SEEK NEW LINE IN IDAHO STATE

Hearings Held At Lewiston On Road Asked By Three Commissions

LEWISTON, Idaho, Aug. 28.—(AP)—A new kind of railroad case today focused the attention of rail men on the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing here, in which three northwest states seek to compel a railroad to extend its main line.

Oregon, Washington and Idaho, through their public service commissions, would have the Union Pacific system extend its railroad from Homestead, Ore., to Lewiston, Idaho. The extension, according to testimony being presented, would open up minerals, timber and agricultural by-products to trade and better the commercial routes of the three states.

The railroad contends that the cost of the extension along the Snake river would be prohibitive. Representatives of the public service commissions here for the hearing are E. E. Cleeland, Olympia, Attorney; Judge J. F. McCarthy, Boise, Attorney of the Idaho State Board of Public Works, and H. O. Berger, Traffic expert of Olympia.

Representing the railroad companies involved are: A. C. Spencer, O. W. R. & N., Portland; E. Dorcey, Oregon Short Line, Salt Lake City; Charles B. Foley, O. W. R. & N., Portland; L. B. DuPont, Northern Pacific, Seattle; H. E. Lounsbury, O. W. R. & N., Portland; Blaine Hallock, Baker Ore. Intervenor for eastern Oregon; and a number of other railroad officials interested, included.
