Elsinore Theater
In all her years of picture making, Constance Talmadge thinks the greatest comedy role of her life is in "Breakfast at Sunrise," now showing at the Elsinore theater.

Naturally gifted for subtleties, Miss Talmadge was given free rein by Mal St. Clair, the director, to instill her personality and individuality in the film.

The result is a Constance Talmadge who has at last found the sort of role she likes to do best—one that is replete with sophisticated humor.

"Breakfast at Sunrise" is a story of French life and a strange marriage pact that develops so many complications it has the principals in the case in a maze to unravel it.

Supporting Miss Talmadge is Don Alvarado, a new leading man, and Bryant Washburn, Alice White, Marie Dressler, Nellie Ely Baker and Burr McIntosh.

Capitol Theater
Actors are born and not made. Some famous authority not so long ago. Since then, many a member has said, "my little girl is a born actress," in telling of her antics.

As a child, Leora Thatcher was undoubtedly "a born actress," according to her parents. They never knew when she was going to start "acting," or with what results.

Her family lived in Logan, Utah

(the home of John Gilbert, by the way.) Once, when one of her sisters was ill, Leora had a particularly bad attack of "dramatic." Her mother was away from home that afternoon. Leora hung a big piece of black crepe on the door, and sat out on the front porch sobbing violently as neighbors passed. When a sympathetic crowd gathered, Leora ran into the house, pulled up the shade, tore her hair and fell moaning at the side of the bed in full view of everyone.

The mother returned home before the people realized they were being hoaxed, and even so, the rumor got around town that there was a death in the Thatcher family. Mrs. Thatcher was kept busy answering the telephone the rest of the day, denying the rumor.

Today, Leora Thatcher, as one of the prominent members of the Moroni Olsen Players, finds plenty of opportunity for a safe outlet to her dramatic energy, although she still loves to play pranks on her fellow actors. She will be seen here soon as the Mrs. Reverend Ann Head, the woman whose "amazing maternal enthusiasm" is responsible for the twins in John Hastings Turner's sparkling comedy, "The Lilies of the Field," which will be presented here Thursday, November 17 at the Capitol theater. The Moroni Olsen Players are being sponsored in Salem this year by the Salem Lions Club.

COURT ACTION SEEN

MOULTON'S ADDITION TO STORE SAID VIOLATION

Sharp action will be taken against Moulton and Son for alleged violation of the city zoning ordinance by building two living rooms on the rear of a store on the north side of Parrish junior high school, a class one residential section, according to a resolution passed by the commission last night.

City Attorney Fred Williams was instructed to institute immediate proceedings against the store owners who have leased the property from Rich Reiman.

The commission at its last meeting informed Mr. Moulton that his store was in the residence district simply because it was already there when the zoning ordinance went into effect, but that any extension of the store building, even for living quarters, would be a violation of the ordinance. He was advised not to extend the store, but to build a separate residence for living quarters. Mr. Moulton disregarded the dictum of the commission, it is said, and went ahead with the extension, threatening to sue the city if it interfered.

JUNK YARD OPPOSED

ZONING PLANNING AND COMMISSION TO TAKE ACTION

H. Steinbock will meet with difficulties if he persists in his intention to take up junk shop quarters in a building on Ferry street between Church and High.

The city planning and zoning commission so decided after a discussion of the matter last night.

City Attorney Williams announced that he was prepared to take action against Steinbock for occupancy in violation of the zoning act which prohibits him from operating in class three district, and that criminal action charging maintenance of a nuisance also might be instituted.

Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, assistant county health officer, has investigated the proposed business and pronounced it hazardous to public health, and property owners in the district are said to be up in arms against Steinbock's moving in.

Mrs. Lenta Westcott and Jonathan Bourne are joint owners of the building which Steinbock seeks to occupy.

That the passage of time had not dulled Lindbergh's popularity in the capital, to which he returned for his first triumphal welcome in this country, was attested throughout the day. Throngs cheered him from the time he landed. His appearance was marked everywhere by a quick gathering of admirers, and when he walked to the White House, accompanied by fellow aviators, he did not succeed in avoiding attention by passing in the rear of the crowd awaiting him.

Lindy Meets Ruth
The first meeting between Lindbergh and Ruth Elder took place as they waited for luncheon to be served at the White House. Lindbergh accompanied Mrs. Coolidge to the table, while the president accompanied Miss Elder.

Upon leaving the executive mansion, Lindbergh blushing posed for photographers standing beside Miss Elder. When he had left, she said: "He's a peach." Lindbergh, guarded by police, dodged across the White House lawn to the war department for a talk with F. Trabee Davison, assistant secretary of war.

The only airman invited to the luncheon who could not attend was Bert Acosta, who was detained in New York state by engine trouble, while enroute here by air.

Other veterans of transatlantic hops who were guests of the president included Commander Byrd, Bernt Balchen, George O. Noville,

QUALITY OF OREGON FOXES ASTONISHING

Fanciers From Prince Edward Island Admit Fur Equals Own Product

Astonishment—not mere surprise—was expressed by prominent fur fanciers at the quality of the Oregon grown silver fox pelts exhibited at the Pacific International, according to Dr. C. A. Welsh, past president of the state fox breeders' association, who spoke at the chamber of commerce luncheon yesterday.

Even fur growers from Prince Edward Island, the home of the silver fox, admitted that the quality was fully equal to that produced on their farms.

Dr. Welsh traced the development of the industry from its earliest days to the present time when it has become the fourth largest in New York state and among the top largest in the United States.

Steady progress has been made since 1900 when a pelt brought $1800 in London. The average price between 1907-1912 was four times the price obtained by silver foxes of the Hudson Bay company in early Oregon history. There are now 800 fox fur growers in Oregon, and the annual income for pelts alone is from half a million to a million dollars a year—and this does not include the money that changed hands for foxes for breeding purposes.

Dr. Welsh said that half to a third of the foxes on exhibition at the Pacific International were Oregon bred.

Market Is Improving
He said the 1927 market for pelts is 50 to 60 per cent higher than last year. The best grades now bring up to $550 a pelt, and the big buyers want all they can get.

He said that there is bound to be a time in the future of still higher prices for the best pelts.

Geo. Vick, Salem, a new breeder, er, took second prize at the Pacific International, being called on, he said he believes the industry here is a promising one, that he expects to help develop the industry in this district—that he will take some of his vacation time looking after his foxes.

Women wear furs not so much for warmth as for beauty, said Dr. Welsh. Alaska produces heavier furs than Oregon, but the cold, damp climate with a minimum of snow here, produces in the fur remarkable texture, which increases its market value.

CHOICE AWARD GIVEN LINDY BY PRESIDENT

capitalizing his fame commercially.

"This courageous, clear-headed, sure-handed youth, whose character has withstood the glare of publicity and the acid test of hero worshiping and adulation, became an apostle of aeronautics," said Mr. Coolidge.

The speech was punctuated with enthusiastic applause from the illustrious audience, and as the president concluded he posed for photographers as he pinned the medal on the flier's breast.

Gathering Historical
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh returned to Washington today to receive from the hands of President Coolidge the coveted Hubbard medal, and to be acclaimed by an historical gathering of other ocean fliers who made the last year memorable for aviation.

The Hubbard medal is an award of the National Geographic society for outstanding accomplishment in exploration. The award places young Lindbergh alongside such illustrious pioneers as Commander Robert E. Peary, Sir Ernest Shackleton and Commander Richard E. Byrd, who were among the seven to receive the medal previously.

High Officials Present
Those invited to hear President Coolidge present the medal, tonight at Washington auditorium and to hear Lindbergh speak of his epochal flight, included the most prominent members of Washington governmental and diplomatic circles, and privileged to sit with the president and Lindbergh on the stage were seventeen of the intrepid American aviators, the one girl who survived hops over the Atlantic ocean, and Lindbergh's mother, who came here with him from New York by airplane.

That the passage of time had not dulled Lindbergh's popularity in the capital, to which he returned for his first triumphal welcome in this country, was attested throughout the day. Throngs cheered him from the time he landed. Have You Acid Scalp?

If your hair won't keep the simplest wave for several days, there is probably too much acidity. A condition that causes hair to be stubbornly straight and stringy, and to lack all lustre. Acid scalp. From the hour you check this excessive acidity your hair will set and appear very different. It will arrange easily in any style that becomes, for it will have lovely softness, and all the sheen all healthy hair normally has. Danderine will neutralize the acid, and actually dissolve every particle of dandruff scale. Your hair won't need anything else to keep it fresh, wholesome, and free from the least objectionable taint that is too often noticed in otherwise fastidious women.

Danderine sells for only thirty-five cents at any drugstore, and as only a few drops on comb or towel will do the work, a bottle lasts for weeks!

GENERAL OBREGON ATTACKED, MEXICO

One of Three Would Be Assassinated Dies From Wounds Received

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Antonio Terado, one of three men held at police headquarters for the attempted assassination of Alvaro Obregon, presidential candidate, died today from bullet wounds received while fleeing from the scene, according to information in possession of capital newspaper.

Police headquarters, however, refused to confirm or deny the report. They declined to make any official statement other than investigations are continuing in an effort to determine who was responsible for the plot to assassinate the former president who is a candidate for election a second time.

The three men arrested are considered by police to be the tools of others, perhaps political enemies. One of the attackers, is said by police to be a shoemaker and another a barber.

The only arrest besides that of the two wounded and one unwounded man accused of making the attack, is Miguel Alessio Robles, formerly a member of Obregon's cabinet. Robles is prominent in the anti-re-electionist political party which opposes Obregon and supported the presidential candidacy of the recently executed Arnulfo Gomez.

Obregon, who escaped with scratches and powder burns on his one hand and one of his cheeks, received many congratulations from friends who gathered all day long at his residence and campaign headquarters to extend their felicitations. Obregon appeared smiling and happy at his campaign offices.

Aumsville Parent-Teacher Bazaar To Be Held Friday

AUMSVILLE, Nov. 14.—(Special)—On Friday, November 18, the Parent-Teacher association of Aumsville will hold its fifth annual bazaar in the Amos McDaniel school building. The public is invited to help the association make this a big success, and in turn to promise an enjoyable time.

The ladies will serve a chicken dinner at noon and at 6:30 in the evening. The program in the evening will be put on by high school and grade pupils. Moore's Music house of Salem and the Sutez Serenaders of Aumsville.

CRIPPLED TAXI SERVICE
TOLEDO, Ohio.—A taxicab is out of commission, all because of a pretty little animal that ran out of a building and straight into the standing cab. "Here kitty, kitty," said the driver. Then he clutched at his nose. Another driver approached. "That ain't no cat," he said. "That's a skunk." The pretty little animal finally was persuaded to leave the cab but not until its interior was permeated with a pungent odor.

MOIST NOMINEE TO FORCE ISSUE

SENATOR WALSH, DEMOCRAT, OUTLINES VIEWS

No Platform Declarations Can Keep Question Out, He Declares in Speech

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Nomination by the democrats of an "outstanding wet" for the presidency will force the wet and dry issue into the next campaign regardless of platform declarations and the merit of issues, Senator Walsh, of Montana, ardent dry, asserted here today.

In a talk to the National Women's Democratic league, Senator Walsh, who was chairman of the last democratic national convention and who has been mentioned as a presidential candidate, outlined his views on the platform, but emphasized that a platform would be immaterial if a "wet" were nominated.

While not mentioning any names, the Montana senator left no doubt that he considered Governor Smith of New York as one of those candidates who, if nominated, would project the prohibition issue into the next campaign, regardless of platform declarations.

Speaking on the subject of "how I would write the 1928 platform," Senator Walsh outlined a platform to provide:

Farm relief, including tariff reductions, construction of the Great Lake and St. Lawrence waterway project, and rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

A radical change in the foreign policy with a view to regaining "at least a little good will from the other nations of the world."

Reorganization of the federal reserve system.

Further legislation to restrict the use of the writ of injunction in labor disputes.

Contrary to the custom of years, Senator Walsh would make the platform brief, confining it to controversial questions only, so that "everyone might be tempted to read it."

A man may bomb a government building without very much disturbing anyone, but if he looks askance "more in pity than in anger" at men's follies, he may be whipped out of town.—The Bookman.

FATHERS, SONS JOIN

GENERAL GET-TOGETHER AT YMCA FOLLOWS BANQUET

One of the finest and most representative gatherings ever held in the local YMCA took place last night when about 400 fathers and sons showed up for the evening's entertainment. While there were several father and son banquets held last evening in the city, the big meeting at the Y was a sort of a general wind-up of the day where all the smaller gatherings got together in one large whole and finished off the day.

Athletics—individual contests between the fathers and their sons—formed the entertainment. Many a dad who hadn't seen the inside of a gymnasium in years was "shown up" by his 12-year-old son. The barometer test, chinning, basket throwing, spring board jump, target throwing and many others—in all of these Dad was frequently shown up for what he is—a pudgy old fellow whose waist line has long ago proclaimed him a back number in athletics.

Under the direction of Maxie Langford the boys put on a tank demonstration in the big plunge in the basement. The last number on the program was a game of indoor baseball between two teams chosen from the fathers on one side and the sons on the other. Needless to say, the sons won, by a score of 9 to 7.

Wesley Healy gave the welcoming talk. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close with a general serving of cider and doughnuts.
