PRISONERS' RECORD KEPT AT JAIL HERE

Finger Prints and Thorough Description Placed On Permanent File

Nearly every person who is arrested and charged with crimes such as robbery, murder, etc., is registered at the police department by finger print as well as by name, description and criminal history.

A piece of heavy plate glass is placed upon a table, being about six inches wide and 18 inches long. This is painted with black printer's ink, which is very adhesive. After a film of the ink is painted over the surface of the glass, it is leveled by a roller, which is passed over it several times.

Next the sheets on which the prints are to be made are placed on the desk. These are made of heavy white paper, with heavy black lettering. At the top of the sheet is the name of the prisoner, alias, his prison number, his color, classification and references. Immediately below this are 10 squares, in two rows, of five each, about two inches square. These are labeled right thumb, right index finger, right middle finger, right ring finger, and right little finger. Below is the same list for the left hand.

Below these are two large squares, one on each side of the sheet, where the prints of four fingers are taken simultaneously, one for the right hand and one for the left. The purpose of this is for a recheck, on the upper prints in order to avoid any mistake or getting them mixed up. Between these large squares are two places for a reprint of each of the thumbs and any amputation.

In the lower right hand corner of the paper the prisoner signs his name with pen and ink. In the left hand corner are the questions, classified by, verified by, and searched by.

The other side of the sheet is divided into three parts, the first giving information concerning the arrest and disposition of the case. The second square is used for taking the description of the prisoner, and the third, which is half of the sheet is used for taking down the criminal history of the accused.

As many copies as are needed are made. The investigation sheet as it is called, is clamped to the desk and all is ready for the prisoner. The accused is brought in and he is instructed to cleanse his hands thoroughly. After this is done, the officer in charge takes each finger and thumb and places them one at a time on the inked plate glass, and stamps the finger print on the white sheet, each finger in its respective square. It requires about two minutes to print each sheet.

A copy of the completed sheet is mailed to the various police stations where it is kept on file and it is one of the surest ways of detecting a criminal. All scars and marks on the prisoner's body and face are also noted in the investigation sheet, or criminal record. Once a prisoner's name and prints are on file in the police department, they stay forever on record.

PUNISHMENT HEAVY

WILLIAM LANG DRAWS 6 MONTHS, $125 IN FINES

William Lang, who was arrested Wednesday charged with being drunk and disorderly, and who appeared in police and justice courts yesterday, found that it was very unprofitable to try to drive on the highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, when he was fined $25 in police court and then taken to justice court where on a charge of driving while intoxicated, he was fined $100, given six months in jail, and driver's license taken away for a period of one year.

After being fined in the police court he intimated that he was getting off pretty lucky, but after being informed that this was just a teaser, he began to change his mind which remained changed, after appearing in justice court.

Lang was arrested by State Traffic Officer Abst, Wednesday afternoon, who found him in a wrecked automobile, just a short distance out of the city limits. Officers believe that he tried to drive the machine while under the influence of liquor, and as a result wrecked his machine. He was taken to the city jail where he remained over night. A few minutes after his arrival he went on a rampage in which he tore down the water pipes in his cell, and as a result flooded the jail, it being some time before the pipes could be plugged.

Due to the fact that he has been in trouble several times during the past few months, he was given a stiff punishment. He had made his home at 945 Electric avenue.

TULLY WILL SPEAK AT CE CONVENTION

The state Christian Endeavor convention which begins Thursday evening, April 19, in The Dalles, promises to be one of the most successful ones ever held. Three hundred and twenty-five advance registrations from outside of the city of The Dalles itself with more coming in daily indicates a good attendance.

The people of the city are making every preparation for the comfort of the delegates. Those who pay the registration fee will be given badge and program and free lodging and breakfast in homes in The Dalles. There is no limit to the number of delegates that may go from any one place, and no special authorizing of persons as delegates is required in order that they may go. Streets will be gaily decorated with welcome banners, and the splendid city auditorium will be used for convention sessions.

Speakers for the convention include: Rev. E. W. Praetorius of Cleveland, Ohio, general secretary of the Evangelical church, who is coming out especially for the convention; Paul C. Brown of Los Angeles, Pacific coast secretary of Christian Endeavor; Rev. Walter L. Myers of Eugene; Dr. Norman K. Tully of Salem; Rev. Monro G. Everett of Corvallis, and others. Professor Hohgart to Eugene will lead the singing, and Miss Lulu Aydelott of that city will preside at the piano. Donald O. Nelson of Portland, state president, will preside.

Special features of the convention include: pastors' complimentary luncheon and conference Friday noon; parade and tour of The Dalles and to Celilo Falls or Friday afternoon; denominational lunches Saturday noon; banquet and election of new officers Saturday evening; Intermediate oratorical contest Saturday evening graded Christian Endeavor meetings and installation of new officers Sunday night.

The convention will close Sunday evening and evening church services in the city generally will be set aside in favor of the closing session of the convention.

CLASS TRYOUTS SET

SHS STUDENT CONSTITUTION AMENDMENT AT ISSUE

Try-outs for the inter-class debate teams of the senior high school will be held this afternoon with the candidates from each class appearing before their respective coach, Ralph Bailey, debate coach, said yesterday.

selected and is one of interest to all students inasmuch as it urges the adoption of a proposed amendment to the student body constitution. The amendment, recently framed by the student council, seeks two important changes in the method of nominating student officials. The first change would require a petition signed by 10 per cent of the students for nomination to office. This is designed to do away with the present open method of nomination.

The second proposed change seeks to eradicate unanimous elections by giving the student council power to name at least two persons for each office.

At the tryouts today, six students will be chosen from each class, two for each of the negative and affirmative teams and two alternates.

The first inter-class debates will be held the first week in May, with three debates planned, and the following week a triangle debate on the same question will close the season.

Winners will be decided on the point system, total points earned plus one for each decision. Points will count toward the inter-class trophy offered to the class accumulating the most points in class competitions during the year. Debaters will also be awarded numerals.

Mr. Bailey will coach the junior team for the inter-class series, the sophomores being in charge of Miss Cecil McKercher, commercial teacher, and Miss Marjorie Stone, home economics instructor, has taken the senior debaters in hand. No debater who has represented the high school in contests is entitled to participate in the class arguments.
