ACROSS THE BAY

Night came down across the bay,
In shimmering colors of black and grey.
Beneath her mantle a lining spread,
A radiance, blended from pink to red.
The stars peeped through a misty veil,
To the waning light along the flickering trail.
White-wings followed the end of day,
Where the path was blazoned across the bay.
—Hubert A. Buchanan, Seattle, Wash.
