Jason Lee Women Have Annual Election

THE Woman's Foreign Missionary society of Jason Lee Methodist church met Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors for the regular business meeting.

The following officers were elected for the year: President, Mrs. Mary Mohr; vice president, Mrs. B. F. Weller; treasurer, Mrs. Herman Clark; secretary, Mrs. Albert Fuestman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. M. Scharf; mite box secretary, Mrs. J. H. Erp; standard bearer superintendent, Mrs. W. L. Lewis; king's herald superintendent, Mrs. Phil Aspinwall; light bearer's superintendent, Mrs. J. Klinger; stewardship secretary, Mrs. Marie Putnam; extension secretary, Mrs. A. L. Dark.

Miss Bertha Gless who has been active in missionary work in China for several years gave an interesting address on her work. She said in part: "China needs the prayers of Christian America. Chinese Christians are gradually becoming leaders of their own people. Chinese Christians have shown their courage during the recent persecution because of their belief in Christ."

In 1904 public schools were established in several sections of China, the systems of the Japanese being employed. The missions supplied schools for girls till 1925. Only 250,000 girls out of a population of four million people are in school. One-tenth of the population is receiving no education whatever.

"The women of China do the greater part of the heavy work. Chinese women are timid as they have been considered as servants for many years, but today a number of the women are leading in new interesting movements for their country."

"The story of the trouble in Nanking is full of miraculous saving of lives of missionaries. In some instances the Chinese Christians offered to give their lives as substitutes."

Miss Gless will sail shortly on her return to China where she will serve as secretary to Bishop Birney.

Nebraska Women Feted in London

Mrs. R. G. Anderson, Miss Gertrude Auman, and Miss Mary Jeffrey of Lincoln, Nebraska are representing Nebraska on the goodwill tour of American business women in Europe, sponsored by the national federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

Presbyterians Will Gather At Mehama

MEMBERS of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church of Salem met at the church at nine-thirty o'clock Monday morning and motored 33 miles east of Salem to Mehama on the Santiam river where they enjoyed an all-day picnic.

Covers were arranged for 200 at the long picnic tables in the beautiful park which has been donated to the church by Miss Anna Stout of Mehama.

The park which is shaded by huge firs, maples and ash trees, and carpeted with moss and fir needles, has been fenced, an outdoor fireplace has been built and tables and benches arranged.

One hundred additional members of the church gathered in the park for the afternoon which was spent with a variety of sports and games.

Musical numbers were given by the church quartet led by Dr. L. E. Barrick; Frank E. Churchill, church organist, gave several numbers on a small portable organ and William Wright, choir director, led in the singing.

Short talks were given by Dr. Norman Fendall Tully, pastor of the church; by Miss Anna Stout, donor of the park; Mr. W. A. Dellzell, and also by Mr. R. C. Davis, chairman of the committee in charge of improving the park.

Mr. Davis hopes to secure a landscape gardener to make improvements in the park although it is planned to retain as much as possible of the ground's natural beauty. A lodge will be built next year for the various groups to use as a camp and also for church conferences.

New Mexico to Go For Hoover, Mrs. Reid Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Word that the passage of the presidential nominee's special train has borne fruit in New Mexico was received at republican headquarters today.

A telegram from Mrs. W. C. Reid, republican national committee-woman for the state, who boarded the Hoover train at Gallup to ride with the nominee and Mrs. Hoover to Albuquerque, informed Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, national vice chairman, that there is a "very encouraging outlook in the state since Hoovers special trip."

The mother who, now and then, gives her child spending money in varying amounts, impresses on him the idea that almost any sum of money is to be had for the asking, and that the amount obtained depends on the momentary affection or caprice of another.

Far better to make the child understand that like the older members of the family, he, too, has a definite income for his personal expenditure, given to him in proportion to his needs. Thus he accepts without question the fact that his older brother has more spending money than he. At the same time he is never tempted to use the affection people have for him as a means to get money.

The child under six should never have more than 15 or 20 cents a week, although, for older children, the allowance should be set at an amount proper to the scale of family expenditure. Once the amount has been fixed it should never be increased nor advanced on it for the wish of the moment.

Let the youngster learn to deny himself of ice cream today so that he will be able to buy that box of crayons he wants tomorrow. Let him find out that if he spends all his money at once his pockets will go empty until next pay day. Let him buy what he wants so long as it will not injure his health.

Only by experiencing the disappointment that comes of spending money foolishly will he learn to spend wisely.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

"Give me a nickel. Please give me a nickel!" These are words familiar to the ears of thousands of mothers. In the nickel given and spent no particular reason lies the germ of serious trouble later on.

The mother who, now and then, gives her child spending money in varying amounts, impresses on him the idea that almost any sum of money is to be had for the asking, and that the amount obtained depends on the momentary affection or caprice of another.

Far better to make the child understand that like the older members of the family, he, too, has a definite income for his personal expenditure, given to him in proportion to his needs. Thus he accepts without question the fact that his older brother has more spending money than he. At the same time he is never tempted to use the affection people have for him as a means to get money.

The child under six should never have more than 15 or 20 cents a week, although, for older children, the allowance should be set at an amount proper to the scale of family expenditure. Once the amount has been fixed it should never be increased nor advanced on it for the wish of the moment.

Let the youngster learn to deny himself of ice cream today so that he will be able to buy that box of crayons he wants tomorrow. Let him find out that if he spends all his money at once his pockets will go empty until next pay day. Let him buy what he wants so long as it will not injure his health.
