FORESTS OF N. Y. IN GOOD CONDITION

Fire Situation Not Alarming For This Time of Year, Report Says

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—(AP)—With the exception of the fire in the Quinalt Indian Reservation, Olympic National forest, the situation in the northwest is good for this time of year, United States forestry officials said today.

No fires other than that in the Quinalt have been reported in the district, officials said.

Four hundred men were battling the Quinalt blaze and were expected tonight to have it under control soon. Approximately 2,600 acres had been burned over, but of this amount only forty acres was in big timber.

The fire was increasing as it headed toward green timber, in which it cannot spread.

Of the burned area, 700 acres are in the Indian reservation, 850 acres in the national forest, and the rest privately owned.

A fire which threatened timber holdings of the Pelican bay lumber company and the Shaw-Bertner lumber company has been controlled after a fight which lasted twelve hours, according to word reaching Klamath Falls.

The blaze covered about 600 acres of land north of Beaver Marsh and near the south boundary of the Deschutes national forest. Damage was confined principally to second growth timber.

TILLAMOOK TELLS NEED OF LOW RATE

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—(AP)—The troubles of Tillamook county, Oregon, and the fame of Tillamook cheese brightened the hearing of the Interstate commerce commission train rate hearings Thursday. A certain degree of grave dignity which has heretofore marked the proceedings, was punctured more than once as Carl Haberlach, manager of the Tillamook County Creamery association, unfolded his story of the cheese that made a county famous.

Haberlach's presence at a hearing on grain rates was explained when he reported his association purchased annually 10,000 tons of hay and from 6,000 to 7,000 tons of feed.

Western Oregon dairymen, Haberlach said, are at a disadvantage in competing with western Washington, because points in the latter territory enjoy the same rates from the east as does Seattle. On the other hand, he said, dairymen in the coast counties of Oregon must pay the rate to Portland from eastern points, plus the local rate from Portland to the point of destination—in this case, Tillamook.

Tillamook county wants a through rate on the Portland basis on oats, corn and barley shipped from eastern states, Haberlach said. Under existing schedules, he testified, Tillamook dairymen pay more for feed shipped from points east of the Missouri river than from points west of the river.

Tillamook also wants transit privileges on intrastate rates; that is, the privilege of shipping grain from eastern Oregon, milling it at Portland, and shipping the leftover mill feed on to Tillamook at one through rate.

Haberlach was followed on the stand by E. V. Burlingham of Forest Grove, who was representing the Willamette Valley Grain Dealers' association, and was armed with a resolution from that body, asking the public service commission to stand for a general lowering of rates.

A MORAL IN A TRUE STORY ABOUT WORK

An Incident Connected With a Search for Men to Help Saw Wood

It was planned to saw wood in the country. The wood saw man and the farmer had agreed to meet at the corner of South Commercial and Miller streets, as the wood saw man did not know just where the wood job was, and the farmer was to show him. The wood saw man had engaged three helpers and they were to meet at the appointed place at 6:30 a. m. The farmer was there at 6:25, the wood saw man was there in advance. The men who were to assist with the work failed to put in their appearance. The two waited until 6:40 and then went in search of the men.

They went to the corner of Commercial and Ferry streets, where men in quest of work gather in front of the free employment agency. Even at this hour there were several on hand. The wood saw man started in to secure the services of the required number and a conversation something like this would follow:

Wood Saw Man—I am looking for a man to help saw wood, do you want the job?
Job Hunter—Where is the wood?
W. S. M.—Out in the country about five miles.
J. H.—How will I get out to the work?
W. S. M.—An auto is waiting to take you.
J. H.—How will I get back?
W. S. M.—An auto will bring you back.
J. H.—What are you paying?
W. S. M.—I will pay 40c per hour.
J. H.—Is it heavy work?
W. S. M.—It is handling wood. At that the J. H. would walk away. After about an hour of this kind of work and soliciting, two men had been secured. In the meantime the sidewalk was full of J. H.'s. Finally one man told the W. S. M. of a young man in desperate need of work to help support his wife and baby, and that he could be found at a certain house. This house was visited and after a wait at the door of several minutes the young wife came to the door, partially clad. The W. S. M. made his mission known and after waiting several minutes more the young man came to the door blinking his eyes. It had now got to be after eight o'clock. After being informed of the nature of the job, he decided that it was too far out in the country.

So the W. S. M. and the farmer again visited the employment agency and Sim Phillips, who is in charge of the agency, was appealed to.

"Just wait a moment," he said. He stepped out and beckoned to a man who was in the crowd, but one whom the W. S. M. had not approached. He mentioned the job to him and he said, "I will be ready just as soon as I can get a lunch," so he hurried into a nearby restaurant and very soon came out with a lunch for noon and they started, the last recruit riding with the farmer. Their conversation was something like this:

How long is this job to last?
MR. LAIRD
One of Portland's leading hair-cutters, now with Joe Maddison at the Mizzi Gray Shop, 709-13 1st Nat'l Bank Bldg. Phone 187.

Don't stand still as the years go by. You can never catch up—Silverton Tribune.

Farmer—Today, anyway. Laborer—If we do not get through will they make us quit at 6 o'clock tonight?

Farmer—Most men want to quit at that time.

Laborer—Yes, but we are getting a late start. I wonder what the W. S. M. says?
Farmer—I heard him say that he was paying 40c per hour.
Laborer—That is not bad. I have been working for 37 1/2c per hour at the cannery, but there they have work for from 12 to 16 hours per day, and that runs into money pretty good. I just got through last night at one of the canneries, and there is nothing more to do until Monday. Is there any work on the farm that I can do tomorrow? By that time they had reached the place of the work and the saw was soon humming.

Upon returning to town later in the day the incident was mentioned to Mr. Phillips and he said: "Do you know who that last man was? That is S—F—; he will be a senior in the law school at the university next year. He is a bright student, has a young wife and has saved several hundred dollars while going to school and making his own way. "Yes, he will work."

Very probably, thirty years from now when S—F— is a successful attorney and enjoying the comforts of life there will be some of the J. H.'s saying: "Look at that had the opportunity that he had," of had the opportunity that he had."

Italians Resent Humor In Viennese Operetta

VIENNA, July 20.—(AP)—Unofficial protests were made by Italy on the occasion of the production of a new operetta entitled "Czarevitch" by Franz Lehár, in which a humorous Neapolitan character named Dodolo is made to say objectionable, nonsensical things offensive to Italians.

Several Italian journalists who attended the opening performance rose in unison when Dodolo appeared and walked out of the theater. The Viennese press supports their indignation protest and says the offending passages should be deleted from the play.
