

GREATEST ACTRESS PAID WORLD HONOR

LONDON (AP)—With her eighteenth birthday anniversary here recently, the world showered honors on Dame Ellen Terry, whom Sarah Bernhardt called "the greatest actress in the world."

Congratulatory messages arrived from friends she made in the United States during her ten tours of the nation and the American jubilee which was held for in 1904. Her third husband was James Carew, of Chicago.

Theatrical companies of the far flung British empire special performances in her honor and Dame Ellen spent her birthday as guest of honor at a party in London organized by her old friends of the theater.

Her memory is failing and her health of late has not been of the best, but the aged woman upon whom the king bestowed the Order of the British Empire for her work in support of the English stage, greets her friends with the old vivacity of the early days when her youth was captivating thousands.

Dame Ellen's last appearance on the stage was only a few years ago, during a Shakespeare's birthday performance at the New theater here. The veteran actress began her lines from Henry IV with all the confidence of her three score years on the stage. But soon the prompter's voice became almost continuous and the audience held its breath. Dame Ellen paused her first time in her career.

"I am getting old," she said, "my memory has failed, but lest you should lose the beautiful passage I shall put on my spectacles and read it to you."

At the end of her recitation, Dame Ellen received a memorable ovation.

Dame Ellen made her debut at the age of eight, playing in "The Winter's Tale" at the Princess theater, along with the celebrated Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean.

Her father and mother were actors, and her three sisters and two brothers achieved considerable fame on the stage.

Dame Ellen Terry is as well known in the United States as in England. The story is told that Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, wife of the famous American preacher, held an objection to actresses and had aloof from an introduction to Miss Terry. Eventually the two met at a house party. Miss Terry's charm captivated the preacher's wife, who kissed her when they parted.

Dame Ellen spends most of her time in the country, and enjoys motoring very much. Her daughter, Miss Edith Craig, is her devoted companion. Her son, Gordon Craig, formerly an actor, writes about the stage.

Of late years Miss Terry has interested herself in charities, particularly in aid of blind infants, for whom she raises money by charging autograph hunters a shilling for her signature.

7 SHIPS CRASH NEAR HARBOR OF NEW YORK

Immediate danger. The only vessel sending out an S. O. S. was the Mohawk.

The fog descended early and while thick enough over New York City to obscure the tops of skyscrapers, became increasingly dense as ships pushed out to sea.

Radio broadcasting was suspended for more than an hour after the Mohawk sent out S. O. S. calls beginning at 3:11. Broadcasting was resumed after she was reported aground with two coast guard cutters standing by.

Considerable alarm was caused by a message from the Vednam just after her crash, saying "send tow quickly, need help quickly, sinking slowly, water in engine-room." But later the ship laconically reported that she had been in a slight accident and would return to her pier under her own power when the fog lifted.

TERRIFIC MINE BLAST BURIES 200 WORKMEN

to work in a hurry and forgetting to hang out their tags.

The five men who were rescued had just entered the mine. They were lowered in the cage to the main entry. As they stepped from the elevator a gust of wind gave warning of the coming explosion. Then came the shock of the blast. Luckily they were near the bottom of the shaft and the first rescue crew brought them out.

Rescue Workers Rush In Volunteer rescuers from all parts of the Great, Fayette and Washington coal fields rushed to the Mather as did the trained crews of the United States bureau of mines from Pittsburgh. The bureau rescue car was ordered in from Nant-Y-Glo.

The mine is owned by the Mather Collieries company. C. A. Bower, assistant superintendent, told newspaper men that he did not know how many men were trapped. The cause of the blast was undetermined.

At the Wayneburg hospital it was said that the five men brought there were in critical condition. They were unconscious and doctors and nurses were struggling to maintain the spark of life with oxygen.

Three Bodies Rescued MATHER, Pa., May 19.—(AP)—Three bodies tonight were brought from the workings of the Mather Collieries company mine where approximately 200 miners were entombed in an explosion late today.

Scores of rescuers were pushing into the mine, bratticing off the fire as they progressed and had succeeded in saving nine men late tonight. The rescued men were ill and injured by gas and flames that made the inner caverns an inferno.

Fates Unknown Other than the three dead and the handful rescued, the rescuers, members of the families of entombed men and other residents of this little village did not know the fate of the scores of men who were at work when the explosion occurred shortly after 4 p. m.

The estimates of the number entombed ranged upward to as high as 300 men and there was no means of making a definite check as the day crew was about to leave the mine and the night workers were going in when the blast happened.

While there were reports that 20 more bodies had been located in the gas filled mine by rescuers, these reports were not verified late tonight.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 19.—(AP)—An explosion in the Mather Collieries mine at Mather, Pa., 20 miles from here entombed an undetermined number of miners who were trapped behind a fire in the workings. Reports to Brownsville were that between 150 and 175 men had been entombed, while 13 others were known to have escaped.

Officials of the company refused to say how many men were at work at the time. The mine, a shaft operation, employed 600 miners when working at capacity.

Soon after the blast occurred help was on the way from the United States bureau of mines headquarters at Pittsburgh.

Volunteer rescuers who entered the workings were driven back at first by fire and smoke. At Volunteer rescue crews were being called from surrounding regions and doctors were summoned from nearby towns and villages.

PITTSBURGH, May 19.—(AP)—The United States bureau of mines rescue crews rushed from Pittsburgh tonight to Mather, Pa. in Greene county, where it was reported a terrific explosion had occurred in a coal mine. First reports were that many miners had been entombed.

When the Mather officials called for help they said the mine was on fire.

The explosion occurred in the Mather mine of the Mather Collieries of Cleveland, Ohio. The mine is a shaft operation and when working at capacity employs 600 men.

Brownsville relatives of some of the miners who work at Mather were advised that 13 men escaped after the explosion and that between 150 and 175 men were entombed. The fire in the workings was reported to be sending clouds of smoke out the shaft mouth.

JOEY RAY DEFEATS DISTANCE RUNNERS

LONG BEACH, N. Y., May 19.—(AP)—Finishing strongly and murching an orange over the last few miles, gallant little Jole Ray ran a crack field of distance runners today to win the New York to Long Beach marathon in record smashing time and clinch his place on the American Olympic team.

Exactly a month ago from a cot in the Boston A. A. where he lay with blistered, bleeding feet after staggering home third to Clarence De Mar in the B. A. A. marathon, Ray propped himself up sufficiently to defy the distance running world generally and proclaim his intention to win and break a few records the next time.

This afternoon, over a rugged, wind-swept route from the New York Athletic club to this seashore resort, jogging Jole made good on every count. He not only decisively whipped his conqueror a month ago, De Mar, but cracked the course record by more than 13 minutes and he finished this time without a blister on his feet. "Wait until I get into real good shape then I'll show 'em something," Ray ran the full 25 miles, 385 yards in 2 hours, 34 minutes, 13 2-5 seconds to wipe out by a plentiful margin the course record of 2:47:43 1-5 hung up last year by the Hopi Indian, Quamowahu, from New Mexico.

EUGENE GRAPPLER WINS WORLD TITLE

EUGENE, May 19.—(AP)—George (Wildcat) Pete of Eugene won the junior middleweight world wrestling championship from Henry Jones of Provo, Utah, when, after each grappler had earned one fall, he sent Jones catapulting out of the ring for a three foot drop on his head, in a schedule two hour grappling show here tonight.

Jones took the first fall in 35 minutes with a leg split. The wildcat, undismayed, came back to capture the second with a step over toe hold in 29 minutes. Jones took the aggressive for the rest of the match and had Pete in a bad way on two or three occasions. Then as Jones leaped into the air in an effort to fall on Pete, who lay on the mat, Pete shoved his feet outward and Jones landing on them went sailing backwards. He rolled over once went beneath the ropes and toppled off the platform on his head.

OREGON STATE POLO TEAM BEATS CARDS

CORVALLIS, May 19.—(AP)—In a brilliant first half offensive the Oregon State college polo team today defeated Stanford university, coast titleholders, in the second game of the interstate series. The score was 5 to 3.

Captain Henderson, Stanford star yesterday, was held scoreless today.

The greater part of the scoring was done in the first half as unusual heat slowed down the final chukkers.

Unless another game is arranged at a later date, the intercollegiate championship will remain undecided.
