Starkweather. From First District Denied Place on Election Ballot

Harvey G. Starkweather, democratic nominee for congress from the first Oregon district, will not be given a place on the November ballot, it was stated by Secretary of State Kozer Tuesday. Kozer's statement followed a conference with Attorney General Van Winkle regarding the regularity of Starkweather's nomination and s based on the holding that there is no vacancy on the democratic ticket, as contemplated under the Oregon law, in connection with the congressional position in the first district inasmuch as the democrats failed to avail themselves of the opportunity of naming a candidate at the regular primary. In the May primaries the name of Starkweather as well as that of James Mott of Astoria, were written in by the democrats of the first congressional district, there being no candidate on the ballot for this position. Mott Gets Majority

Mott received the most votes, defeating Starkweather, but inasmuch as he was defeated in his race for the republican nomination he was inhibited, through his campaign pledge, from accepting the endorsement of the democrats. This left the democrats without a candidate, a situation which it was sought to remedy through action by the congressional committeemen who nominated Starkweather. Had there been a regularly nominated candidate who had later withdrawn from the race for any reason, Kozer holds. there would have been a vacancy on the ticket for the committeemen to full but as there was no candidate to begin with there is no vacancy to fill.

It is expected here that mandamus proceedings will be instituted by Starkweather to test out the disputed point and to place his name on the ballot. Progressives File
