SEA SONG

I know a stretch of glistening beach,
All amber, gold and white,
Where blue-green tides run swift and sure,
And sea gulls scream in flight.
Oh, fugitive the rushing winds
That blow such stinging spray,
Or snatch the laughter from my lips,
And fling it far away.
So wild and sad, O sea, your song,
And jagged rocks your bluff,
It seems that I can never hold
Your beauty close enough.
