Likes Superior Class—
While visiting the various schools of the city yesterday in company with Superintendent George W. Hug, Dr. W. H. Burton, professor in education at the University of Chicago, talked to Mrs. Ellen Fisher's superior English group at the senior high. Dr. Burton was greatly pleased with the showing of this group, declaring the students above the average in even supervised groups. He asserted the instructor was on the right track in adopting the segregation method.

Teacher Injures Ankle—
Miss Etta White, physical education instructor at Parrish junior high school, fell through the bleachers at the gymnasium yesterday morning and sustained a badly sprained ankle, necessitating the use of crutches. Miss White was conducting a class when the accident happened. The doctor called to examine the injury said a piece of the bone was scalped loose, but no ligaments were torn. Miss White will probably resume direction of her classes Monday, H. F. Durham, principal, said last night.

NEAR EAST RELIEF TASK NEARLY DONE

Final Appeal for Aid In America Now Being Made, Says Handsaker

"America's entry into the Near East has meant the saving of an ancient christian race from extermination and has written the name of America in the hearts of 132,000 persons whom we have saved from death," states J. J. Handsaker, regional director of Near East relief who is addressing the schools of Salem on the work of Near East relief.

"After 12 years of effort during which time we have spent one hundred million dollars and have sacrificed 24 lives, we are approaching the end of the task. A fund of $6,000,000 will discharge the last of our obligations both to the children and the refugees, and to the creating of that fund we are giving all our energies so as not to delay the close of our work in this country a moment longer than necessary.

"To the boys and girls of your schools I am telling the story of the children of the Near East, children who repeatedly have divided food and clothing with those less fortunate than themselves.

"I am telling the story of Frances Gage of Portland, who died gloriously in rescuing 50 girls from Turkish soldiers, of the heroism of Christopher Thurber, who, against orders, rescued 4000 children, who suffered twice in Turkish prisons, and who is now compelling his broken body to support him while he cares for thousands of orphans and old people in Greece.

"Boys and girls of the Near East are like American youth in their ambitions and purposes and all we are doing is helping them realize their ambitions.

"At 16 our boys and girls are prepared for self support although we are trying to secure special gifts to enable some of the potential leaders to secure training in the American colleges.

"Our first care however is to bring to self support our 32,000 orphan children and to assist the British relief committees and the League of Nations committees in getting the last of the refugees back to the land. When this is done, Near East relief will have made its last appeal."

Yesterday, Mr. Handsaker addressed Richmond, McKinley, Park, Englewood, Garfield and Highland schools. Today he addresses Washington, the Senior High, Leslie Junior high, Parrish Junior high, Grant and Lincoln.

The salem team will leave this afternoon and will be headed by Hugh Ward. Both quintets have met before. Salem taking both tilts by safe margins.

SCHOLARSHIP FUND ESTABLISHED, U.O.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, April 19.—(Special).—A scholarship fund to be known as the "Oregon Commonwealth Scholarships" has been established for students at the University of Oregon. Elmer L. Shirrell, dean of men, has announced. Many prominent alumni and friends of the university throughout the state are supporting the scholarship project as an aid to underclass students whose well rounded development and interests give promise of effective leadership.

The scholarship is not designed primarily to replace or supplement existing students loan funds or scholarships, explained the committee. "It is especially intended for the encouragement of those students whose personality, character, intellect and physique, together with practical experience in the direction of student affairs, give evidence of the qualities of community leadership so essential to the fullest development and progress of the commonwealth."

A committee on scholarships, to be headed by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the university, has been established and several sub-committees will also be at work in administering the funds. All undergraduate scholarships and funds donated for this purpose henceforth will be handled by this committee.

A considerable sum has already been donated to the scholarship fund, which is expected to be increased by other gifts from time to time. Leading educators of the Pacific coast have given their approval to this form of administering scholarships, which is similar to the plan now followed at Stanford university. W. B. Owen, of Stanford and a member of the Pacific coast conference, has given his sanction to the plan.

PORTLAND S.A. BAND WILL APPEAR HERE

Concert To Be Given At 3:15 Sunday Afternoon In Baptist Church

All plans have been made for the appearance of the Portland Salvation Army brass band here Sunday. The main concert will be given at 3:15 in the afternoon, at the First Baptist church, and will include the following: Opening number "Oswald Christian Soldiers"; march "The Pilgrim"; selection (instrumental), woman's section of band; instrumental duet, Pilbeam and Hall; selection by band; vocal solo, "Little Black Me"; cornet solo, "Meditation"; selection, "Cry Out and Shout"; trombone solo (selected); vocal number by band; march, "Leeds," by band.

Salvation Army bands differ somewhat from other bands in that they are composed entirely of brass instruments—no reeds. Much of the music played is composed or arranged by the Salvationists themselves.

It may be interesting to know that the first instrument employed in the organization was a violin—a one-man and one-piece band, so to speak. Now there are close to 35,000 senior handmen alone represented throughout the world and over 9,000 among the young people.

In connection with Sunday's program, which may be changed or added to, as the number of selections is unlimited, the one "Cry Out and Shout" is a musical description of the 12th chapter of Isaiah, and is a song of praise. Church doors will be open at 2:30 for the afternoon concert, which will be free to the public. By request of the pastor, Bandmaster Louis Pilbeam has agreed to have his musical aggregation give a few special selections in connection with the evening service.

At 7 p. m., the band will head a parade of local and visiting Salvationists.
