C. D. Carter of Hillsboro and M. A. Grayson of Portland Arrested

PORTLAND, Nov. 21.—(AP)—C. D. Carter of Hillsboro, and M. A. Grayson of Portland, both students of the Oregon Agricultural college, were held Saturday night by Portland police for the sheriff of Clackamas county accused of having attacked Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Knott on the Pacific highway one mile south of Oregon City early today.

Police were looking for Martell Nolan, 29, of Los Angeles, another student, who was said to have been with Carter and Grayson during the attack. The trio is said by Knott to have driven up behind his car near Aurora, and by continuous sounding of the horn, to have forced him to speed 15 miles an hour before they finally drove around him.

Near Oregon City, he said, the students stopped their car so it blocked the road. Knott stopped and when he got out of his machine, the youth identified as Carter is said to have climbed out of the other auto and without a word to have knocked Knott unconscious with a blow to the face.

SAND AUDIT READY

REPORT WILL BE MADE TO LAND BOARDS TODAY

The report of the auditors who have been at work for several weeks investigating the books of the various sand and gravel operators in the state of Oregon, will be submitted to the stand land boards of Oregon and Washington at a meeting to be held here today.

The audit was authorized to determine the amount of sand that these operators have removed from the Columbia and Willamette rivers. The land boards of Oregon and Washington contend that the sand and gravel operators are subject to pay royalty on all sand removed from navigable streams in Oregon, including the Columbia river. The companies have paid royalty of 10 cents per cubic yard on gravel taken from the navigable streams, but no effort was made until recently to collect royalty on sand.

Any royalty received on sand taken from the Columbia river will be divided equally between the states of Oregon and Washington.

DEATH BAFFLES POLICE

Warehouse Owner Apparently Climbed Into Car to Die NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP).—The mystery of the disappearance of Jay A. Melish in a fire which destroyed his warehouse last Wednesday was cleared here with the finding of his body in the ruins, but another mystery surrounding the circumstances of his death then took its place. The body was discovered sitting in the rear seat of a sedan in a far corner of the huge building. It was remote from an entrance through which Melish had dashed into the blazing structure shortly before firemen came and police were at a loss to explain why and how he had gone so far through the fire and smoke. One theory advanced was that he had found himself cut off from his office by the rapid spread of the flames and had made for another entrance near which his body was found. Why he had climbed into the sedan firemen were unable to explain.
