

UTILITIES PRINT HOOVER SPEECH

Address on State Control Broadcast by National Association

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Financial records introduced today as evidence in the investigation of power utilities by the federal trade commission presented a comprehensive picture of the activities of the National Electric Light Association, and widely-known names figured occasionally in testimony by representatives of that association.

Distribution of a speech made by Herbert Hoover here on October 14, 1925, was disclosed by George F. Oxley, of New York, public relations director of the N. E. L. A. He identified a check for $645 made to Harold Phelps Stokes, and addressed to the department of commerce under date of October 28, 1925, as payment for 49,500 copies of the speech.

Large Number Ordered
Entitled "Why the Public Interest Requires States Rather than Federal Regulation of Electric Public Utilities." The address was made by Hoover while Secretary of Commerce to the 37th annual convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

"It was so good," said Oxley, "that I ordered a large quantity to go out to our people."

Oxley named Mrs. John D. Sherman of Estes Park, Colorado, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, as having been paid $600 a piece for "several" articles on rural homes which were published as "news." This was done through an advertising agency, he said, indicating that the payments had been made monthly for about a year. Checks to this agency were put in evidence, and in addition vouchers for $50 and $15 to Mrs. Sherman were presented. One of these had the notation "jacking up the farm women's home equipment."

Statistics Given
Estimating expenditures for advertising by the N. E. L. A. at about $68,000 for one year and $100,000 a year "for the past several years," Oxley testified that the amount given to persons for writing articles which appeared in news columns had amounted to $8,500 "for the last year or so."

Earlier A. J. Marshall, secretary of the N. E. L. A., identified a $500 check to William Allen White, editor of the Emporia, Kansas, Gazette, which he said was for speaking to the Atlantic City convention of the association May 1926. The speech was found in records of the convention already in evidence. It dealt with utilities selling "service" to the public, and hailed the N. E. L. A. members as leaders of the nation's progress. Checks for $5,000 and $338 made to Bruce Barton, writer, by the association also were presented. The $5,000 payment was said to be for envelope advertising matter, while the latter was for expenses attendant upon his speaking to the 1925 convention at San Francisco.

Gale Stirs Atlantic
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Old man ocean, made fighting mad by the buffeting of the West Indian Florida hurricane struck up with both fists at the north Atlantic coast today. Ships sought shelter, beach resorts were troubled by unusually high tides and a few small craft were grounded as the northeast wind, reaching gale velocity of more than 70 miles an hour, piled up heavy seas on its wild course up the shoreline.

The weather bureau advised that a whole gale was blowing from Atlantic City, N. J., to Provincetown, Mass., and issued storm warnings from the Cape Cod town north to Boston and Eastport, Me.
Yacht Driven Ashore
The 45-ton yacht Tigress, owned by Samuel P. Curtis of Philadelphia, dragged her anchor off Lewes, Del., and went ashore. A Philadelphia barge, seeking shelter in the harbor at Lewes, was driven hard aground near the lighter craft, and a coast guard cutter was assigned to stand by both.

WOMEN GREET MRS. HOOVER

Thousands of Candidate's Supporters Shake Hands With His Wife

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—In a house dedicated to another Quaker woman, once acting governor of Pennsylvania, Hannah Penn, wife of William Penn, Mrs. Herbert Hoover today greeted some two thousand of the Pennsylvania women who are backing her husband's campaign for the presidency.

As the guests of Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, Mrs. Hoover's luncheon hostess earlier in the day, 2300 women were invited to meet the nominee's wife at the Hannah Penn house, headquarters of the republican women of Pennsylvania.

At the end of the flower-decked, drawing room, Mrs. Hoover stood in a long receiving line and shook hands with the apparently endless line of women who crowded to meet her. She could not meet them all, for when she hurried off to catch her train to Washington, guests still were arriving.

Her 24 hour stay at Philadelphia, in the home of Mrs. J. Willis Martin, was a personal one, and her visit to the state headquarters of the women's committee for Hoover early in the day was strictly unofficial.

"I am so delighted to have met the republican women of Pennsylvania," was all she said publicly to the women who gathered to greet her.

A proposed tax levy of $96,138 and estimated revenues of $7161 are included in the city budget of Bend for 1929.

IRVIN WILLIAMSON, local barber, said: "Sunday closings won't affect me much as I do not come down town much that day. I would hate to see the town closed up on Sunday as the theaters would lose their day of biggest business. Closed theaters would not send many people to church that do not go. They would go for a ride or to Albany to a show."

RAY MOHLER, night messenger at telegraph office, said: "I work every night except Sunday as do many others in public service work. Sunday night or afternoon is the only chance I have to go to a show. Salem would be as dead as though it were not here if 'closed Sunday' laws were passed."

Trained Mules Will Help Amuse Big Fair Crowds

One of the feature attractions to be presented before the grandstand twice each day during the 1929 Oregon State fair next week is Pink's trained mules and one-riding animal circus. His animals include mules, trained ponies, educated dogs, high jumping and wall scaling police dogs and a monkey that rivals Charlie Chaplin in antics.

One of the proudest animals in the acts is a trained mule that is said to be the most honored mule in the world, having at one time carried the honorable William Jennings Bryan on his back at the Minnesota state fair years ago when Bryan was campaigning for president. The mule is now 35 years old and still active. Look this mule over when you attend the fair next week. It is the black and white one, just a little larger than the others and keeps the crowds in a constant state of laughter by bucking and kicking three negro lads around the ring when they attempt to ride him. No signs of age are visible as it capers about as willing and as nimble as some of the younger animals.

Forestry Board To Hold Session

A committee of the Oregon state board of forestry will meet in Salem September 26 to devise ways and means for a construction of a forestry building at the state fairgrounds. The cost of the structure has not yet been determined. It was proposed to have the structure completed before the 1929 state fair.

Considerable mystery surrounds the high wire walking elephant in the world. No stall has been reserved for this animal. Press notices state that this animal walks on a high wire suspended 65 feet in the air. How Jumbo gets to the top of the poles is not explained, but the act is said by those who have seen it at other fairs to be one of the strangest things in the amusement world, and its presentation a masterpiece of daring.

disclosed little additional murder evidence today, but resulted in locating a former neighbor who corroborated part of the Clark boy's story. Jose Estrada told sheriff's deputies that he had seen young Clark at the ranch and heard him howl and scream from beatings. Estrada declared, however, that he never had seen any other boys at the ranch.

An abandoned mine shaft and a filled-in well, both near Northcott's cabin in Mint canyon, a hundred miles north of the murder farm, were included in the search to prove or disprove the Clark boy's tale of Northcott's crimes. Clark, who was taken to the Mint canyon site today, had declared that Northcott, assisted by a miner, had killed the latter's partner in a quarrel over gold. Clark also identified boy who witnessed the miner's slaying. He explained that the asserted degenerate youth had rented the cabin for temporary use last February.

Well Yields Clues
Yesterday a search of the cabin site and the filled-in well uncovered boys shoes and other clues which stirred the officials to further delving.

Two letters, supposedly written by the two Winslow boys, believed killed, to their father shortly after they disappeared were obtained by investigators today. The letters which had been mailed at Pomona and Riverside, were to be submitted to handwriting experts to determine if they were written under compulsion. Clark had declared Northcott, before murdering the two brothers, had forced them to write the letters. The investigators said examination would reveal whether or not the letters were written under a burden of terror.
