Plans commerce, said W. W. Hara, Penthe transportation committee of the farmers' union of Oregon and southern Idaho, rest ton establishemnt of the lowest possible Following are the individual rail rate to Portland and sime

Hara said he would like to have the rate made immune to change for twenty-five years if it is withn the commission's power to do

.286 For years, Hara said, efforts have been made to utilize the Celilo canal on which the government spent millions of dollars. Promises have been received from steamship operators to establish service to upper river points, the Pendleman said. Farmers have promised to build elevators on the Columbia river bank to facilitate loading, but it all came to naught, Hara related, because there was no assurance that railroads would not immediately lower their rates to destroy the new competition.

If the lowest possible rate were established on some permanent basis, Hara continued, capital interested in the steamship and elevator projects would have a sound foundation on which to

Hara sees no disadvantage in the longer time required by water transportation of wheat. In fact, he said, the farmer would gain because of increase of weight of 125 his grain through absorption of moisture, Machinery, automobiles .000 and other manufactured products, would furnish sufficient cargo for the return trip up the river.

Troubles of Georgia Republicans To Be Aired in Court .250

ATLANTA, July 24 .- (AP)-Tangled affairs of the republican party in Georgia were taken into court today when B. J. Cofer. Albany negro editor, obtained a temporary injunction restraining a group of party leaders from transacting business at a meeting

Cofer, claiming the meeting had been called to name presidential electors on the party licket in November, alleged the meeting was illegal. He said there now was no executive committee, the members: terms having expired at the Kansas City convention and no new national committeeman has been selected.
