successful one. Its stock has never been on the market. It was organized by and is the property of a small group of influential and wealthy citizens. Jonas Morriewether is, I understand, the chief stockholder. Their program of expansion got away from them. It took its own head and before they realized it they were in too deep to do anything other than throw in more money. There was no turning back. They borrowed to the hilt—until they reached the point of loan saturation. No bank in the city would lend any more money on the physical securities of the company. And they have again reached a point where they must have money. Cash! And sometimes, Terry, the need for immediate cash is a very embarrassing thing. (To be Continued.)

Some good advertising—Have you noticed the page being carried by the Salem Realty Board? Turn to the last page of the Automotive and Better Homes section of this morning's paper. It is evidently written by a man who has vision without being a visionary, and one who knows how to put facts and conclusions in plain, readable English. And so it has been with all the series. The campaign is constructive, convincing, and conducive of good results. Talking about advertising some more, the baby chick men of the United States are organizing a great campaign. A survey shows that the big hatcheries are now turning out five hundred millions of baby chicks annually; but that is only 25 per cent of the whole number hatched in this country. The balance being hatched under hens and by small incubators of the farms. The big baby chick men are going after a larger share of the 75 per cent, through a long and intensive advertising campaign, in newspapers and farm and poultry papers. A woman went into a Salem restaurant looking for work. The Salem Y free employment office was phoned to. After some inquiries, the woman was put in connection with a situation that was open, and which it appeared she could fill. She was employed. But in the time that was taken the woman appeared to become weak; dazed. She had not asked for food. But it was suggested that a cup of coffee might be good for her. Then she confessed that she had had nothing to eat that day, and little the day before and lay before that. A hearty meal was offered her, and she did full justice to the viands, to the last crumb and morsel. It is not unusual for hungry men to ask for meals at restaurants, or elsewhere. But this is the first experience of the kind in that restaurant, of a hungry woman asking for food—and, indeed, she did not ask for it—it was forced on her. Is there any woman reader of this paragraph who can imagine herself as being half starved, and being too proud and sensitive to ask for food? Likely there are many. But not many in this land of plenty who are likely to come to such a condition. The Outer Gate (Continued from page 6.) Borden has been having business trouble. At Yoncalla, Douglas county, on November 16, 1925, Torres and Silva set fire to the general merchandise store of Ida M. Bunyan. The loss of merchandise and fixtures aggregated $4917.21, with insurance of $2200. The pool hall of J. J. Lutz, which adjoined the Bunyan store was destroyed, with a loss estimated at $10,000. No insurance was carried by Mr. Lutz. On December 27, 1925, at Oakland, Oregon, the Mexicans set fire to the store of J. T. Bridges & company. The store previously had been robbed. The fire was discovered before it had gained substantial headway and was extinguished. The loss resulting from the fire was less than $50. A large bundle of merchandise valued at more than $1000 later was found by the officers under an old building. Silva told the officers that he carried away two suitcases of loot taken from the bridges store. At Medford February 13, 1927, McPherson's (F. J. Men's) store was robbed and burned with a loss of $7751.90. Other losses resulting from this fire included the "Adrienne Steward" shop, $5632.99, covered by insurance; Diamond restaurant, $436, covered by insurance; J. H. Cooley, owner of building, $4047.35. Torres was employed as a dishwasher in the Diamond restaurant at the time of the fire. At Oakridge on October 25, 1927, Silva confessed that he robbed two stores and later set fire to one of them. The fire destroyed an entire block of buildings with a loss of $35,000. Insurance was carried in the amount of $7,500. Silva also confessed to Fire Marshals Malehorn and Warren that he committed four daylight robberies. These included stores at Medford, Eugene, and Grants Pass. MEDFORD, Feb. 18.—(AP)—W. W. The company official said: Statement Quoted "At this time we cannot ascertain what caused the wash over the deck of the boat Peralta. There was no danger at any time of the Peralta sinking, because she is buoyed with water tight compartments which would make it impossible. The only danger was the danger that happened—that of panic." The list of known missing tonight follows: J. W. Collins, Oakland, employed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.
