Jonesmere Gardens Attract Admiring Throngs at Opening Yesterday

An unequalled display of choice columbine at Jonesmere, the country place of Mrs. W. Al Jones and Miss Mabel Creighton was viewed yesterday afternoon and evening by several hundred flower lovers.

Miss Creighton is a particular connoisseur of fine columbine and her planting is, without doubt, the most extensive in this vicinity. Starting eight years ago with a single specimen of the famous long-spurred type, Miss Creighton now has a total of 38 distinct varieties.

The loveliest of the varieties observed were those which Miss Creighton has developed in her own garden pollinated by the bees on the farm.

The most delicate pastel shades imaginable are found in these beautiful hybrids. Many shades of light rose, pale coral, salmon pink, and even a transparent wine red have been developed. On the other hand there are delft and lavender blues, yellows, cream and white varieties and any number of two suitable colors in combination.

By actual measurement it was found that these amazing columbines have spurs 2 1/2 inches long and a diameter of 1-1/4 inches. The lacy foliage and slender stems to say nothing of the delicate profusion of bloom make columbine an excellent flower for cutting. For the dining room table nothing more charming can be imagined.

Miss Creighton manages to germinate this difficult, hard-coated seed by planting it in July. It takes nearly a year for the seedlings to flower, but once they are established they afford a mass of blossoms from May to August year after year.

Miss Creighton allows her guests to choose for their own gardens the plants they wish to buy while the specimens are all in bloom. Many prominent names were noted yesterday attached to choice, reserved clumps which may be transferred during blooming season with no impairment whatsoever to the plant. In fact, Miss Creighton moves her columbines about freely to gain more interesting color harmonies.

The entire garden is enclosed within trellises of roses and walls of delphiniums and hollyhocks. Punch was served under the trees. Miss Creighton and Mrs. Jones were assisted by their sister, Mrs. W. H. Dancy.
