BUILDING CODE GROUP TO BE SELECTED SOON

officials or directors.

It also was announced here Saturday that the state board of control will soon undertake the collection of data and preparation of estimates of a building programme for public institutions for the state of Oregon up to the year 1939, under authorization of house concurrent resolution No. 11 approved at the last legislative session.

The recommendations of the board of control, together with all data secured during the investigation, shall be submitted to the next legislature.

In this report to the legislature the board of control will include detailed information as to the character of buildings that will be required, the estimated cost of construction, and for what purpose they would be used.

The resolution provided specifically that all officials, whether elective or appointive, together with their employes, shall cooperate with the board of control in this undertaking.

Members of the board of control indicated that in working out a tentative building programme for the period covered in the resolution a number of important matters would have to be taken into consideration. The board cannot determine definitely the growth of the state in the future, and necessarily will have to base its recommendations on the growth of the state institutions in the past.

It is likely that the board of control will begin its investigations soon after January 1 in order that it may complete its recommendations not later than October 1. The legislature failed to authorize any appropriation in connection with the survey, other than providing for the printing of the report.

ART EXHIBIT PLAN FOR LESLIE HIGH

Passing a certain modest home, he saw a very beautiful young mother sitting with her baby in her lap out in the garden. He asked for permission to make a sketch of her, and noticing the head of a barrel near by he picked it up and used it upon which to make the sketch.

The original painting is beautiful in color. The Italian women are fond of stripes of gay colors, so the shawl and scarf on the mother's head represent all colors of the rainbow. The baby is held very close in his mother's arms. The little brother has a cross in his arms, faintly seen. This is always the symbol that a good old hermit, called Father Bernardo, who lived near her father's home in the Italian hills. One time a dreadful storm swept away his home and he sought refuge in an old oak tree. When Mary found him he had been three days without food and was half dead from exposure to the cold and rain. She took him home with her and cared for him until his home could be rebuilt. He used to pray that both Mary and the oak tree should be blessed for saving his life. The old oak was cut down and made into barrels and so it came to pass that the oak tree furnished the circle of wood for the portrait of Mary and her children to be painted upon. Certainly the good old hermit's prayer was realized; both Mary and the oak tree have been immortalized.
