

RECONSTRUCT NILE AS CLASS PROJECT

Pupils of 4B At Garfield Represent African Life On Sand Table

Sixteen pupils—six boys and 10 girls—of the fourth B class at Garfield school have brought the Nile river with its delta right into their school room and are studying it "first hand," under the direction of their teacher, Miss Agnes DuRette.

The pupils have constructed in a sand table at the rear of the room their conception of life and customs in the fertile Nile country, as they have gleaned it from the pages of their geography, outside reading and the play of their own imaginations. It is a part of the special project work the geography class has undertaken in connection with the study of Arabia and which covers the first six weeks of the present semester.

The Tigris and Euphrates to the east of the Nile in Asia were studied the first part of the six weeks' period; this week and last the Nile has been under consideration; and later they will reconstruct the sand table to accord with their study of the Nile river south of the delta, the lakes about the river and the White Nile.

The children have cut from green paper a number of palm trees and "planted" them on the shores of the Nile and have brought from their collection of toy animals all those which they have found to belong to that region: wild elephants, baobabs, black and brown bears, lions, camels which the Egyptians use in their travels, burros and tame cattle. That some of the toy animals are great large ones and other small enough to carry in a vest pocket makes little difference to the pupils; they all belong to life on the Nile.

Mirrors have been placed in the sand to designate small lakes about the region and blue cardboard under glass shows the course of the river. Practically all the work has been done in the classroom, even to the construction of small clay houses typical of the squat little dwellings found along the river. About the make believe land may be seen several minarets built of clay and even containing the circular railing, which the children have decided the appointed person must climb to give the often repeated signal for prayer to his fellow Mohammedans.

The children's interest in the project extends further than mere school work, so much so that during recesses and before classes convene pupils take turns in caring for the project and keeping everything in its proper place. While the project work has only been conducted by Miss DuRette since the beginning of this semester, she believes this method of instruction permits the students to construct their work about one-third faster than under the old purely book methods. Moreover, and with this she is most pleased, Miss DuRette finds the greatest benefit to their silent reading, the children seeking books at home and the libraries to further widen their knowledge of the topic under study. This work is done with out definite assignment from the teacher, too.

Wherever possible the Geography project work is correlated with other studies, particularly language and reading.

SENATORS IN FIGHT

WALSH OF MONTANA TOUCHES EXPLOSION

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—(AP)—An old fashioned political foray in the senate, with Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, defining the issue of the coming campaign as prosperity propaganda versus actual unemployment, featured a congressional day otherwise devoid of high lights except for a reception of the senate coal investigation.

The house, after putting through a public health service bill expanding activities and fixing up pay rates of that service, got down to smaller agricultural bills on the calendar and did a little slow motion legislation. One of the bills was for study of new uses for cotton. It goes back tomorrow to the anti-lame duck congress fight.

The senate's real business was Muscle Shoals and it finally got back to that with Heflin of Alabama, shouting for fertilizer, not power. But Smoot of Utah, answering charges of widespread unemployment circulated by Wagner of New York in getting his department of labor investigation resolution through, brought down on his head a deluge of real democratic oratory.

LAD GETS FORTUNE

Five Year Old New Yorker Now Millionaire

NEW YORK, Mar. 7.—(AP)—A five year old New York boy has joined the ranks of millionaires. John Mortimer Coward, II, of Glen Ridge, N. J., is to receive at least two-thirds of the more than $4,000,000 estate of his father, J. Mortimer Coward, head of the Coward Shoe stores, who died in Havana last Saturday.

His father's will bequeathing him two-thirds of the estate after a bequest of $100,000 is made to his mother, was filed yesterday in probate court. Mrs. Coward is to receive the income from the one-third residue for life if she remains unmarried. If she marries the trust fund created for her is to be decreased to $500,000 and the residue paid to her son.

Part of the fortune which the five year old inherits is $1,000,000 from an insurance policy his father took out, last July. Mr. Coward himself inherited the bulk of the estate barely three years ago from his father, the first John M. Howard. The grandfather's estate was estimated to be around $4,000,000. The present estate is believed to be well over that total.

Demonstrate Pyrotol Use On Fletcher Farm Friday

A free demonstration of the use of Pyrotol, the new government blasting powder, will be conducted tomorrow morning on the Fletcher place about one and one-half miles east of the fairgrounds on the Silverton road. The demonstration which will begin about 9 o'clock in the morning will be conducted by Earl Price of the extension department of the Oregon Agricultural college, who has been demonstrating the use of the powder in other counties of the state with success.

The demonstration will consist of blasting out about 500 feet of ditch which has been filled with sediment and vegetation. This method of ditch construction has proven to be the cheapest and quickest for the typical Willamette valley farm and with the use of the cheap pyrotol powder it is even cheaper than where the usual commercial powder is used.

This powder can also be used in other farm work where explosives are used. Information concerning the purchasing of the powder will be given at the demonstration. Another similar demonstration will be conducted Saturday morning on the Brisey place about two miles south of Gervais on the Pacific highway. All farmers of the valley interested in seeing the demonstration are invited to attend either or both demonstrations.

Joffre Forced To Move Because Rent Doubled

PARIS (AP)—Marshal Joffre, victor of the battle of the Marne, has been vanquished by the high cost of living.

France's great soldier, with a salary of $200 a month, must leave his handsome old Paris apartment because the proprietor has doubled the rent. Joffre can't pay the doubled rent and so he is going to move.

He is 74 years old and not as strong as in the dark days of the war when he was the commander of millions, in and out of uniform. Joffre, nevertheless, will find a place to live. He still has his modest little home in the country but he will have no difficulty in getting another apartment in Paris. It was a Spaniard, whose son and grandson both fought under Joffre, who was the first to offer "Papa" Joffre a home. This gentleman, hearing of the marshal's plight, offered him an apartment either in Paris or in Nice, in buildings he owns. Joffre still is on "active service" for Marshals, of whom there are six, are never retired. They have become, in these times of peace, sort of consulting engineers to the army and various problems are referred to Joffre and the others by the Superior War Council, and their advice is asked although it may not be followed.
