It was an exciting battle, with both pitchers, Russell for the Senators and Gilbert for the whiskered outfit, bearing down effectively at all times. Both of these boys, however, had made up for the two bobbles. Gill with a perfect throw had cut off a House of David rally in the first inning, and Keber contributed a two bagger to the Senators' rally in the second.

That was the inning in which the Senators got all their runs. Adolph walked, Shackman was safe when Atherton let the ball slip between his legs, Adolph reaching third.
