

Stayton Boy in Popular Comeback Holds Wattenberger to Fast Draw

NORTON KNOCKS OUT TALL ALBANY YOUTH

"Red" Hayes of Stayton, who in private life goes by the unassuming name of Willis Hayes, staged a decided comeback last night when he fought his former conqueror, Gar Wattenberger of Independence, to a popular draw. They fought at 148 pounds in the last of three six round bouts arranged by Matchmaker Harry Plant.

It was a bloody evening, with all of the bouts knockouts except the last. Frankie Britt of Chemawa, 133, took a technical knockout over Chuck Rosander of Portland in the fourth, and Willard Norton of Monitor laid Earl Yoakley of Albany on the canvas for a full count in the same number of rounds. Young Ambrose, local message toter, was unable to stand up under the punishment handed him by Jackie Wattenberger, and his seconds threw in a towel after the lad had been down three times in the third round and the last time was possibly saved by the bell.

Hayes started cautiously and he was still lax in covering up his head, but largely made up for that by agility in ducking. Neither he nor the older Wattenberger exhibited much but footwork in the first round.

In the second Wattenberger got in a couple of blows through fast boxing, but Hayes kept the count around the ring constantly, but even with a couple of stinging lefts.

Obscure Colt Races Way To Fame at Epsom Downs

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng. June 6.—(AP)—The flying feet and courageous heart of a great bay colt which experts had quite forgotten, drove Felstead, a 33 to 1 shot up from the ranks of the "also rans," of horsefod today, to win the English derby before the greatest throng ever gathered for the supreme racing classic of old England.

More than a million horse lovers, swarming over the rolling turf and environs of Epsom Downs, roared their acclaim of the new monarch of three-year-olds. Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen's smashing youngster romped to victory over 18 of the country's thoroughbreds, leading Flamingo by a length and a half, with Black Watch third, and the favorite, Lord Derby's Fairway, ninth.

Royalty of mankind and hundreds of celebrities were in the vast assemblage that came to pay homage to the royalty of turfdom. So vast was the multitude that King George and Queen Mary, battling through the crowds with the Prince of Wales, scarcely were able to reach their box. It seemed as if every clerk and stenographer in the countryside had gathered for the general holiday that marks the annual derby day.

When the mile and a half turf over the Down's rolling turf was over, the new racing king met England's royalty face to face, wreathed in derby glory. Felstead, with his owner, and with his beaming jockey, H. Wragg, on his back, pranced to the king's box and took his bow, while from every throat rose a cheer for the handsome colt, bay son of Spion Kop out of Felkington.

Smashing aside betting odds greater than any other horse has been able to overcome in nine years, Felstead, with a record of finishing in the money but once up to today, coasted home with a length and a half lead over Sir Lawrence Phillips' sturdy colt, Flamingo, which led Black Watch to the wire by six lengths.

Bookmakers who take a bet, large or small, on some horse from almost every person in the land on this day, reported scant profits because of the long price on Felstead and the heavy backing Flamingo gained to finish second. The favorite, Fairway, was not backed by the public to any great extent.
