Colorful Team Coming to Represent Albany Against Senators Sunday

RED RUPERT KNOWS GAME FROM A TO

This Albany baseball team that comes to Oxford Park tomorrow with thoroughly grounded confidence of beating the Salem Senators, is like other Albany outfits that have come here in the past and frequently made good on just such boasts-it Goesn't look like much of a team on paper, but is awfully tough when it gets out on the field.

Reasons? Well, in the first place, there's "Red" Rupert himself. "Frisco" Edwards will laugh derisively when he reads this but Red is nobody's dumb oyster when it comes to baseball. From November 25 to October 1, he has never but once been caught in the act of thinking anything but baseball. On that one occasion, Red did allow his mind to drift from the national game long enough to quote a great essayist in the following gem:

"A certain amount of fleas is good for a dog; they keep him! from broodin' over bein' a dog." From October 1 to November 25. football claims all his thoughts.

Of course, Red doesn't play ball much himself any more, so he has to bring along nine players and a few spares for emergency.

The difference between this Alco team and most of the others in putting in extra hours on the links first 36 were five players, three the league, is that it is thoroughly this week and will indulge even professionals and two amateurs. organized; something that has more strenuously next week, in The five were but one stroke bebeen effected through several preparation for the team play hind the leaders.
