

STAGE AND SCREEN

Elsinore

A pulse-stirring romance that rocked three nations and played a dramatic part in the story of California to the United States 70 years ago is the theme of "Elsinore of the Golden West," which shows at the Elsinore theater tomorrow.

George Fitzmaurice, who gave the screen "The Dark Angel," "The Tender Hour" and other successes, offers the theater-going public a thoroughly satisfying and thrilling love story in a gorgeous setting, that of the rich country by the Pacific when it was ruled by the Spanish dons.

Gallant caballeros ride at midnight to keep treaties with starry-eyed senoritas. Hot-blooded patriots battle the intrigues of nations fighting for possession of the golden western empire. Adventure, hand to hand struggles between a handsome hero and his antagonists, a gorgeous moonlight fiesta beneath the cypress trees of Monterey, appealing love scenes between a handsome youth and a beautiful girl—these are some of the elements of "Elsinore of the Golden West."

Mary Astor reveals still further beauty and artistry as the English-Spanish heroine in an instrumental part in endangering her lover's life and who then makes a great sacrifice to save him. Her opportunities are greater than in John Barrymore's "Don Juan" or "The Rough Riders," and she has obtained full value for each of them.

Gilbert Roland is amazing as the young patriot-hero. He fits the romantic caballero costume because born to it and proves himself one of the screen's greatest lovers. This youth, who became famous with his portrayal of the role of Armand in Norma Talmadge's "Camille," acquires himself in this First National picture with a deep sincerity that wins his audience immediately. He has the stature and carriage of a young Greek god, and his love scenes with Mary Astor are sure to cause his fan mail to increase heavily.

Oregon
A story of fighting love and a succession of rousing thrills will be shown when "Arizona Bound," the first picture presenting Gary Cooper, Paramount's new Western star, opens at the Oregon today.

Cooper impresses one as being an actor of exceptional personality, with a tall, splendid physique that accords perfectly with the prevalent idea of the typical cowboy.

The picture abounds in suspense and thrilling action, and its manner of unfolding reflects great credit on John Waters, Paramount's famous director of Zane Grey stories, and now assigned to insure the new star an auspicious start. The backgrounds are especially beautiful.

The story deals with the adventures of Cooper, regarded as rather a ne'er-do-well, but transformed by his love for his sweetheart and the necessity of relieving himself from unjust suspicion. How his problems are finally solved, makes a strong, swift-moving story. Cooper is aided by an admirable supporting cast, headed by the beautiful "velvet-eyed girl," Betty Jewel, and El Brendel, a comedian who is a positive riot of mirth.

Probably with the knowledge that a screen cowboy's equine companion is of the utmost importance, Cooper has provided himself with the most beautiful horse that this reviewer has ever seen in motion pictures. His name, it appears, is Flash and he threatens to rival the popularity of Tony, Silver King and Rex.

TEACHING OF DEAF SHOWN ROTARIANS

Lip Reading Mastered First At Oregon School, Lyman Steed Explains

How deaf children are taught reading, writing, and arithmetic was demonstrated to Salem Rotarians at the luncheon yesterday by a group of the state deaf school pupils, and instructors under the direction of Superintendent Lyman Steed.

Mrs. Steed conducted pupils of three different classes through exercises. A Dutch dance, a marching drill by a group of eleven boys in natty red-white and blue soldier costumes, and a brief talk by Superintendent Steed completed the program.

Superintendent Steed traced the development of instruction for the deaf from the earliest times to the French origin, the sign for "girl" for instance, being manipulation of the hands to denote a bonnet with strings.

The oral method was first used in this country at Northampton, and at present school authorities are evenly divided between the two methods.

Sixty per cent of the pupils at the local school are children who were deaf at birth, or who became so before the age of four. Fifty-four per cent of the deafness was caused by disease, and six per cent is of unknown origin.

Lip reading, or the oral method, is stressed in the instruction here, pupils not being taught the sign language until they have mastered lip reading.

The average term of a pupil in the school is 12 years, and six or seven years of instruction in reading and writing is necessary before arithmetic can be successfully taught.

Instructors present at the luncheon besides Superintendent and Mrs. Steed were Miss Margaret Schumacker, Mrs. Elva Sutter, and Miss E. M. Esther Morris.

Raymond Griffith is in Europe making pictures.

Laura La Plante's kid sis, Violet, is breaking into films.

PARALYSIS ON RISE

REPORTS FROM VARIOUS SECTIONS SHOW SIGNS

SHERIDAN, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The schools of this city have been ordered closed for the rest of the week as a result of the illness of Leona Atkins, 9 years old. Physician diagnosed her disease as infantile paralysis.

MARSHFIELD, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Approximately 200 employees of veneer plants in this city were sent home from work today after health officers had informed employers that persons under 21 years of age must not work in groups due to the prevalence of infantile paralysis. The city library has been closed until further notice.

MYRTLE POINT, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—A quarantine ban has been placed over this city as a precautionary measure against infantile paralysis. Quarantine signs will be placed on the Marshfield highway and the Coos Bay-Roseburg highway to prevent entrance of children into the city.

COQUILLE, Ore., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Several grade school rooms in Coquille have been closed for a two weeks period as a guard against the spread of infantile paralysis here. The action was taken today after teachers of the rooms had attended a theater party in Marshfield.

Jack Mulhall will play the title role of the screen version of "The Butler and Egg Man."

Walter L. Tooze Secures Acquittal For L. Sheeley

Walter L. Tooze, prominent Minnville attorney, who secured an acquittal for his client, Lester Sheeley, in Federal Judge Robert S. Bean's court in Portland yesterday, spent a few hours in Salem last night on the way home.

Sheeley, whom Tooze defended, is city attorney at Vernonia. He was charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, and along with others was on trial in the federal court on that charge. The sensational nature of the charges attracted wide attention to the case.

Tooze secured an acquittal on the ground that federal agents were bent on "getting" Sheeley for the part he played in the alleged falling of an intoxicated federal "stool pigeon," and that the charges against him were framed. Defendants at the trial besides Sheeley were Roy and Mabel Ryckman and Gordon C. Granger. All were convicted except Sheeley. They were defended by other attorneys.

NEW VICTIM CLAIMED
PORTLAND, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Infantile paralysis claimed another death in this city today—this time within a few hours after the child had been stricken. Naomi Marble, four, was the victim.

ARMY DELAYS PLAN

BUILDING FUND KEPT INACTIVE PENDING LATER DRIVE

With the visit of the state commander here Tuesday, the local Salvation Army was able to finalize matters pertaining to its recent campaign for building and maintenance fund, and now desires publicly to announce the results. The report is made through Dr. E. F. Pound, chairman of the Army's city and county advisory board.

"It must be now well known that our building campaign did not get over the top," said the doctor, "nor were we successful in getting what we went after, for various reasons, chief of which was our getting started too close to state fair week, and also to the fact that the community chest was looming large on the horizon. The sentiment favoring a new building for the Army was strong, and those who were seen in the matter responded readily.

Approximately $2300 was raised for the building project, most of which amount was pledged. At a meeting of the board, at which the Army's state leader was present, it was decided that this fund was to be kept intact, pending a future date when it is hoped conditions generally will be more favorable to a building campaign. E. B. Millard, of the Ladd and Bush bank, will have charge of this fund, he having been appointed treasurer of the Army's home service activities.

"With apparent failure of the building drive facing us, our next move was to go after the maintenance fund, which the building objective would have provided had it been realized.

The amount raised for this in the neighborhood of $2,100, nearly half of which is in pledges. This is less than half of the amount that is actually needed for the local work during the next twelve months. It was not so bad, however, considering the fact that chest sentiment was still working, and the Y. M. C. A. was now entering the field with its annual campaign. We consider the response made to our annual appeal all that we could expect, under the circumstances, and I take this opportunity to thank, on behalf of the advisory committee, and for the local Army leaders, Ensign and Mrs. Pitt, all the good people of Salem who gave of their means as well as those who, at the beginning of the campaign, gave us so of their services."

COAST GUARD SHIP GIVEN FRISCO DUTY

Cutter Algonquin Transferred From Astoria To Pursue Rum Runners

PORTLAND, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Transfer of the United States coast guard cutter Algonquin from the Astoria base to San Francisco for temporary duty pursuing rum runners, has been ordered, and today the Portland steamship operators' association was requested by the Astoria chamber of commerce to join in an effort to have the cutter Haida assigned from Seattle to replace the Algonquin in the Columbia river district.

Steamshipmen point out that conditions at the mouth of the Columbia river and vicinity at times during the winter period necessitate the availability of a cutter for emergencies and that at this particular season the district should not be left unprotected.

Coincidentally, the Portland Steamship Operators' association had taken up at today's meeting the subject of the permanent assignment to the Columbia river of one of the new coast guard cutters under construction at the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation. It was suggested that the vessel be named Salsjawa.

About a year ago the steamship
