The winners of the state-wide audition will go to San Francisco to the district contest early in November. James Jenks and Eleanor Moore, local audition winners, have entered the Portland try-outs.

Receive Reading Circle—Books outlining the reading circle course, one of four plans of which every Salem teacher is required to comply with each year, have been received at the city superintendent's office from the county school office and are being distributed to the teachers. The course is prepared by the state superintendent and this year two important changes are noticed. First two is widened to include not only their course rather than just education, taken through or at a university or college; and instructors must submit their course plans to the state superintendent through the local school head on or before December 1, 1928. All such courses must be completed before May 1, 1928. Last year was the first time Salem teachers took reading circle work.

RESULTS OF DEBATE TRYOUT ANNOUNCED

Results of the debate tryouts at the Salem high school were announced Thursday afternoon by Norman Berkeley, Jr., debate coach, with the successful candidates: Edith May Jenks, editor of the student body annual and a senior; Marvin Byers and Norman Winslow, seniors, and Helen Childs, Fred Blatchford and Frank Childs, juniors. Helen and Frank Childs are sister and brother of Isabel Childs, member of last year's debating teams.

Coach Berkeley is optimistic over the year's prospects, despite the fact that he must build an entirely new squad, as all last year's members have graduated, something that will not happen next year, as half are juniors.

LECTURE ON TIBET IS HEARD BY MANY

A crowd filled the Willamette university gymnasium Thursday night to hear the illustrated lecture "Tibet in Disguise," by Dr. William Montgomery McGovern. The lecture was sponsored by Dr. Norman K. Tully, Dr. F. C. Taylor, Dean Roy Hewitt and the four classes at Willamette university.

Tibetan officials are unfriendly to outsiders, according to Dr. McGovern, and issue explicit orders that no white men are to be allowed within the country's borders. Dr. McGovern was able to gain entrance to the country by disguising himself as a coolie, and was within the "Forbidden City" of Lhasa for some time before he was detected. For several weeks he was held prisoner by monastery officials, and was finally released only by the aid of a friend high in Tibetan military circles.

Dr. McGovern's lecture was illustrated with motion pictures and slides, many of which were taken by his Tibetan servants. They showed not only the scenery of the Himalayas but also the life of the people.

Rooks Will Play On Home Field

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Local football fans will have their first opportunity of seeing future Oregon State college material in action tomorrow when Coach Newman's freshmen will meet St. Martin's college of Lacey, Wash., here at 3 o'clock.

FINANCING SCHOOL GRANDSTAND PLAN

Plans to aid in maintenance of the high school athletic field and the new grandstand now under construction, including organization of the first "burlap day" ever sponsored by the high school, were formulated at a meeting of the student council Thursday morning.

Lyle Bartholomew, school architect who designed the grandstand and arrangement of the field, outlined plans for these and made suggestions for the students' assistance in managing the grounds. The council has agreed to pay $500 toward cost of constructing the fence, and will aid as much as possible in financing the grandstand.

Saturday has been appointed as "burlap day" when all high school students are asked to bring gunny sacks to be sown together to make a blanket to use over the fence during the games, a procedure to bring all fans through the pay gate.

Victor Wolfe was appointed field manager and will be responsible for policing of the field, parking and burrlapping the fence at all games. Virginia Sisson was named chairman of a committee to prepare flags and banners for the grandstand.

The student organization will push plans for repair of the old grandstand, which will be used largely by the student body. The freshmen will spend Saturday cleaning up the field. Another meeting will be held Monday to make further plans with reference to the field and grandstand. Barney Cameron, student body president, said Thursday night.

O. A. C. TEAM FACES BIG GAME SATURDAY

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Oct. 18.—(Special)—One of the closest football battles in the northwest this season is predicted for the Washington State-O. A. C. clash at Pullman Saturday. Pre-season doers were of the opinion that the two state colleges would be about on a par this season with the result of the mix in doubt until the final whistle.

Last year O. A. C. had a tough time winning 13 to 6 at Corvallis. Breaks made by the Orange and taken advantage of by them seemed to turn the trick. Washington State is a team which is improving rapidly as the season advances with the result that the Cougars are expected to be just right when they tangle with the Beavers.

O. A. C. is gradually coming out of the slump caused by their defeat at the hands of Southern California. Last Saturday they had what might be classed as a work-out in a double-header with Columbia and Pacific at Portland. Coach Schuster's men piled up a total of 87 points to their opponents 0.

Injuries to several O. A. C. players have handicapped them considerably. Metten, first string halfback, whose right foot was broken in the Southern California game will not have the cast taken off until October 28. Luca, Eilers, Geddes, McKalp, Gilmore, Sherwood, and Twitchell still are on the injured list. Twitchell, a letterman halfback, was hurt in practice early in the season and
