SIDELIGHTS OF THE Stage and Screen

Capitol Theater

William Boyd, star of "Dress Parade," a new Pathe-DeMille Special production, a story of the Cadet life at U. S. Military Academy at West Point, spent a strenuous period of four weeks during the filming of the photoplay at the Academy. The picture will be on view at the Capitol today.

He entered as a "Plebe" and the classman who took him in hand is inclined to think that the upper forgot that he was just an actor, playing the role of a cadet.

"If I went to West Point with any idea of my own importance, I just lost it in the area of 'beast barracks,'" said Boyd.

Boyd got many a thrill for being mistaken for a real "Plebe" and took many call-downs humbly without protest.

One day while he was strolling from location in the barracks, he happened to be smoking a cigarette. An upper classman called him to attention, and ordered him to take that "snag out of his mouth," which he did. The plebes are not allowed to walk across the area which is the quadrangle surrounded by the barracks, but they have to go on a dog trot and more than once did Boyd find himself breaking into double time before the stern member of the "beast detail." When the boys enter th Academy, they are called "beasts" for two months and then become "Plebes." They are received into the corps at dress parade and from then on march with them.

Another day Boyd was lounging in the area, waiting for a call and an upper classman who did not recognize him called him to attention. He put him through his paces with such orders as "squeeze your neck back," "put wrinkles in your chin," and then disapproving of his awkward attempts to oblige, he bawled, "What Company do you belong to?" Boyd replied: "The DeMille Company, sir."

Many such incidents occurred daily and Boyd got quite a thrill at the thought of being a real West Pointer.

Bessie Love plays a featured feminine role opposite Boyd and other members of the cast are Hugh Allan, Louis Natheaux, Clarence Geldert and Maurice Ryan.

Only experts in the art of cauliflower ears and solar plexi will be seen in Monte Blue's starring vehicle, "One Round Hogan." The latest of the leather pushing connoisseurs to be signed is Tom Gallery, well known as the match maker of the Hollywood Legion Stadium as well as a very competene actor. Gallery will play the part of brother to Leila Hyams, Monte's leading lady, and pal of Monte, who, in one of the fight picture's exciting ring scenes, will knock him out.

James J. Jeffries of international fame appears in "One Round Hogan" as Monte's father, and, according to Director Howard Bretherton, "Jim" is as good an actor as he ever was a fighter. Frank Hagney has a very important heavy role, and others in the cast are the Texas Kid, and Abdul the Turk, well known ring and theater characters.

Charles R. Condon adapted "One Round Hogan" from a story by F. L. Giffin. The Warner Bros.' production comes to the Capitol theater Wednesday for a run of two days.

CONTESTANT LIST PUBLISHED TODAY

Nominations Only Shown: Real Test Will Be Getting of Subscribers

(By the Contest Editor)

The notice of each and every contestant is called to the published list of candidates in The Statesman's automobile contest which appears for the first time in today's paper. If there is anyone who has entered the race and whose name does not appear, please notify the contest editor immediately.

I am wondering if you are taking advantage of the bonus offer of 200,000 extra votes for two yearly subscriptions, or their equivalent, to The Statesman turned in during the first week of the candidate's entry. This is an opportunity of a life time to get a good start. You are, at the same time, getting the regular schedule votes on your subscriptions. This vote offer is the largest vote offer in the whole contest. It will mean everything for you to get in on it. I am sure that you will not regret working for one of the big prizes.

Nominations are not closed. In fact, there are more prizes than there are active candidates. Opportunity without a handicap is here today for new entries who will "carry on."

The list published today must not be misunderstood. The names printed are just nominations. The list only serves to show who is entered. It does not indicate the live, active candidates. Many who have been nominated have failed to turn in one single subscription. Some have not even called to get the official receipt book. They are, so far, candidates in name only, nothing more.

Subscriptions Only Count

Candidates who will not produe subscriptions cannot hope to win. The more subscriptions you can produce, the more votes you will earn. The free coupons appearing in The Statesman from day to day are valuable only in the degree you enhance your vote score by subscriptions. There is absolutely no hope in coupons alone.

Coupons are printed primarily to stimulate interest. Of course, they have some vote value, but in order to win, you must have subscriptions as well as coupons. The simple nomination of a candidate does not mean anything. The nomination is but the first step, the starting point. Anyone content to rest after nomination, cannot get far in this contest. Active work, honest effort, constant attention to the business in hand, and that alone can get votes. And votes win. And subscriptions mean votes.

With so few candidates active and so many of those not yet at least manifesting any life or activity, the opportunity is here for some live ones to enter and carry on to win. In fact, the more candidates entered, the less votes it will take to win.

If two candidates are running for office, they must have all the votes between them, the winner must have a majority of over half of the votes cast, but if five candidates seek the same office, the winner only needs to have more votes than the next higher candidate.

Then, too, in this contest ("Everybody Wins Something") there is the Oakland Six sedan, the Chrysler sedan, Ford phaetons, radios, electric washers, diamond rings, many cash prizes, and remember, too, the cash commission of 20 per cent paid all active, non-winning participants. In an election for office, but one candidate wins. In The Statesman's contest, everybody wins; you win.

Any contestant who has entered the race and his or her name does not appear in the printed list, kindly notify the contest editor immediately.

HELEN OF TROY SEAT SALE BIG

Crowded Houses Expected During 5-Day Run At Elsinore

This is one of the most economical bedtime stories which ever was offered the public. Because not a single—or double—bed is necessary. But since it is a bedtime story and everybody has sworn himself to sleep with bedtime stories, it shall be broadcasted.

Once upon a time there was a girl named Helen who did not work in a Troy laundry. This girl simply didn't find it necessary to work. She was that kind. In fact she was a queen.

Historians insist she was in possesion of a phyisiognomy that launched a thousand ships.

(Insert: "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" will be shown at the Elsinore from Tuesday till Saturday inclusive.)

And it came to pass that some time later a man was born and people were to look upon him and call him George Guthrie. Furthermore circumstances led him to become a theatrical man.

Came the time when a man who has a pencil which turns out stuff which interests nations, wrote "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." Then it was filmed, and the critics looked upon it and called it good, and George Guthrie, with an ear metaphorically to the ground, smiled a smile and called Western Union.

And he arranged it so that everyone in Salem may see something unusual—something brilliant, something subtle.

And if the amusing Hebrew writer, Milt Cross, were asked if every Salemite should see something so good, he would answer: "Did I say 'No'?"

The Elsinore box office is expected to be stormed for five days—and the management, ever intrepid, declares it can brave five more stormy days.

REVIEWING HINTS GIVEN FOR AMATEUR CRITICS

treatment from any previous photoplay. Professor John Erskine, who wrote the book upon which the film produced by First National Picture, Inc., is based, took an original slant on the story of the immortal Helen's life and loves. And Alexander Korda, who directed the picture gave it an original treatment. It cannot be compared to any other picture, because it is different and depends on unique means to elicit laughter.

The best of the amateur reviews received are to be printed daily through Friday, the prize winners being announced in these columns each day. Prizes will be awarded at the Statesman's office next day after the publication and during the showing of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

If you are a motion picture "fan," if you read the newspapers, you just know you can write as good or perhaps a better review than the professional commentators. Here's your chance to prove it—and earn a prize.

BRANCH PRISON NEED, SEGREGATE CONVICTS

be located and built on some lime rock deposit.

Lime Need Stressed

"Large areas of land in western Oregon and Washington are badly in need of lime. The requirement, when made available at a low cost to the farmers, will run into hundreds of thousands of tons.

"At the present time, the state is grinding agricultural lime rock in a small way at the penitentiary. This lime costs $1.35 per ton at the quarry and a further charge of $2.05 per ton freight. Most of these charges will be eliminated by larger operations as suggested.

"With this branch institution realized, it would enable the state to classify and segregate the prisoners, keeping those who might be recovered to society at the old penitentiary employed in industries for the time being."

Opposes Wage System

Colonel Bartram declared that replacement of the wage system with a merit system would work to increase contentment of the prisoners, develop greater efficiency, and improve character.

Officers of the institution and the governor's secretary would replace the present parole board. Knowing that the prison officers constituted the parole board, the prisoners would have more incentive for good conduct, said Colonel Bartram.

The colonel outlined the progress made in the flax industry here, and paid a special tribute to a few people who have worked to bring it about.

"It was a wise and far-seeing mind that conceived the idea of growing fiber flax in western Oregon," he said.

Those named as having wied the greatest influence were Jos. B. Kay, B. C. Miles, John McAry, Tom Livesley, R. O. Snelling and R. J. Hendricks.

Increased scutching facilies will be provided by the board of control as rapidly as possible for the two spinning mills in Salem are consuming more flax and tow than is being produced.

The retting facilities also will be increased, at least 50 per cent. Two additional flax sheds will be built to care for the increased acreage, and 10 new pulling machines will be built in local shops to harvest the additional acreage. A saving of $600 on each machine is accomplished by having them built locally.

During the past 10 months the sales of flax, flax products and lime totalled $170,000. The sales for the previous four years amounted to $263,000. Although the sales since April 1, 1927, have totalled $170,000, business in the neighborhood of $100,000 has been refused on account of inability to supply it, Colonel Barram said.

Mrs. Lizzie Sanders Dies At Auburn Home; Pioneer

AUBURN, Or., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Mrs. Lizzie Sanders, wife of Levi Sanders and mother of George H. Sanders, died Thursday, January 26, at the Sanders home here, where she had lived for over 12 years. The last year she had been confined to her chair, a patient sufferer.

She was born in Switzerland in 1849, coming to America at the age of four with her parents. They settled in Indiana, and there in 1872 she married Levi Sanders. They came to Oregon in 1881, living near Stayton until about 12 years ago, when they purchased their home here.

Mrs. Sanders was laid to rest in the Pleasant View cemetery, West Stayton. Rev. Franz of the Pratum Mennonite church officiated.

KNEES SWOLLEN TWICE THEIR SIZE

"My knees and ankles were so swollen I looked deformed. And the pain was unbeatable. Every move was agony. When a friend employee suggested 'St. Jacob's Oil' I tried it only half-heartedly. One application brought immediate relief and soon the terrible soreness and swelling had completely gone."

Nothing draws out the pains of sore muscles and nerves like good old "St. Jacob's Oil". It's one remedy you can absolutely depend on to relieve Rheumatism, Lumbago, Backache, Neuralgia—and it doesn't burn the skin. Go to any drug store and get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" and see what it will do to pain!
