men, women and children swimming or clinging to wreckage. Some of them were frantically trying to escape huge fierce sharks, he declared. One man was saved from a shark as he clambered aboard a lifeboat by the flashing of a pocket searchlight in the sea beasts eyes, Chavez said.

A steward of the Mosella was an outstanding hero of the night of horrors. Alone in a lifeboat he worked until morning picking up survivors and delivering them to the nearest ship, regardless of whether it was his own.

WHY DO WOMEN NOT AID ERRING GIRLS, QUERIED

clear sky. Now the girl is in the way of having a good home, and solicited care. She is among friends. She will follow the divine admonition given to the woman about to be stoned, to "aim no more."

Though in this case, as in many others, Mrs. Shank believes the now well cared for girl was very much more sinned against than sinning.

Mrs. Shank finds what all persons find who have to deal with boys and girls who have stepped aside from the paths of rectitude—that the prospects for a "bad" boy are much better than for a "bad" girl. Homes can be found easily for all the paroled boys from the state training school; but it is difficult to find proper places to which to send those paroled from the state training school for girls. This is true.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

THROUGHOUT THE WHOLE COUNTRY, AND THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

But the question, again, is: Is it fair? Is it just, to have one unwritten law of society for girls and women and another for boys and men?

Mrs. Shank finds hundreds and hundreds of girls who merely need good homes and kind friends; women who understand them and are willing to mother them and guide them. Few, she thinks, in proportion to the whole number of erring girls, are beyond redemption. But once given a bad name, they are beaten down rather than lifted up. Society is against them. Including bad men and good women.

What is to be done about it? What do you suggest? Mrs. Shank would like to know. She needs the help of good women, in order that she may make her work count for more; in order that she may do more good to the unfortunate girls she has on her hands and on her heart every working day; even in her dreams.

NATIONAL GUARD MAY BE CALLED, COLORADO

and I. W. W. members were massing. The northern Colorado "militarism" of miners, arrived in Walsenberg this afternoon and added over 300 strikers to those from Trinidad, Aguilar and other southern Colorado mining districts who have spent the day in Walsenberg, where the strikers are concentrating all their efforts to close up the mines of the vicinity still operating. Huge mass meetings and demonstrations are planned there for tonight.

Young Girl Trampled
Amelia Sahlich, 19 year old girl, who has been a leader of picketing activities in the southern Colorado fields, was severely injured today when she was trampled by a mine guard's horse. The young girl, who is always attired in a flaming red dress led over 200 strike sympathizers to the Ideal mine of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company this morning. While her followers remained in the rear, she braved the guns and bayonets of the guards before an unruly horse knocked her down. One wrist was broken and she was cut and bruised but physicians said late today her condition was not as serious as believed at first.

Stricken with appendicitis the captain died at sea 11 days ago. The body will be cremated at Tacoma and the ashes sent to Japan. The crew encased the body in concrete, as no other means of preserving the body were available.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS BARRED FROM MEET

LONGVIEW, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Washington high school athletic association in session here today placed a ban on post-season basketball, thus prohibiting any state team participating in the national championship tournament.

The association also ruled that athletes playing with the Timber league, or other semi-professional leagues of clubs, should not be penalized and placed on professional lists provided they received no more than expenses.

The ruling affecting post-season hoop games was the most drastic ever enacted in state high school athletic circles.

"Some small towns with good teams became so enthusiastic that the town hall even is mortgaged to raise funds to send them to tournaments, and the boys came back so 'cocky' that it takes them a year to get back to earth," one coach told the meeting.

DENIES PHIL BAYES IN HAMLIN STABLE

Virgil Hamlin, Portland boxing promoter, operating from the Portland gymnasium, stopped in Salem last night enroute to Portland after attending the boxing card in Albany.

Hamlin is the manager of Battling Slim, the fast and heavy hitting glove pusher who stopped Jack Dillon in the fourth round of the main event here last Wednesday.

The Portland promoter took vigorous exception to a recent report in a local newspaper that Phil Bayes was a fighter in his stable.

"I'm not Phil's manager and never was, although I'd like to have him. The only fight I ever arranged for Phil was the bout with Harrison Wright, Jr."

in Portland against Benny Peltz and that was an emergency substitution," declared Hamlin.

"The report that Jack Nash, one of my fighters has developed a reputation as a draw fighter is strictly untrue. Nash has been in 13 fights since the first of the year. Out of these 13 fights, only two have been draws, one against Bayes at Astoria, and one against McIntyre in Portland. He lost three fights in a row at Spokane, and won two decisions and a knockout in Astoria."

Among the fighters under Hamlin's management are Battling Slim, Mickey Dolan, Phil Jewett, Toughie Wing, Eddie Cartwright, Flash Kelley, Tommy McCarthy, Frankie Repose Wesley Hobbs, Roy Smith, Roy Winters, Joe Marcus, Ray Jefferies, Harold Davis and Stanley Stewart.

Hamlin also has a working agreement with Nate Druxman, Seattle promoter, who has in his stable Frankie Lewis, Freddy Mack, the hard hitting welter, and Sailor Thode.

Hamlin also is the promoter of the wrestling bouts at the Helix theatre in Portland.

Bits For Breakfast

This is cow day—
When the dairymen of Marion county will permanently organize their first cow testing association.

The leading dairymen in the county and the leading creamerymen, too, being behind it. The meeting is at the Salem Chamber of Commerce at 11 o'clock.

The Statesman has a good many thousands of friends and well wishers who will be interested in knowing, and pleased with the information that this newspaper is finishing the banner October in its history in volume of business; with prospects ahead for certain steady growth. And, faith, it is needed, in bearing the expenses of installing the new press.

Good idea that, of the Santiam irrigation district growers cooperating with the Lake Labish vegetable growers in making up car lot vegetable consignments when broken lot orders for certain shipments are in hand. The car lot rates will help both, and enable great development to be made in our vegetable industries.

Col. W. B. Bartram said several mouthful (or is it mouthfuls?) to the Salem Lions yesterday, when he talked to the local den about the flax industry. Opened the eyes of the cubs and even enlightened some of the mature kings of beasts with regard to what this district has in the way of prospects for vast developments in the growing of flax and the manufacturing of fine linens and the hundred or more other commercial articles made from the miracle plant that grows in 70 to 90 days and outlasts the lives of forty generations of men.

Where is the business center of Salem going to be 20 years hence? Johnny Hawkes of Spokane, who You can get up an argument on failed to appear.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Will naturally exist concerning the beneficial possibilities and healing merits of a natural product such as PACIFIC HEALTH-ORE.

That NATURE could score where science is baffled might at first thought appear a fallacy.

"Impossible"—say some who are ethically inclined—"a remedy—to be effective—must be definitely and scientifically compounded."

But—is not science continually making new discoveries in the realm of Nature? Is it not demonstrated times without number that Nature provides some specific or neutralizing agent to combat each menace? Is this not an age of rapid changes—changes which come so speedily that theory today is practice tomorrow and the scientific beliefs of one year are proved to be fallacies the next?

Evidence of sensational results in the use of this natural product is overwhelming—can we doubt or ignore it? From the sale of thousands of packages under the positive money-back guarantee—requests for only ten refunds have been received.

"Must say we think it wonderful—it has helped us so much" writes a lady from Idaho who is using it in the treatment of goiter, her husband for high blood pressure. "Best remedy I have ever found for stomach trouble" writes a man from New Mexico. Diabetes—colitis—numerous chronic ailments have yielded to this treatment.

HERE'S THE SECRET

It supplies the system with vital elements—lacking in many cases—which enable Nature to combat the conditions producing the ailment.
