G. O. P. PLATFORM LEAVES EQUALIZATION FEE OUT

bill in the platform would be carried to the floor of the convention tomorrow.
He said that a minority report would be prepared, probably embodying the so-called Murphy plank which includes the equalization fee, and added that the 15 members of the committee who had voted against the agricultural plank adopted would carry the battle before the convention.
Norbeck expressed doubt that the prohibition enforcement plank would lead to a fight on the floor, repeating Borah's assertion that only four or five had voted against it in the committee.
As approved the plank dealing with farm relief embodies not reference to the equalization fee provisions of the twice vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, while the plank on prohibition declares for specific enforcement of the 18th amendment.
These two questions proved the big obstacles encountered by the committee in its long sessions and supporters of the equalization fee principle announced that they proposed to carry their fight to the convention floor for final determination.
It is not expected the prohibition battle will be continued in the convention, except in connection with a minority report which was drafted by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and rejected by the resolutions committee just before adjournment.
The farm relief plank, omitting reference to the fee principle, was approved by a vote of 35 to 15. It declares that the agricultural industry is faced with a serious condition, that the trouble lies chiefly in the disposition of crop surpluses and their marketing and pledges the republican party to devise ways and means of remedying this situation. The vote on Borah dry plank was taken on a viva voce ballot. Senator-elect Vane of Pennsylvania, announced that he did not propose to lead a fight in the convention against the Borah proposal.
All of the other platform planks, dealing with the multitude of activities in which the federal government is concerned, were approved practically without change as submitted by the subcommittee. Members said that most of the changes effected were of a clerical nature.
In approving the platform, the committee brought to a close nearly 36 hours of continuous session of the sub-committee and the full committee. The committee first went into session at 3 p. m. Tuesday and after several hours of public hearings appointed a subcommittee of 15 members. The latter body, except for a recess of about four hours, sat continuously until 4 p. m. today when the full committee again reassembled to pass upon its work.
After adjournment tonight Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the committee, promised newspaper correspondents the roll call vote on the farm relief plank, but a search by committee clerks failed to disclose this ballot.
Such leaders of the wet forces as Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Columbia university, and former Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, took strong exception to the provision in the Borah plank calling the eighteenth amendment by name. They objected to such a declaration because it would place the party on record as endorsing a particular amendment to the constitution as above all others.
Soon after the entire committee went into session, former Senator Wadsworth appeared on the scene and summoned Senator-elect Vane of Pennsylvania, another wet leader and member of the resolutions committee to whom he gave a wet plank with a request that a fight for its adoption be made. It called for modification of the Volstead act.
Informed that the plank as agreed to by the subcommittee contained a direct reference to the eighteenth amendment, Dr. Butler stated that if this should be approved he would carry the wet and dry fight to the floor of the convention after the platform had been submitted.
A similar threat was made by proponents of a plank endorsing the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill if their views should not be met by the resolutions committee. The farm forces in the platform making body were augmented late in the day by Senator Norbeck, of South Dakota, who stated that he was prepared for a long finish fight.
Prediction that the fight over the relief plank would be transferred from the resolutions committee to the floor of the convention was made late in the day by Senator Borah.
Borah declared that the differences of opinion "ought to be settled in open convention in the face of the world."
"It has now come to a test of loyalty to agriculture of whether one is for the equalization fee or against it," he said.
"I accept the farmers' plank if they will strike out the provision for the equalization fee."
Members of the committee said that the tentative draft made by the subcommittee has been approved down to the agricultural plank. This still left to come the fight over the prohibition enforcement declaration.
Earl C. Smith, the Illinois member of the committee, started preparation of the minority report and a proposed substitute farm relief plank, embodying the equalization fee principle, immediately after the committee adjourned.
"The unwillingness of party leaders on the resolutions committee to support a plank which sets forth specifically the provisions by which crop surpluses can be properly and effectively controlled make necessary carrying the fight for an adequate farm plank to the floor of the convention. The farmers are demanding a pledge specifically setting forth the manner in which they may secure economic equality. It is our hope that the convention will meet this issue squarely."

AWAIT COUNCIL ACT ON MAXWELL PLACE

Operation of Charles Maxwell's barbecue restaurant on North Capitol street at the edge of the Hollywood business district, will not be contested at least until after next Monday's meeting of the city council, it was indicated Wednesday. The place has been in operation since Sunday.

Hollywood people who oppose the restaurant are waiting to see what the council will do about it; but whether the city fathers pass the ordinance calling for a change of zone or not, these folk do not plan to permit the place to be operated without a fight.

The council adopted the zoning commission's recommendation to change the zone, but declined to pass the ordinance under suspension of the rules. It comes up for final disposal next Monday.

SEATTLE, June 13.—(AP).—The northernmost radio station in the world, at Point Barrow, Alaska, flashed its first message to the world outside at 4:17 p. m. today, 54 hours after the equipment was started from Seward, the United States army signal corps office here announced.

Predict Good Weather For Atlantic Flights

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP).—Good flying weather off Newfoundland tomorrow was predicted by Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist for the United States weather bureau tonight.
Dr. Kimball has been furnishing weather reports for Miss Mabel Bull and Miss Amelia Earhart, whose planes are in Newfoundland awaiting favorable conditions to start transatlantic flights.
If the fliers hop off tomorrow, he said, they will have fresh west to southwest winds part way across the ocean. Once the 30th meridian has been passed, however, the winds will veer to the east and bad weather would be encountered off the Irish coast, he said. Tomorrow at Newfoundland the sky will be partly overcast, becoming overcast in midocean. Rain may be expected with increasing frequency east of the 30th meridian.

HALL MAY BE ASKED TO WITHDRAW NAME

Oregon Delegation Considers Requesting Release From Instruction

BY M. E. BARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—(AP).—Indications were seen here tonight that the name of John H. Hall of Portland, Oregon's candidate for vice president, may not be presented to the republican national convention.

The Oregon delegation, solidly for the Hoover program, and apparently willing to line up behind the candidate acceptable to Hoover leaders for vice president, find in their way their primary instructions to support Hall for second place on the ticket.

In view of the fact that he was a candidate only because he permitted his name to be used to forestall the vice presidential preference vote of the state republicans, it was seen that he might seek to release the Oregon delegation from its obligation to vote at least one ballot for him, and permit them to line up from the start with other Hoover states on the vice presidential selection.

Arrangements have been made for William A. Carter, Portland attorney, to place Hall's name in nomination before the convention as Oregon's candidate. As far as is known, this plan will be adhered to, and the state's first ballot will be cast for him unless he waives the honor and so instructs the Oregon delegation.

Hall entered the race, Oregon delegation leaders explained, primarily to keep the state's vice presidential vote from being given to William Grant Webster, who filled for the place in the past four presidential years. In 1912 he won the Oregon vice presidential vote, and the delegation was forced under the law to support him for one ballot. Webster is not an Oregon man. Sentiment on the vice presidential policy among Oregon delegates tonight appeared rather definitely centered around Vice President Dawes. Some sentiment was expressed for Hanford MacNider or Charles R. Harbord, if their candidacies are strongly advanced and acceptable to Hoover leaders. Senator Moses of New Hampshire was mentioned as a candidate who might expect favorable consideration at the hands of the Oregon delegation if Dawes proved unavailable.

The principal concern in the minds of the delegates seemed to be to find a strong running mate available for Hoover, geographical location and other elements of the political situation being considered.

ROBERT STEWART WILL RETAIN JOB

Directors Elected in Opposition to John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP).—The Herald and Examiner will say tomorrow that with the election of two new directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, Colonel Robert W. Stewart "has retained control of the corporation despite John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s efforts to oust him because of his implication in the oil scandal inquiry."

The new directors are L. L. Stevens, general attorney for the corporation and Colonel Stewart's personal representative at his trial in Washington; and C. J. Barkdull, who has been serving as treasurer during the Stewart administration.

Their election, the newspaper will say, "virtually assures Colonel Stewart that he has the confidence of the board of directors and that he will remain as chairman." The Herald and Examiner quotes an unnamed official of the company.

Yes, Dawes Has Much to Say—About His Canine

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP).—Vice President Charles G. Dawes talked freely today—about his recently acquired Chow dog, Chung. Cornered by a reporter where he could not escape—in a barber chair, the vice president refused to talk about the Kansas City convention, although he indicated his interest by announcing he expected to listen to some of today's session over the radio. The rest of the interview was spent in a discussion of the merits of the Chow.

NEW YORK VOTES ACCORDED HOOVER

Entire Delegation of 90 Takes Stand for Commerce Secretary

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, June 13.—(AP).—The stampede to Hoover assumed high proportions tonight when the New York delegation decided to cast its 90 votes for him on the first ballot, to swell the already decisive margin which he received when the Pennsylvanians decided to join his forces.

Just before the convention met in its first night session the New Yorkers held a caucus which voted overwhelmingly in favor of the commerce secretary's candidacy but the acclamations were not needed to make the Hoover caucus a winning one.

The purpose of the night session was to receive the platform but before the delegates began coming in it was evident that the fight over farm relief plank in the resolutions committee would make it impossible to submit that document before tomorrow.

It was the first opportunity for many of the Kansas City folks to view the big show and they began filling the galleries thirty minutes before the time set for Chairman Chairman Moses to call the meeting to order.

Mark L. Requa, California Hoover man, proposed adjournment until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and his motion was carried with a whoop from a handful of delegates present at exactly 7:27 p. m., central standard time. The session lasted, officially, about one minute.

The galleries roared a stentorian "no" to the adjournment motion, but they had to go home without seeing the convention in extended session. Delegates leaving the hall had difficulty getting through the door because of the incoming crowds.

The New York delegation at a caucus tonight decided to cast its 90 votes for Herbert Hoover on the first ballot.
On the first ballot in a secret caucus meeting, the delegation gave 77 votes for Hoover with the remainder scattered.
James W. A. Wadsworth, former senator from New York, who was one of those casting a vote against Hoover, then moved that the delegation vote unanimously for Hoover on the first ballot and this motion carried by unanimous vote.

The new directors are L. L. Stevens, general attorney for the corporation and Colonel Stewart's personal representative at his trial in Washington; and C. J. Barkdull, who has been serving as treasurer during the Stewart administration.

Their election, the newspaper will say, "virtually assures Colonel Stewart that he has the confidence of the board of directors and that he will remain as chairman." The Herald and Examiner quotes an unnamed official of the company.
