WHAT THEY THINK

(Continued from Page 1.) ing; the trousers now called hiking trousers were the riding breeches of an earlier period. They are more economical than other apparel because they may be cleaned easily if they become soiled, which often happens in motoring.

EMMA LENZ, of the Palm confectionery and grocery on North Church street, said: "I think it is all right for women motorists to wear knickers. At least I don't see any harm in it."

MISS ANONA WELCH, who presides over the official records of Salem justice court, said: "I think it looks all right for women to appear in knickers at certain times and places. For instance, when a bunch of girls are going on a hike or something of that kind, I think knickers look appropriate enough. Even when a woman is going on a long outing by automobile, I don't see any objection to that kind of costume. When it comes to wearing them on the public streets, though, as they were doing a while back, I don't think much of the idea."

CLARENCE BLAKELY, Salem's champion fiddler, said: "No, I don't like the way women dress these days, any way you look at it. I don't approve of their wearing knickers, and I don't approve of their wearing these short dresses. I've lived in Salem ever since I was a boy, and I tell you I've seen the day when if women had walked down the street dressed as they do now, they would have been arrested. No, I don't think they ought to wear knee pants in auto or anywhere else. What do you want to know for anyway?"

Eliminate Politics From Pulpits, Episcopalians Are Told at Convention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Protestant Episcopal church in the opening sermon of its 49th triennial convention which began here today was urged to eliminate politics from pulpits. In addition to this message, expressed in forcible language by the Right Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson, bishop of Chicago, in his opening sermon, the heads of the church and an open air congregation of 20,000 heard President Coolidge define this country's greatest possible service to the world as the perfection of its own moral progress.

Bishop Anderson roundly rebuked sectionalism and intolerance and asked "are men to be compelled by law to teach their children a special brand of religion?" "Whenever the church spends its energies on social and political reforms, or undertakes to fight the world's political and social battles by using the world's weapons, or identifies itself with the world in hope of producing a glorified human society by external pressure, the result will inevitably be a loss of morals."

"It is beginning at the wrong end. It is catching up with the chinery of society which may work today and break down tomorrow, instead of reconstructing the motives of men." The distinguished audience included Mrs. Coolidge, who sat by the president's military and naval aides, and left with the president at the conclusion of his preaching.

The service formally opening the meeting of the church governing body was held with pomp and ceremony on the wooden slopes of Mount St. Alban, near the site dedicated to cathedral purposes 20 years ago, and on which the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul is steadily rising as a testimonial to the spiritual aspirations of the episcopalians thought the land.

Delegates Wear Robes—As the nearly 2,000 clerical and lay delegates in vestments and in robes took their places, a bright autumn sun was shining on the leaves of red and brown and on the bright stoles and capes of the bishops.

The Right Rev. Thomas Casady, missionary bishop of Oklahoma, offered the opening prayer, after which the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, and the very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington, escorted the president to the platform, while the bells in the tower of Mount St. Alban parish church pealed "America."

The takeoff originally was set for dawn today but adverse weather reports postponed the start. Bonnell said today that he believed tomorrow's weather would be favorable and he hoped to start from this side at about the same time the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin gets under way from Europe for her flight to Lakehurst, N. Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will one start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies. It is particularly pleasing to know that most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the
