The LAST COMMAND

Only a Handful of Hollywood Extras Obeyed, Where Once Had Been a Million Men!

Emil Jannings' Triumph!

ONCE in a decade comes a motion picture so outstanding, that mere words cannot express its true greatness! Such a picture is Emil Jannings' latest, "The Last Command." Viewed by hardened motion picture executives, calloused to the thrills of the screen by hundreds of pictures, this tremendous photodrama was cheered to the echo!

More powerful, more sensational than "Variety" and "The Way of All Flesh," never has there been such a story—the life and loves of Russia's mightiest general contrasted with the glamour and tragedy of Hollywood. Astoundingly directed by Von Sternberg, whose "Underworld" has thrilled thousands, the greatest dramatic portrayal ever screened.
