THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES

From the "front line trenches," comes the following suggestion to the editor: "What about the recognition we have so often talked about for the over-seas boys? Lee McAllister, like a lot of the other boys who got shot up, asks no odds. But Lee is running for the legislature and we have the opportunity to give an American Legion man a boost. He is well qualified, having attended Willamette, graduated from O. S. C. and has had experience in State Business. Lee McAllister is the kind of men we need in the legislature."

The Producers Cooperative Packing company, with its canning plant on North Commercial street, is one of the oldest of the cooperative concerns of its kind in this section. Last year was a hard canning year, but that concern came through with some good showings. It has paid its black raspberry pool for 1927 at 10.4 cents a pound to the growers; red raspberry pool, and to retain in abundance the 81/2 cents; blackberries, 41/2 cents; Ettersburg strawberries, 8 cents; Royal Ann cherries, 71/2 cents; prunes, 2c, or $1.20 a bushel. This cooperative concern has a very well equipped cannery and grounds and buildings, all paid for, and it has for several years paid to its stockholders higher than the market prices for most of their canning fruits.

The governor of California refuses to pardon a condemned murderer on the plea that "he was too drunk to know what he was doing." It is suggested that the governor figures that it is a good idea for him to find out.
