

ONLY 5 DAYS MORE OF WHIPPET RACE

And In That Time Leads May Be Made To Take the Other Prizes

HONOR ROLL TODAY

Hazel McMorris
Lane Morley
Carol Smith
Mrs. Hoogerhyde

(By the Contest Editor.)
Candidates in The Oregon Statesman's automobile contest are busy planning excuses they overlook real issues, and they forget that the Whippet Coach contest closes next Monday, March 12, at midnight, only five days away, and this contest is anybody's contest yet. The work done between now and then will undoubtedly determine the winner. In five days what will your excuse be for not

Lane Morley
This young man was born and raised in the state of Tennessee, and has distinctly southern characteristics. He came to the west coast about 23 years ago and engaged in the school teaching profession, and later became interested in the grocery store business. After having had several years experience in this line he entered the real estate and insurance business. He more recently established himself in a boy's and girl's clothing store on North High street across from the Senator hotel. Mr. Morley is an active member of the First Baptist church. Mr. Morley became interested in The Statesman's Automobile Contest and is employing his spare time in the work of getting subscriptions. He appeals to his friends for their cooperation in collecting votes and also for securing subscriptions. His friends wish him every success.

winning the Whippet Coach. Six more days and the winners will be made and the losers will be the busiest bunch of people you ever saw hunting up excuses why they did not win the Whippet.

Yet, in industry there is pleasure. The winners of these prizes in this contest will feel that they are already repaid for the time they have spent in the interest of the contest. The winners of the autos will have made a big salary in the course of the time the contest has run. The winners of the other prizes will receive no small reward. However, the winner of any one of the prizes is just as much in doubt today, a few days before the end, as it was eight weeks ago.

An Interesting Contest
In the winning class a good final sprint by any one of the active candidates will land the auto or the other prizes for any one of them. Surely this is the most surprising and at the same time interesting contest it has ever been the pleasure of the contest editor to become associated with.

After becoming acquainted with all the different candidates, and knowing how hard each had his or her mind set on whatever prize is nearest to the heart, the contest editor can but be filled with regret that there are not autos enough so that all the deserving ones might carry away such a prize.

There still remains that final sprint to be made this week. Without that final effort those who stand close to the autos and the other prizes can not hope for success in the Whippet Coach special. And as the last few hours give place to the last frenzied minutes, the contest editor cannot refrain from repeating the old well worn warning, "Do not overlook a single subscription, no matter how small it may be." You cannot afford it.

As the morrow approaches do not let your energy abate.

Now that the Whippet Coach contest has narrowed down to a few short days and hours, the contest for honors and prizes will increase with every hour struck by Father Time, until the last few frenzied hours—hours of nervous activity, suspense and wonderment.

Monday must show the survival of the fittest—the reward of the persevering—the honors of the winners—the happiness of the friends—the enthusiasm of the public.

Monday will develop another side of human nature—the loser in defeat—their hopes and ambition cast to the winds—their nerve gone—their failure in life explained.

It is the parting of the ways—the persevering—on up to success; the others—down to defeat.

The Calamity Howler
Monday is the day of the "Calamity howler."

The calamity howler—the ne'er-do-well—the pessimist. The calamity howler will not win—don't even want to win. Neither does he want to see another win. He plots, he flatters, he invents, he ridicules. Rumors and absurdities are his stock in trade.

Yesterday he traded. Monday he is going to ask you to trade, but this will not do.

Don't be misled by a pessimist or a calamity howler. It is work that wins. Remember there is no palm of victory without the dust of the battle.

Recently a calamity howler met a contestant. She has many subscriptions to collect. "Why, you have no chance to win. I have 25 year subscriptions myself."

This contestant listened—she heeded—she quit. "It's no use, I'm beaten." And that calamity howler didn't have enough votes to win the smallest of the prizes.

It worked!

It will work again!
Are you going to go hand in hand with the "calamity howler," or are you going to walk alone? Follow your own inclination. These last few hours will make years of difference.

Keep your friends helping you and don't forget all the votes you win on the Whippet campaign help you to win the big prize.

As the close of the Whippet campaign approaches, as the days narrow down to hours and minutes, one thing makes itself apparent, the winners may not be those who have given out the impression that the various candidates were unbeatable. In their enthusiasm they have in some cases talked too much and tipped their hand, and some of the other candidates have taken up the challenge. They are so rapidly overhauling those erstwhile leaders, that an entirely new set of contenders are holding the limelight as time goes on—and they are doing it with new subscriptions! They are spreading out and getting the votes and subscriptions after they had thought they had secured every subscription in their field. They are still getting more and more.

Some of the Leaders

Hazel McMorris has returned to Salem after a pleasant trip to Portland, where she visited some of her friends. She is now working vigorously in the contest and intends to make every hour from this time on count. Hazel has a very pleasing personality and a winning way, and has a knack of coaxing subscriptions that are real hard to get.

Mrs. Hoogerhyde realizes there are only two weeks to go in the contest, and she has made up her mind to go the limit every day for the next two weeks. Mrs. Hoogerhyde is such a good, consistent worker and energetic personality that she deserves the cooperation of every possible friend in the city of Salem.

Gwinn Barham is working hard, doing his best, and making progress, but not as much progress as if his friends would cooperate with him better. Gwinn is a young man, very high character, high ideals and merits the best cooperation of all his friends. Every friend Gwinn has in the city of Salem should help him along. They will be taking some paper anyway, and why not help the young man win? He is trying hard to make headway in this contest.

Carol Smith called in to see us yesterday and I asked him if he would not like to have a picture run in the paper to advertise his candidacy, and while he is a good looking candidate he could not see it that way. We believe that his photo would make a big hit with the fair sex. We know for a fact that Carol is very popular with the ladies, and we believe that a writeup would help to increase his popularity.

WATCHMAN KILLED

OREGON CITY, Ore. Mar. 7.—(AP)—William Kruger, watchman for the Southern Pacific at a street crossing near the depot was killed this afternoon when struck by an automobile which had been hit by an engine. A. A. Price, local merchant, who was in the automobile, escaped injury.

RETAIN MEMBERSHIP

LEGION MEN WHO MOVE AWAY STILL IN CAPITAL POST

Readers perusing the honor roll of Capital Post No. 9, American Legion, as published from day to day in The Statesman, may have run across the names of several acquaintances whom they knew to have left Salem some time ago.

It's true that some of the members of Capital Post are now residents elsewhere. It has been noted that members of an active post, moving to another community, often retain membership in the organization to which they have belonged; while if the old home post was not so active, they would sign up with the one where they live.

Incidentally, this subject of non-resident members brings up the point that Salem post's steady increase from year to year has been made despite the fact that its territory has dwindled as smaller cities have established posts.

JUST BECAUSE I LOVE YOU
PLAYED TO THE TUNE OF YOUR JINGLING DOLLARS

Some Chain Stores would like you to infer they are doing business "Just because I love you." So long as your dollars keep jingling to the tune of the song—all goes merrily along. Then perhaps you need an accommodation for a few days. The song then changes and is played not quite so jazzy entitled "O how hungry am I and the kids." The moral is: Trade with your merchant who is willing, if you are worthy, to help you should necessity arise.

Whippet Coach Offer Closes Monday at Midnight

It Is a Matter of Hours

Just a few more circuits of the minute hand and—too late for the Magnificent Whippet Coach. If today, tomorrow, Saturday and Monday pass without speedy action on your part, the responsibility rests upon yourself. The Whippet Coach will be won or lost by that time. Long term subscriptions count most and a few such orders now while they count the most might be the deciding factor in this race. After the time for action has passed all the regrets in the world will be of no avail.

Now is the time to help your favorite. Your subscription given NOW may mean the winning or losing of this Whippet Coach for your friend. Show your favorite what real friendship means by doing your friends a real kindness that will mean real cash to them.

If you have promised your subscription, see that the candidate gets it before midnight, Monday, March 12. Or, if you have not yet been solicited, give it to a candidate or bring it to the office and we will see that your candidate gets full credit for it.

Candidates, make these days count. Get in touch with all those promises that have been given to you. Make every minute count so that when midnight, March 12, comes you will be able to say, "I have done my best." You will not be sorry, for you are bound to be repaid for the work you do. There is nothing that will repay a person more than honesty-to-goodness work.

Remember, ALL THINGS COME TO THE OTHER FELLOW IF YOU SIT DOWN AND WAIT. Don't be a "waiter," be a "go-getter." All the world loves a winner and you can be one if you but try.

A cozy nook is even made more liveable with a bright, cheery design in Armstrong's Linoleum.

Not one cent for refinishing!

Once laid, our built-in floors of Armstrong's Linoleum require no refinishing costs. And they're down for a lifetime of wear!

The secret is, of course, our new methods of laying. Every floor we lay is firmly cemented down over a layer of heavy builders' deadening felt. There are no cracks to catch dirt—just a smooth beautiful surface.

Right now our selection of the new designs is most complete. Call today while you think of it and let us have the opportunity of showing you the last minute patterns that we have just received.
