Kills Three Cougars

Mr. and Mrs. Al Van Dahl of Salem visited Rose Lodge in Lincoln county Sunday and while there saw three large female cougars killed Saturday night by E. W. Woody. There were but two inches difference in the largest and smallest animal, the former measuring seven and a half feet. The animals, treed by dogs several miles above Rose Lodge on the Salmon river road, were a curiosity at the Woody place some 60 minutes after the dogs had sighted them. William Smith assisted in the killing.

Refueling Not Completed

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 4.—(AP).—The task of refueling the three motored Fokker plane, Friendship, in which Miss Amelia Earhart of Medford, Mass., and two companions are attempting a trans-Atlantic flight, will not be completed tonight. Pilot Wilmer Stultz suspended work at sundown, but it will be resumed at daybreak.

Because of the favorable weather conditions now prevailing the flyers are making every effort to get an early start. Reports received here tonight from Trepasey said that it was expected that the plane would take off tomorrow for Southampton or some other English port.

from the plane here this afternoon. Her close cut light hair, was tousled by the wind for she wore no hat.

The fliers themselves have said little about their plans, other than that they expected to take the first favorable moment for their start for the other side and that they will land in any convenient port in England with Southampton as the most probable.

Williamer Stultz, who was the first pilot of the late Mrs. rances W. Grayson and who is known as an expert with heavy planes, is also his own navigator and radio operator.

Each of his companions, he said, was qualified to relieve him at the stick for brief intervals necessary for observation or communication.

Putnam Backs Flight

George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, represents the Mechanical Science corporation which is backing the endeavor. The plane was purchased from Commander Richard E. Byrd and Putnam said that aviator's extensive experience had been drawn on to the limit to make the venture as safe and scientific as human knowledge permits.

Besides the fact the Friendship is the first plane to make the transoceanic attempts equipped with both the safety factors of three motors and of pontoons. Mr. Putnam pointed out that two radio sets were carried which should enable communication to be maintained with ships even should the plane be forced to alight on the sea.

The call letters of the plane was "WOX" and its sending radius in the air is estimated at 1,000 miles. Pilot Stultz said that he did not intend to keep up continuous communications while in flight.

Weather Report Favorable

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP).—With weather reports from London and Newfoundland indicating excellent flying conditions across the north Atlantic, George Palmer Putnam said tonight that the departure of the tri-motored Fokker monoplane "Friendship" from Trepasey for England might be expected momentarily.

Lieutenant R. E. P. Elmer, a class mate of Commander Byrd, who had charge of the technical preparations for the flight, received a message from Wallace Battison of Cambridge, Mass., who is in constant touch with the flyers by wireless, saying that "weather east of Cape Race is fair with southwest winds shifting to northwest and a smooth sea."

Lieutenant Elmer said that no special effort was made to conceal the preparations for the flight.

"We worked daily in the open," he said, "with crowds of onlookers and when anyone inquired about our plans we replied that the plane was being equipped to take a long flight."

The structure will be three stories high and upon completion will release approximately 120 beds in the main hospital for patients. Money necessary for the construction of the nurses' home was appropriated by the last legislature.

FJI ISLANDERS TAKE DAY TO CELEBRATE

Southern Cross passed over Ovalau straits, separating the two chief islands of Fiji. Twenty minutes later the roar of her motors was heard by the waiting crowds in Albert Park, and a few minutes later the great plane was seen coming over the hills east of Suva at an altitude of 400 feet.

Loading Field Viewed

The Southern Cross circled the park at a speed of 60 miles an hour, whirled out to Suva harbor, and then banking beautifully, came down over the shore line and entered the park at the southwest corner. Across the park it rolled on its wheels, traversing the diagonal runway prepared for it, and stopping on the eastern side of the park.

The first to climb from the fuselage was Uim, closely followed by the others. They were officially welcomed by Governor Hutson, Colonial Secretary Seymour and Mrs. Seymour, the mayor and others. An old comrade in arms named Fenton warmly grasped the hand of Kingsford-Smith.

Crowds Break Restraint

And then the crowds that had been kept outside the bounds of the park to afford a safe landing could be denied no longer. They broke the cordon of police, and rushed toward machine and fliers. With great difficulty, they were kept at sufficient distance to prevent accident to the plane and to save jostling of weary men.

Photographs were taken, and then the mayor escorted the fliers to the Grand Pacific hotel. The landing was effected in clear weather, in contrast with the black clouds that had troubled the fliers in the middle of their long journey. Excitement was shown by the natives, but arrangements had been perfected to hold them in check. Doctors and ambulances were not needed, as the ground was strictly patrolled by members of the Fiji defense force club and defense force platoon.
