July 5, 1928 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end. No man can enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he will first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house. Mark 3:26-27.

SENSELESS WASTE Why allow the sale of firecrackers and all the kindred devilish devices of danger and noise? The whole day and all the night was made hideous in Salem yesterday by the firing of these things that trace their origin back to China when that country was a heathen land to a greater extent than now—

A lady in Salem yesterday, a visitor from another city, was afraid to walk the streets, because of the throwing of firecrackers by thoughtless youths and grown up morons. No place was safe.

It is all a senseless waste of money that ought to be used for better purposes. For any other purpose, almost, with less danger of doing injury. The right of indulging in the idiotic practice was confined in Salem to one day; yesterday, the Fourth of July. But the din commenced two or three days ago, and it will no doubt continue as long as any of the devilish things are left in the hands of callow youths or shallow pated grown ups.

Why not make it an offense punishable by a heavy fine for any one to either sell or buy or have in his possession any of these things?

CRATER LAKE (Portland Telegram)

All over Oregon today, editors who have wasted the substance of their vocabularies in riotous writing, return to their desks to make vain search for words adequate to describe the miracle of Crater Lake and to express due appreciation for the generous hospitality of 'Dick' Price, manager of Crater Lake Lodge, who entertained the members of the Oregon State Editorial association for the annual convention.

The second effort is less important, since Mr. Price, like all true hosts, has found his thanks already in the unfeigned pleasure and enthusiasm of his guests, but the first—the attempt to tell of Crater Lake—must be tried, not that it can be done, but that those who have never seen it may be intrigued to go and find out for themselves how impossible it is to paint that colorful picture in the black and white of print.

Not so many years ago, we thought of Crater Lake as a place remote and inaccessible, but now our splendid highways bring it almost to our doors. The Telegram's party easily made the return journey from the Lodge in a day, following The Dalles-California highway. The white crest of Mount Shasta and the nearer pile of Mount McLaughlin glistened in the morning sunlight and through the day there passed in majestic review, Three Sisters, Washinton, Jefferson and Hood, accenting the green rhythm of the Cascades.

First the winding descent from the crater's rim; then the lush green pastures of Fort Klamath, dotted with fattening herds; the forests of yellow pine thinning out at last to the sparse growth of the high desert; the grim beauty of naked rocks, the great crevasses in the plain, sculptured hollows that hold flourishing towns and miles of waving wheat, the western road through familiar forests crowding the foothills of Mount Hood and at last, the flowery gardens of Portland homes—where else in all the world can one motoring day discover so much of varied beauty?

FEAR IS A BLIGHT (By Charles B. Driscoll)

One of the most destructive factors that can come into anyone's life is fear. Fear makes more lives unhappy than poverty or disease or loneliness. Furthermore, fear may so blight the life of an individual as to bring on all of these other ills, plus many others that are familiar to all of us. I believe that the most important time to provide for the happiness of a person is during the first few years of his life.

Most children are trained to fear from babyhood. They are taught fear even before they are taught love. I think it is a crime to tell ghost stories and horror tales to little children. I think it is a cowardly and cruel thing for a parent to take pleasure in the pop-eyed fear of his own child when the parent recites bogey-man tales and threatens to call the doctor or the policeman to make the child behave in a certain manner.

On a recent sunny afternoon I took my little daughter, Mary, riding in a seaplane. She has seen planes sailing over the town as long as she can remember. She is eight years old. It occurred to me that she has been hearing a good deal about planes falling to the earth and into the sea and all that. Like an adult, she might attach undue importance to such stories. Now, of course, I know that flying is not dangerous, and I love to fly as a passenger. I do not want my children to learn fear.

"Will it fall?" asked Mary. "Well," I said, "suppose we watch and see. And if it doesn't fall, we'll take a ride in it. How's that?"

"Fine!" So we went to the landing and induced the aviator to take us for a ride. While we were lifting away from the water, Mary wrote on a card to me: "Are we all right?" Then, thought I, was the time to make sure no fear of airplanes should beset this young woman. I wrote, "Sure, we're all right. Lots of fun, isn't it?" And smiled. That was a memorable day for Mary. She stood up in the open cockpit and looked over the side, down upon the cities and towns and ships. She was thrilled by the beauty of the sight. When the plane banked, tipping far over on her side, she did not seem to notice it. I had to hold her by the shoulder to keep her from being spilled out. But fear was not even suggested. The pilot smiled confidently, and Mary laughed hilariously. Fear is deliberately or unthinkingly drilled into the minds of thousands of children, and remains a blighting heritage, to make their lives miserable.

AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

On June 16, 1903, twenty-five years ago, the Ford Motor company commenced business with a capitalization of $100,000, of which only $28,000 has ever been paid into the treasury. Production began in a small factory in which 311 men were employed. They made 1,708 cars in the first year. The company's assets now run into hundreds of millions of dollars and it has assembling plants in many countries. In nineteen years the company produced 15,000,000 of the old Model T Fords, once reaching a peak of 9,000 a day. It is now getting under way for even larger production. The most outstanding feature of this great industry is the fact that it has been created without bond issues, watered stock, money advanced by the public or from employees' pay envelopes. Every man connected with the original organization has become independently wealthy.

Ten states will campaign to abolish the death penalty this fall and winter, according to officials connected with the League to Abolish Capital Punishment. California, Colorado, Oregon and Washington are among the states. In Oregon, the sponsors of the movement are given as L. L. Vincent, Porter J. Neff, Cornelia Marvin, K. L. Trevitt and John Wills. Speaking campaigns by authorities on the subject are to be carried on.

The reply of Canada to the invitation from Secretary Kellogg to become a party to the multilateral treaty for renunciation of war is a whole-hearted endorsement of the proposal. Premier Mackenzie King expresses the belief that the treaty can be made a truly effective barrier against war.

A survey made by the New York Medical society shows that approximately 2,000,000 persons in the United States are ill each day of the year. The average worker loses eight days a year through illness, and one in four families is ill once a year.

Bits For Breakfast Salemites scattered. Mostly they celebrated in other cities and towns. Which was very appropriate, this being the capital of the state. But enough remained at home to help outsiders to make up the largest crowd ever assembled on the state fair grounds to witness auto races.

There were enough callow youths and morons of mature ages left, too, to keep the streets places of danger from the wanton throwing of firecrackers. The nuisance must be abolished in future years. No matter whether a man has money or not, it worries him. Simply be decent and then you won't have to worry about being ethical.

In getting money out of dirt, magazine writers have the farmers beaten by a mile. When you consult a doctor, you don't feel that you get your money's worth unless he tells you to stop something. Hez Heck says: "When cussedness comes natural to a man, you waste time takin' him to church."

"FOURTH" JOYS END FOR CHILD WHEN AUTO HITS (Continued from page 1.) cracker or some other piece of fireworks on the other side of the roadway. At the hospital it was stated that the gravity of the boy's injuries had not yet been determined, attendants merely declaring that a fracture of the skull is always serious.

MORE MARINES GO SOUTH Nearly 1,000 Men Sent To Nicaragua To Oversee Election SAN PEDRO, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—The navy repair ship Medina, loaded with 675 marines and 200 soldiers today awaited the "zero hour."

At midnight tonight the big ship will haul anchor and steam away for Nicaragua, where the marines, drafted from the battle fleet here, will do "election duty." The "devil dogs," carrying full field equipment, even to ammunition for their Springfield and M1918 rifles, will be disembarked at Corinto, on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua, in time to keep a 185 Mile Race Event Closest of Kind in Years SALEM, N. H., July 4.—(AP)—In one of the closest races ever held on the Rockingham speedway, Ray Keech, driving a Simplex special, nosed out Leg Meyers and Norman Batton here today in the holiday 185 mile classic. Only two seconds difference in time separated the three drivers. Keech finished in one hour, 30 minutes and 26 seconds, Meyers in one hour, 30 minutes and 28 seconds, and Batten in one hour, 30 minutes and 30 seconds. The official time was not made known until four hours after the race ended. The race had been out from 200 miles to 185 when rain forced the drivers off the track in the 130th lap, causing a second start an hour later.

LAW ENFORCEMENT MAKES BUSY DAYS Corporation Commission Brings Number of Crooks In State to Book

F. E. Kenney and E. K. Cluster were arrested on June 12 for selling securities in violation of the Oregon blue sky law. Kenney is the inventor of an alleged air compressor that will run an automobile. His scheme is quite unique in that, according to his claims, he has practically achieved perpetual motion. A battery runs an air compressor that runs the rear wheels of the car. The rear wheels run a generator that charges the battery and so on around the interesting circle.

For years Kenney has been the subject of scrutiny by the Portland Better Business Bureau and the district attorney's office because of his financing schemes. Washwomen, aged men, widows, orphans, etc., have been his selected class of victims. Several thousand dollars have been taken from this class of people by Kenney, who has up until his arrest managed to evade the law through clever legal advice. Unfortunately for Kenney, however, he attempted to sell securities based on the invention to a widow, who turned out to be a representative of the corporation commissioner. When he came to the appointed place to accompany the widow to the bank and withdraw her savings, he was met by Deputy Sheriff Christoferson and Love and a representative of the Portland Better Business Bureau. Instead of going to the bank, Kenney and his partner, Cluster, went to jail. These men have been bound over to the grand jury.

A Clever Crook With the arrest of L. M. Allen, head of the Allen Brokerage company, on June 19, another questionable stock brokerage house was closed. Allen's "Bucket-Shop" operations have extended over a long period of years and he is considered one of the cleverest operators on the Pacific coast. Once before, in 1925, the Portland Better Business Bureau succeeded in stopping his activities through the assistance of the New York stock exchange. At that time, he was operating a board room in the Railway Exchange building, where he secured quotations by a unique radio device enabling him to pick incoming messages off the wires of a local wire house.

Following the closing of that office, and the dismantling of a radio transmitter, Allen opened a small office in the Chamber of Commerce building, from which he did some business. His trading was confined to a small list of clients, and it was impossible to secure sufficient evidence for stopping his operations.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation for a laxative to be used, by practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers. Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also all.

Twenty-five Years Ago July 4, 1903 Frank Miller, who will perform at the carnival today, has been going up in balloons and coming down in parachutes for 24 years. Miss Ella Welch has been elected grade teacher in the Salem public schools. Frank Davis and R. J. Fleming yesterday received notice that a patent had been issued them for a new convenient display front on cracker boxes. The United States Indian school band of Chemawa has gone to The Dalles to participate in the Fourth of July celebration there. Walter DeLong, engineer of the Salem fire department, was somewhat indisposed yesterday with a slight attack of the fever. John Gardner will go to Portland today for a short business trip. Justine Calmels of Portland is visiting Miss Cora Talkington during carnival week. Mrs. C. B. Shelton, private secretary to Governor Chamberlain, went to Portland yesterday to spend the Fourth. Hon. I. L. Patterson came up from Portland last night for a short visit with his family over the Fourth. Prof. W. C. Hawley departed for Eugene last night where he will deliver a Fourth of July oration today. A new safe has been placed in the Salem postoffice this week. Mrs. M. C. Wire of Albany was in Salem yesterday on university business.

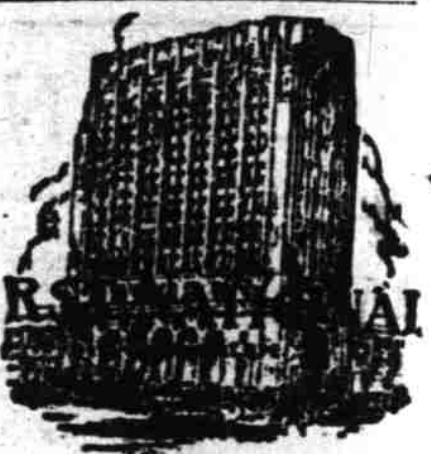

Havana Beggers Will Ply Trade Only On Saturdays HAVANA, Cuba, July 4.—(AP)—Saturdays are nickle days in Havana. Beggars have joined together promising business men that during the week days neither their place of business nor customers will be annoyed providing they have a small sum ready Saturday afternoon. The Havana mendicant, comparatively few in number, but industrious, is seen at all times, but the commercial houses are free of them until Saturday and then the nickle day starts. Regular routes are assigned certain beggars and these routes are well covered.

Italian Immigration Ban Shows Effect in Prussia BERLIN, July 4.—(AP)—The restriction of Italian emigration since Mussolini became dictator finds another confirmation in the decrease of Italian workers in Prussia. They equaled 110,000 or 12 per cent of the total number of foreign workers before the war. This percentage decreased to 1.9 per cent in 1927, according to the latest official statistics. The total number of foreigners
