Renew All of Linings, Advise When One Worn

It does not happen often, but occasionally when brake linings have been worn unevenly the car owner will attempt to "get by" with having only the most severely worn lining replaced.

This may be justifiable when the linings are new and one has been burned through unequal adjustment. At no other time, should it be done.

When one brake is useless, it usually is true that the others are about so. Have them all replaced and be sure of equalization.

WARMTH EVIDENT IN ICE SCULPTURE

"Twill be a chilly day for G. 'Goldie' Lightenberg when all the ice is made in modern refrigerators in tiny cubicles, for his art is living in wrapped up in ice. His living is wrapped up in ice. He makes the better Mr. Lightenberg is a sculptor and his spite of the fact that his figures have what is artistically termed "warmth" they are cut in ice.

Yesterday afternoon the sidewalk in front of the east window of the Hamilton Furniture company was crowded with interested spectators while Mr. Lightenberg cut from 400 pound blocks of ice a swan, a turtle and a flower basket. Twelve hundred pounds of ice were thus consumed in about two and a half hours.

For 20 years Mr. Lightenberg has cut figures from ice and although he has now and then felt a touch of rheumatism he still finds his work enjoyable. To protect himself against rheumatism, the sculptor wears white gum boots and a white rubber coat.

Just what the artist will choose for a subject is still a mystery—it might be a polar bear, it might be a chorus girl, or it might be both.

Ammonia Wash Advised Cleaning Upholstering

Leather upholstery in the open car requires periodic cleaning and dressing. If it is to look its best and wear reasonably well. In this cleaning process, some make the mistake of using gasoline and kerosene.

These have the effect of drying and cracking the leather. The proper agent is a household ammonia mixed with a generous quantity of water. Applied with a soft cloth, it will free the leather from dirt and grime. A good leather dressing should be applied.

U. S. BUREAU GIVES FIRST AID METHODS

Fundamentals Include Cleanliness and Control of Hemorrhage

Surgeon General H. S. Cummings, of the United States public health service advises that everyone become familiar with first-aid methods for treating the injured. First-aid has been defined as the first aid given to an injured person by simple common-sense methods, based on principles of medicine and surgery, that may be applied easily by persons not professionally trained in those subjects. It should be noted that the work of first aid ceases when the injured person has been turned over to the care of a physician.

When it is remembered that over 28,000 persons are killed in the United States each year by traffic accidents, that is, by automobile, railroad, street car accidents, over 13,000 by falls, more than 6,000 each by burns and drowning, and more than 27,000 by other accidental means, or a total of more than 80,000 persons killed and over two million additional persons injured by accidents in the United States each year, the importance of first-aid care is at once obvious. The above does not include the minor injuries, for which there are no statistics at the present time.

The common injuries include wounds with bleeding and possible infection, dislocations, sprains, fractures of bones, burns, including those caused by chemicals and asphyxia, or cessation of respiration. The principles upon which first-aid are based are as follows:

1. Cleanliness in caring for all open wounds. A clean dressing should be applied to all open wounds. The dressing should be made of sterile gauze or, if none is available, of a clean cloth or paper.

2. Control of hemorrhage by pressure and position of injured part.

3. Treatment of shock by keeping patient at rest and warm and by giving simple stimulants.

4. Artificial respiration in asphyxia, electric shock, etc., combined with the use of pure oxygen in carbon monoxide cases.

5. Asepsis in treatment of burns; protection from air if this can be done with aseptic method; antiseptic and some relief of pain by use of picric acid gauze.

6. Immobilization of dislocations and fractures.

7. Transportation by methods that will not increase the extent of the injury.

In addition to the benefits gained by the early care of the injured, first-aid has been found actually to tend to lower accidents by making people more careful.

The purpose of the tests will be to prevent eastern states establishing a quarantine against Pacific coast states infested with earwigs. Atwell said. Earwigs are known to infest shipments of cabbage and shingles, but Atwell said in his opinion there is little need for other states to establish a quarantine against Oregon and Washington, because, he said, earwigs will not increase or even survive, except in humid climates. Cream also will make experiments with a view of finding an inexpensive attractant for earwig bait.

The text on the reverse of the map gives brief descriptions of the principal recreation features on each of the 14 national forests in the state. A list of city and road side automobile camp grounds is also included. There are several attractive forest photographs, a brief statement of national forest policy and purpose and some suggestions for forest travelers as to care with fire.

Copies may be obtained from the district office library, new postoffice building, or from any of the 14 forest supervisors in the state. The forest service makes no charge for these maps, simply requesting cooperation from the map users in educating the public to leave a clean camp and a dead fire.

Nevada Town Has Wide Open Saloons, Tourist

Among the visitors at the Cherry City cottages this week were Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Draper of McMill, Nevada, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis D. Gallup of Stillwater, Oklahoma. According to Mr. Draper, McMill has changed little since the advent of prohibition. It is a town of some 2000 inhabitants and has several saloons and gambling dens all running wide open. Currits are infrequent and the airports, if found guilty, are let off with fines so small that the whole procedure is a farce. Mr. Draper reports that liquor of all varieties is sold openly over the bar and nothing thought of it.

Among the registrants at the city auto camp yesterday were F. M. Boyd and family of Springfield, Missouri. Springfield is in the heart of a very rich valley, famous for its large crops of grain and other foodstuffs.

E. McDole and family of Los Angeles spent last night in the city auto camp. He has made the trip up and down the coast a half-dozen times, and has stopped at the city camp the last four times. He has been on the road six days this trip; one day he went 25 miles up the McKensie highway and was interested in watching the big salmon try to jump the falls. Mr. McDole is enroute to Seattle; when it was suggested that many California tourists go on up to Vancouver and Victoria, he smiled and said, "Yes, I know; they have special attractions there; but we're not going—at least not this trip."

Children of visitors in the city camp spend as much time as possible these days playing in the water of the two streams which bound the camp, and in the heavy shade of the clumps of oak trees.

EARWIG UNDER TEST

RESULTS MAY PREVENT QUARANTINE AGAINST OREGON

S. E. Crumb of Washington, D. C., representative of the United States bureau of entomology, who is now touring the Willamette valley, proposes to make tests to ascertain whether earwigs will survive in climatic conditions other than that of a humid nature. H. C. Atwell, state horticulture commissioner, announced Thursday.

The purpose of the tests will be to prevent eastern states establishing a quarantine against Pacific coast states infested with earwigs. Atwell said. Earwigs are known to infest shipments of cabbage and shingles, but Atwell said in his opinion there is little need for other states to establish a quarantine against Oregon and Washington, because, he said, earwigs will not increase or even survive, except in humid climates. SEATTLE, July 26.—(AP)—A small determined group of men opposing the two year collegiate requirement for law students caused a brief disturbance in the well planned sessions of the American Bar association today.

Shortly after 7 o'clock P. M. McCracken, Jr., secretary of the association, submitted the proposed new constitution and by-laws to the convention, James H. Brennan of Boston was on his feet asking if amendments might be submitted. Although a motion had been made and seconded to adopt the constitution he withstood attempts to shut him down and obtained the floor for Gleason L. Archer, dean of a Boston law school.

Archer did not have a chance to present his amendment as a motion carried to vote on the constitution and by-laws by articles, amendments to be submitted when apropos. Voting was postponed until tomorrow when it was found that amplifiers were not strong enough for delegates in the back of the hall to hear.

President Elias H. Strawn in his annual address pointed to the growth of crime during the last fifty years, declaring "Every good citizen, particularly the lawyer, who is sworn to do so, ought to support the constitution and obey the laws of the land. Either the constitution should be obeyed or it should be amended as the people may determine. It must not be nullified."

Hugh Kennedy, chief justice of the Irish Free State, tonight told how the new Irish constitution was drawn from the constitutions of the United States, the German Republic and Switzerland, and still

ISSUE ROAD FOLDER

OREGON HIGHWAYS UP TO DATE IN NEW MAP SERVICE

A new edition of the popular Oregon road and information map folder has just been received at the office of the district forester in Portland.

The map shows main paved and gravel roads in red. Trunk highways, other automobile roads and secondary roads are also indicated. National forests are shown in green, while recreation centers are located by means of red circles and numbered references to the printed description.

The text on the reverse of the map gives brief descriptions of the principal recreation features on each of the 14 national forests in the state. A list of city and road side automobile camp grounds is also included. ## STOCK MARKET FOLLOWS LINE OF LEAST EFFORT

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—The line of least resistance in today's stock market was again upward. The rally ran from 1 to 6 points in many issues.

The report of Bethlehem steel issued after close of the market, showed net of $2.51 in the first half as against $4.04 in the first half of 1927, the poorer showing being attributed to lower steel prices this year. Bethlehem closed a shade lower at 57, but U. S. steel showed a net of 1.5-8 at 140-7-8 on buying influenced by expectations of a good quarterly report Tuesday.

Tobacco issues were brisk in response to reports that the recent cigarette price cutting war was over and that higher prices were likely. General Motors encouraged strong resistance on all rallies and closed fractionally higher at 188-5-8 after having touched 190-1/4.
