It was the old, old ring story of a good little man giving pounds to a good bigger man, and falling by the wayside when he did so. Izzy, a gallant little figure, holding his own most of the way through the first ten rounds, tired rapidly after the tenth scansion. In the fourteenth Graham floored him for a count of nine with a volley of left and right smashes to the chin. Schwartz just managed to keep his feet under a solid hammering through the final three minutes.

Through the first ten rounds there was little to choose between the tiny warriors. Izzy boxed on even terms with his dancing rival; shot enough lefts to the head and right counters to the chin, to win the third, seventh and eighth rounds. The fourth and ninth were even, but the rest merely piled up to contribute to Bushy's margin until he made it decisive with that clean knockdown in the fourteenth round.

Graham rushed from his corner at the first bell, but Schwartz refused to become ruffled or to nibble at Bushy's bait of arms carelessly dangling at his sides. They were sparring on even terms as the round ended.

Graham staggered the little corporal with a solid right smash to the chin in the second round. Izzy turned the tide a bit just before the bell with several left jabs to the bantam's face. Graham made as if to finish the job in the third, hooking his left to Izzy's chin. The little flyweight right back at Graham and chased him across the ring. They boxed rapidly but neither seemed to carry a damaging punch.

The fourth was devoted to fancy sparring and jabbing. Both boys were fast but neither was damaging the other.

The fifth was the same, but Graham landed one solid right to the body after Schwartz had clipped Bushy with a stinging right to the chin. They were sparring at the bell.

After a clinch in the sixth Graham landed two overhand rights to the head but took a hard right uppercut in return. Graham landed a sharp right to the head and they wrestled until the bell.

Graham drove Schwartz to the ropes as the seventh began but Izzy retaliated with a fast fall. The flyweight worked so rapidly that he slipped at the bell but was up before the sound died away. Izzy nearly tipped Graham over
