I am, not at all sure of the most perfect examples of a very bad effect upon both physical welfare and appearance. Even youth cannot withstand the strain of long-continued tension.

The body is a human dynamo. It cannot run on forever supplying health and strength to the limbs and blood to the brain without demanding at least an occasional day off for rest and re-fueling.

In this country we have acquired the reputation of being tremendously energetic. Perhaps we are too proud of the title-and we have learned to mistakenly associate relaxation with laziness. Latimess is a negative state of doing nothing. Relaxation is the very positive condition which calls your body to attention and then definitely, scientifically orders it "at ease.
