ELSMORE COMEDY CLEVERLY PLAYED
By ROZELLA BUNCH
"The Patsy" the play presented Thursday night at the Elsmore Theatre by the Manhattan players was received by a packed house with more than the ordinary amount of appreciation. This is the delightful comedy which, as a photoplay starring Marion Davies, has enjoyed such widespread popularity. The title role, that of the much abused "kid sister" Patricia, was taken last night by Miss Grace Bentley. Miss Marie Miller took the part of the elder sister, the favorite daughter of her mother, a character interestingly portrayed by Miss Florence Smith.

Lou Dana, the father, is Pagan's champion whatever the difficulties, which are numerous but subject to happy solution.

Lonny Joy as Billy Caldwell and William Ariss as Tony Anderson, are both in pursuit of Grace, who is much engaged in social climbing. The interesting chase is enlivened when "the Patsy" enters and follows a few of her own rules in the game of love.

Those who see "The Patsy" tonight may expect to laugh at a good many situations but particularly over Grace's tiff with the telephone operator. Her exasperation of purple and white of rose velvet perhaps added to the unpleasantness of Grace's disposition.

The play was presented last night by William Faris. It seems outlet, farther north," she stated. "I told them at the time that they ought to run the pipe into the water instead of just on the bank, and they said they would do that the next year." That was seven years ago.

City Procrastinates
The gist of the attitude taken by city authorities who have the matter under consideration is that expenditures to improve present sewer outlets would not be economical in view of the new sewerage system which is to be built within the next few years. The Hickory street line, for example, would have to be extended some 600 feet to reach running water, most of the extension being under the water's surface.

The Center street sewer is about three inches under water, it was found yesterday. The state's sewer, a few rods north, is in about the same condition.
